Adult Evening Classes Will Begin Monday

Adult evening classes offered at Sikeston high school will be conducted in conjunction with the school of technology beginning Monday, Jim Cornett, director of vocational education said.

The four programs offered in the school are each two-year programs - drafting technology, printing technology, electronics technology and secretarial science.

The frist semester begins Monday and closes Jan. 12. The full time students will attend classes Monday through Friday from 4:30 p.m. until 10 p.m.

Registration for adult evening classes will be conducted Monday through Thursday at the vocational office at the high school.

Adults who wish to take a course offered as part of the curriculum of the school may do so, Cornett said.

Courses to be offered in the school are technical mathematics, basic mathematics, business mathematics, technical drafting, communications skills, materials of industry, manufacturing processes, general printing, typing, electronic devices, physics for electronics, business communications, and shorthand.

Courses to be offered adults in evening education classes include those listed above, and electronic principles, advanced electronics, speed reading, beginning art, furniture refinishing, slimnastics (men and women), auto mechanics, power mechanics, beginning welding, auto body, heliarc welding, and high school equivalency.

The number of the courses for adults will depend on the interest shown. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Cornett at the high school.

Bike, Horse, Mower, Wasp, Nail Injure

Nine emergency patients were treated Tuesday in the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Earsell Whittaker treated for a wasp sting on arm; Robert Gimlin caught finger in auger belt; Charles Lee Miller Jr. fell off truck on a steel skid; Karen Sue Fraley, upper lip cut in a fall; Robert M. Vann, cut finger on a lawn mower blade.

Linny B. Morton, Cape Girardeau, fractured skull in a fall out of high chair; Stephen Hill caught toe in bicycle spoke; Stacy Graham stepped on a nail; Ronald Givens, Matthews, fell off a horse.

Ninety percent of the foreign exchange of Ceylon is derived from tea, rubber and coconut. Tea alone accounts for 65 percent of the value of all exports.

Single District Okayed

NEW MADRID - The New Madrid county school board last night voted to form a single school district, absorbing six districts.

The districts included in the proposed district are Portageville, Lilbourn, New Madrid, Matthews, Morehouse and Parma. Two districts which asked to be excluded were Gideon and Risco.

A plan will be submitted to the state board of education in Jefferson City, which will make a decision on the proposal, in 60 days, according to Lyle Bird, board president.

If the plan is approved by the state board, an election will be called in the six districts to permit citizens to vote on the proposal.

Cotton Gin Burglarized

MATTHEWS -- The Matthews Cotton Company, was broken into between 7 p.m. and 6 a.m. today, when thieves forced their way into the lounge, according to Manager Jerry Aufdenberg.

Taken from the lounge was a 19-inch portable television set and coins from soft drink and cigarette machines.

The thieves forced their way into the gin through a window and took hand and power tools, chain hoist and a hydraulic lift, with a value of several hundred dollars.

There were truck tire marks and footprints left by the thieves at the rear of the gin.

Drinker Only Half-Guilty

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) - Blackie Creasey of nearby Quin appeared in police court today charged with being drunk in public.

"Guilty or not guilty," intoned Judge Tom Cahill.

Your honor, "I was only half-drunk," Creasey pleaded.

"Then I'll find you only half-guilty," declared Judge Cahill.

Cahill fined Creasey $17, half the usual fine for the offense.

City Pledges Aid to Guidance Program For Negro Youths

A delegation from Sunset addition interested in improving conditions for Negro youths requested cooperation from the city council in a guidance program at a city council meeting last night.

George Wolfe and Mrs. Carolyn Moon told the council that they were trying to get youths concerned about themselves and wanted professional guidance from the city.

Mrs. Moon said a meeting would be held tonight to organize teenagers in Sunset to begin a guidance program.

The project will include a recreation program. It had been recommended that the facilities of the community action agency on West Malone to be used.

Purpose of the program is to give Negro youths something to do to keep them off the streets.

Mayor Kendall Sikes and City Manager W. Raymert Miller said the council would cooperate to make the program a success and recommended that the group contact Recovery Incorporated.

A letter from James V. Smith, 802 Wayne, requesting that the city pass an ordinance regulating the time when trash can be burned in the city was tabled.

Miller said Sikeston had not reached the size where such an ordinance would be necessary, but added that the city's growth may necessitate such action later.

Acting upon a petition from residents of the 1400 block of East Kathleen, the council passed a resolution for blacktopping and drainage on East Kathleen from Selma to Dona.

Ordinances for a four by four foot concrete sidewalk on Maude from Fair to Petty and for blade mix paving from Lillian drive east to the existing pavement were passed.

An ordinance accepting the fifth addition of Town and Country to the city was passed.

Miller said the telephone company franchise fee of 5 per cent required an ordinance. The company paid $16,500 in taxes to the city in the last fiscal year.

The company will now list separately the city, state and federal taxes on customer bills. This will cost telephone customers more money since the taxes will be collected separately, Miller said, but added that people will save money in the long run because double taxation will be eliminated.

Fire Damages Door Of Old Warehouse

Wind spread flames from burning trash to an old warehouse at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at Malone Street and Jaycee Avenue.

Only a wooden door at the rear of the building was damaged firemen said. The building is used for storage of items sold by Bob's Salvage.

Cape Voter Heavily Favor Annexation

CAPE GIRARDEAU (AP)- For the third time in the past 20 years voters in Cape Girardeau have decided to annex territory around the Southeast Missouri city.

Unofficial returns indicate voters approved Tuesday the proposed annexation of eight square miles to the north and west of the city. The measure needed only a simple majority to pass.

The vote was 2,082 for the move and 529 against. Cape Girardeau had 15,000 eligible voters. The annexation would become effective immediately after an official count of the votes.

Firefighters Making Gains

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

All major forest fires in the Northwest states were reported controlled or near containment today.

But in British Columbia, a new 10,000-acre blaze burst out and was uncontrolled on a steep mountainside near Lumby, 50 miles south of the huge Shuswap Lake fire area.

Temperatures at Shuswap Lake dropped as much as 23 degrees late Tuesday, slowing the 45,000-acre blaze for the first time in two weeks.

More Than 300 Tour Delta Center Plots

PORTAGEVILLE -- The open house and tour of the University of Missouri Delta Center brought out more than 300 Bootheel farmers and farm advisers yesterday.

They were shown experiments on grain, cotton and forage crops.

The tours opened at 9 a.m., and were conducted in two phases both morning and afternoon under the supervision of the Delta Center personnel, John Garrett, Flernoy Jones, David Kelly, Henry DiCarlo and E. B. Nace. Catholic church women of Portageville served sandwiches and refreshments at noon.

The first stop was a cotton plot, with Lloyd Treece as guide, and Keith Harrendorf, insect control research specialist, displaying thrip control on cotton, where the granular systemic insecticides were added on May 24, when the plants averaged as many as 140 thrips. Following a one-inch rain on June 8 the thrips dropped to eight thrips per plant. He displayed a photograph taken of the plot July 3.

Harrendorf said that "when cotton is planted at too late a date insecticide control is wasted money."

Nace, who is in charge of farm management, discussed a barley project, sponsored by the Delta Center and a St. Louis brewer, where a barley followed soybeans with good results. He added that the crop would not compete with a wheat allotment program.

"The crop works well where you have irrigation for a double crop program."

Dr. Leo A. Duclos, soybean research specialist, said that the center tested and developed 19 bean varieties.

Duclos said that "the soybean crop was the number one crop in Missouri in 1966, bringing in $180 million to the farmers.

"You give us the type of soil and we will give you the seeding variety best suited for your soil."

He displayed a plot that would produce 104,544 plants per acre.

Of cyst nematode resistant seed varieties, Duclos said:

"We are increasing our seed, but not enough for everyone. We could sell all of our certified seed out-state if we wanted to because of the great demand."

The cyst nematode is causing heavy damage.

Dr. William Bugbee, cotton control specialist and pathologist, discussed the plants treated with terrachlor super disyston. The chemical kills or reduces root rot in plants at a cost of $3 to $4 per acre with an equipment cost of an additional $150.

Other specialists who assisted with the tour were W. P. Sappenfield, James A. Roth, L. E. Anderson, Armon Keaster and V. N. Lambeth.

Other plots shown visitors included corn varieties, sugar beet and vetch.

Tots Chosen to Reign Over Bean Festival

PORTAGEVILLE--Bobby Lynn Burk, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Burk of Portageville, and Rhonda Hillis, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hillis of Lilbourn, were named winners of the junior king and queen beauty revue Tuesday at the high school gymnasium.

The revue was the opening event of the National Soybean Festival.

Thirty two girls and 21 boys entered the contest.

First runnerup in the king contest was Johnny Toten, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Toten of Portageville, and second runnerup was Scott Bethune, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bethune of Caruthersville.

First runnerup in the queen contest was Lorie Ann Phillips, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Phillips of New Madrid, and second runnerup was Lisa Ann Martin, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Martin of Kewanee.

The contest was open to all boys and girls four and five years old.

TOURS OPENED at 9 a.m. at the Delta Center in Portageville Tuesday. This group is leaving for an inspection of the 600-acre experiment station plots.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

FIRST-GRADE TEACHER

In a recent copy of Catholic Quote, we noted an item by Mrs. Janet Gorrell Meyer which is appropos particularly at this time. We quote it as follows. . . .

When I am introduced as a teacher, I am usually asked what I teach. When I say "first-grade", I generally hear a very flat "Oh!"

I have never been certain whether this is an expression of pity, sympathy, disgust or perhaps disinterest. Always I wish I had the time to tell people something like this:

Yes, I teach first-grade.

Where else would a handsome and very young man put his arms around me and ask, "Do you know that I love you?"

Where else would I tie so many hair ribbons and belts and daily get to see a style show of pretty dresses and shirts?

Where else could I wear the same dress day after day and be told each time that it is pretty?

Where else could I walk up and down aisles and have warm hands touch me?

Where else could I have the privilege of wiggling loose teeth and receive a promise that I may pull them when they are loose?

Where else could I eat a soiled piece of candy from a grimy little hand and not get ill? (I have to eat it because he watches to see that I do.)

Where else would the future look as bright as it does amid an energetic group to whom nothing is impossible?

Where else could I guide the first letter formations of a chubby little hand that may some day write a book or an important document?

Where else could I forget my own aches and pains because so many cut fingers, scratched knees, bumped heads, and broken hearts need care?

Where else could I forget taxes and even "the state of the nation" because Stevie isn't grasping reading as he should and other methods must be tried?

Where else would my mind have to stay so young as with a group whose attention span in so short that I must keep a "bag of tricks up my sleeve"?

Where else could I feel so close to my Maker as I do each year when, because of something I have done, little children learn to read?

Yes, I do teach the first-grade, Mr. and Mrs. America.

And I love it!

More than ever, this country needs trained, educated people to continue the progress America has made and to take their rightful places in the society that is developing.

Much of the poverty and unemployment that exists today is directly related to the lack of education and preparation by previous generations.

Right now there are 2 million youngsters in this country in the 16 to 21 age group who dropped out of school before earning their high school diploma. Nearly a fourth of them are unemployed. Most of the rest are stuck in dead-end jobs, without any real future.

Large gains have been made in the fight against ignorance, unemployment and poverty during the past several years. Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz recently reported that 2 million more people are working and 1 million more are in high school and college than the population increase of the last three years accounts for.

The Education Campaign of the past two years has helped in this progress. It has paid big dividends by inspiring dropouts to return to the classrooms and encouraging the undecided to finish their education. In 1960 the dropout rate was 25 percent. Last year it had decreased to 18 percent.

But 18 percent is too high for a Nation to tolerate. The frightening fact remains that at the current dropout rate by 1975 there will be 32 million adults in the labor force without a high school education -- 32 million who will be unqualified for most of the jobs available then.

This newspaper supports the efforts being made to keep our youth in school and help them from becoming future victims of deprivation and poverty.

But it takes more than our support. It needs and commands the support and effort of every citizen.

Youngsters who have already dropped out of school need special help. They need to be counseled and guided into training that will help them develop skills for today's jobs. Others on the verge of leaving school before completing their education dropout many times to earn money to support their families or to buy necessities for themselves. Action by the business community in the form of part-time jobs is needed to help them stay in school.

You can serve your country best by helping to insure that tomorrow's leaders are educated today.

EXPENSIVE 'JUNK'

This is intended to be a short lesson in business economics on the topic of bulk mailing. It was prompted by a merchant who asked for this information.

This so-called "junk mail" may be just that to many people, but it begins to take on an entirely different aspect when the small merchant ventures into this field for the first time.

THE POST OFFICE Department charges $15 for a permit. This is a one-time only charge, and need not be renewed so long as the permit holder uses that permit at least once each year.

However, the PO Department charges another annual "Bulk Mailing Fee" of $30.00. That $30 lug must be paid each year to keep the permit alive.

After that, each mailing piece is charged for at the rate of 2 7/8 cents.

The mailer must also count out the correct number of pieces and identify each bundle by its correct address. In each bundle the handbills, folders or whatnot, must be counted out in multiples of 10. The mailer can do this himself, or he can hire it done by private individuals who charge according to the number of pieces handled.

THE OCCASIONAL user of this form of mailing can save $15 by using an established mailing permit number, and paying a fee of $30 for that privilege.

For example, a one-time only mailer would pay $45 for permit and bulk fee, plus $69.43 postage, plus $10 sorting and tying or a total of $124.43 to cover the Charleston area.

Who said junk?

P. S. The bulk mailing rate is scheduled to go up very soon. The exact new price has not been announced.

THE WILL THAT WINS

Many a man has gone down in defeat for the simple reason that he made only half - hearted attempts to reach his goal. Half-hearted attempts can only bring about despair, and despair is what forces a man to quit before he reaches the goal line. Which brings up this interesting little story which we like to keep handy for frequent reading:

Nothing will take the place of the kind of determination possessed by the youngster with a shining new pair of skates. Every stroke ended in a tumble. Sympathetic strangers watched the struggle until they saw tears forming in the boy's eyes. Then one of them suggested: "Buddy, you are only getting yourself hurt. Why don't you give up and watch the others?"

Whereupon the spunky little fellow who had aroused such sympathy toward himself blurted out this straight - from - the-heart reply:

"I didn't buy these skates to quit with - I bought 'em to learn how with!"

TIME RUNNING OUT

President Johnson's proposal for a Department of Transportation now pending before Congress has been favorably received by major segments of the transportation industry. One of the first tasks to which such a department should address its attention is the coordination of government activities in the transportation field.

An official of the Association of American Railroads says that a move in this direction could begin with those provisions of the legislation which call for the need to "develop and recommend national transportation policies and programs" and to evolve "standards and criteria . . . for the formulation and economic evaluation of all proposals for the investment of federal funds in transportation facilities or equipment."

Under pressure of mushrooming population and economic growth, time is running out on antiquated attitudes and policies that have no place in our highly competitive transportation industry. As the rail association official emphasized, archaic government policies which stifle competition and limit the efficient use of transport facilities must be eliminated if transportation "is to be responsive to our nation's pyramiding future needs." He outlines three principles and urged that they be used as guidelines in establishing new transportation policies; 1. The principle of maximum reliance upon competition and minimum reliance upon government regulation. 2. The principle that each mode of transportation must be allowed to perform that service which it can do best. 3. The principle that management be permitted to eliminate waste and unncessary duplication in its utilization of the transportation resources committed to its jurisdiction.

Railroads -- the most regulated element of transportation -- are the backbone of the transport industry. Recognition of this is fundamental to any workable transportation policy.

The nation's independent business propietors who have consistently voted against monopoly building mergers are not enchanted with the proposal to merge cabinet offices, either.

This became quite apparent with the announcement of the results of the nationwide poll conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business in the recommendation now before the Congress to combine the Department of Commerce and the Department of Labor into one agency.

The results show 72 per cent opposed, 22 per cent in favor, with 6 per cent undecided.

In Missouri the result was 72 per cent opposed, 20 per cent in favor, with 8 per cent undecided.

While the nation's small business community has long felt that the Department of Commerce is not concerned with their problems, but is rather an exclusive agency of big business, a feeling that led to the establishment of the Small Business Administration, their historic attitude to the Department of Labor has been even more cool.

Apparently they feel such a merger would result in turning over the entire direction of the national economy, during the time of labor-oriented administrations as at present, to the big labor leaders.

TIME-TRAVEL TIPS: When you unpack clothing, or even when you take off a jacket, give it a good shake before putting it on a hanger. This permits the fibers of the cloth to readjust their positions, and thereby cuts down on wrinkles . . . If an unpacked outfit is only slightly mussed, put it on and wear it. Good clothes will bounce back to shape quickly, from the warmth of one's body and from the fresh air . . . Pack rolled-up socks in shoes. They'll serve as trees and be out of the way.

H. L. Hunt Says

COMMUNISM-LIKE FUNGUS

Communism is like fungus. It is relatively simple to hold down the spread of fungus by keeping clean. Likewise, communism can be held down then beaten simply by keeping it in check and cleaning up often.

Like fungus, communism spreads slowly and surely until it finally chokes the life out of the people it has come in contact with. Communism began with World War I in Russia and by the end of World War II it had engulfed Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and several other countries in Eastern and Central Europe. Fungus is a furtive growth which must spread in order to survive. Communism is much the same in that unknowing to its victims it maliciously drains the economy of whatever it enslaves and must acquire more space to satisfy its hunger. Stalin once said: "We do not want a foot of foreign soil; we shall not yield an inch of our own." But after Stalin had subjected the peasants of Russia to such degradations as forced labor and wholesale deportation and robbing them of their farms to collectivize them, he was in need of more territory since Russian production soon almost ceased to exist.

Generations ago, people knew very little about fungus, but once they began getting some education on the subject, they learned the many ways of deterring it and eventually got rid of it to a large extent.

Communism is no different. All freedom loving people should educate themselves and learn the ways and means of this dreadful disease. Educate first and then clean up, for the infection is spreading and it must be contained before defeated.

NEW YORK (AP) -- Memory is the best of all gardens.

Therein, winter and summer, the seeds of the past lie dormant, ready to spring into instant bloom at any moment the mind wishes to bring them to life again.

Protected from the buffeting of new snows and fresh rains, those timeless flowers dwell serenely in the fair weather of the soul. Only the killing frost of death itself can tumble their unforgettable beauty.

How fares your own inside garden? It is well stocked with flowers-- and perhaps a few thistles, too-- if you can look back and remember when--

In the days before hippies, only children went barefoot along city streets.

One of the biggest problems in juvenile delinquency was keeping kids from raiding watermelon patches at night. The kids all thought the watermelons were guarded by irate farmers carrying shotguns loaded with bacon rind that would burn your skin off.

Hair dyes were so awful that you could tell at a glance whether a blonde was real or a product of the local drugstore-- a "henna blonde."

Only chemists had heard of plastics.

When you went for a Sunday drive, the children in the back seat made a game of counting the number of white horses they saw on the farms. Now they could ride all day and never see a one.

Bluebirds-- a lovely sight-- seemed almost as common in the country as pigeons in the city. Today many a person old enough to vote has never seen a bluebird in his life.

There were more American homes with outdoor plumbing than indoor plumbing.

If you were too sophisticated to believe that the stork brought babies, you were told either that they grew in cabbage patches or that the doctor found them on tree stumps in the woods.

In most U.S. business offices the secretaries neatly pinned papers together instead of using paper clips.

Falling elevators and runaway horses killed more people each year than automobile accidents. That was 'way back when folks laughed at the phrase "23 Skidoo."

Bashful lads in the prairie states dreamed of growing up and going to sea because, it was thought, "sailors have girls in every port."

It was somewhat unusual to reach maturity without, somewhere along the way, having learned how to milk a cow.

If a fellow lost his buttonbook, he couldn't put on his shoes properly in the morning.

A big front porch was an essential of any home that held a large family, because where else could older daughters be courted without starting neighborhood gossip?

Children believed that if they were bad an evil demon called the boogeyman would get them. The boogeyman was sometimes thought to dwell at the bottom of the backyard well, and during daylight hours some kids were brave enough to throw small stones down the well to torment him.

When you didn't want to eat your lumpy, clotted oatmeal, mother always said, "Think of how many millions of starving children in China would be glad to have that for breakfast!" And all you wanted to find was an easy way to send it to them.

No minister felt his Sunday sermon was up to snuff unless it contained a denunciation of the devil and a vivid description of the everlasting pangs of hellfire. When he leaned back in his pulpit, exhausted, you could almost smell sulphur fumes in the church.

If people wanted something but couldn't pay cash for it, they did without it rather than go into debt.

Those were the days. Remember?

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

HONOLULU -- Here in Hawaii you understand the full impact of the war in Southeast Asia, the tremendous job of planning, of supply and command. For this is the hub of the war, the point where general policy is relayed from Washington to Saigon.

Here also you come to understand the political factors that make the war difficult to win in Southeast Asia.

And the conclusions seem inescapable that a chain of events is developing which should bring both sides to the peace conference table. They could bring an end to the fighting, or on the other hand lead to drastic and dangerous escalation.

The man in charge of this far-flung operation, Admiral U. S. Grant Sharp, commander of the Pacific Fleet, is a mild-mannered, pale - blue-eyed sailor, born in Montana, who commanded part of our naval operations in the Korean war and is now the over-all commander of Gen. William Westmoreland in South Vietnam.

It is Admiral Sharp's carriers which launch the daily bombing raids on North Vietnam. Naturally he is a firm believer in the wisdom of the bombing policy. He points out that bombing has seriously interrupted rail and truck traffic, has curtailed shipment of supplies south, diverted about 500,000 men to reconstruction work, forced farm labor to leave food production, destroyed half of the north's manufacturing potential, congested the seaports, tripled the time it takes for communist ships to unload, and forced the dispersion of the oil industry. He also believes that bombing must be extended to the key cities of Hanoi and Haiphong.

MILITARY ACHIEVEMENTS

The work of supporting American troops and building up South Vietnam has made tremendous advances. In January 1967, 35,000 tons of military supplies were unloaded in Saigon. In 1967, this has increased to an average of 700,000 tons per month. Bien Hoa has become the biggest airport in the world, with a plane landing on taking off every 42 seconds.

The civilian pacification program has been intensified to the point where 2,400,000 students are now in secondary schools-- double the number of five years ago.

Despite these military and civilian accomplishments, peace sentiment is strong in South Vietnam. And the Americans of oriental descent living in Hawaii who understand oriental philosophy explain the reasons why.

The military strategy of bombing the enemy to the peace table, they say, will never work in North Vietnam. And the Americans of oriental descent living in Hawaii who understand oriental philosophy explain the reasons why.

The military strategy of bombing the enemy to the peace table, they say, will never work in North Vietnam. It didn't work when Hitler rained bombs over London. It strengthened British morale. And it won't work in a more primitive country where lives are cheap and people can escape to the hills and the rice paddies overnight.

Orientals point to the fact that it hasn't worked during 26 years of constant Vietnamese warfare and occupation under the Japanese, the French, and the Americans.

FACTORS FOR PEACE

Meanwhile, several important factors point to the probability of peace talks. They are:

1-- Every candidate for president in the South Vietnam elections talked peace. The war is so unpopular that they couldn't do otherwise. Even Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, Chief of State, proposed peace talks and a bombing holiday -- if the Americans agreed. He knew in advance the Americans would agree, because sagacious Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker had been encouraging him to open avenues to peace.

2--Another peace feeler has recently come from Hanoi. It's difficult to tell how firm these feelers are, but this one is reinforced by U. N. Secretary General Thant and neutralist Burma.

3-- President Johnson has reached the point of political no return as far as the war is concerned. His senate support for the war is now down to about 50-50, and his domestic program, especially for the big cities, is suffering badly as a result of war appropriations.

4-- Gen. Westmoreland's request for 100,000 troops has been scaled down to 45,000 and even this number has not yet been supplies. Twice Secretary of Defense McNamara has vetoed the joint chiefs of staff's request that the reserves be called up. The White House is opposed.

Most important development of all, however, may be the discovery that the Viet Cong have hauled Russian rocket launchers to within a short distance of Saigon. This will make Saigon as vulnerable to attack as Hanoi would be from U.S. bombers.

The launchers throw a rocket two feet long and could fire into the heart of Saigon. So far Saigon has been outside the range of enemy guns. The Viet Cong have been forced to use secret agents to sneak in and blow up its buildings.

But with the new rocket-launchers, they could pour relentless day and night fire into a vast and teeming city which is much less prepared for bombing than Hanoi. There has been so much talk about bombing Hanoi that it has dispersed its strategic offices and prepared bomb shelters. Saigon, however, is totally unprepared.

These are some of the factors in the turbulent, ever-changing picture of the war which point toward a precarious peace.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

TWILIGHT OF A NATION

How Tough Skilled Workers' Unions' Restrictions Bankrupted an Empire.

London: -- A quiet revolution is stirring the U.S. Our skilled workers are coming out of their two-car garages, small ranch homes, good flats and are converging variously on the auto industry, shipbuilding, the newspapers, and space industries in particular and business in general. Skilled men are scarce and they believe they have it made. They think prosperity is as permanent as the Rock of Gibralter. Well they should take a second look at the big rock. Politically it's a mighty shaky stone.

If our skilled tradesmen want to observe their British cousins running a great nation into the ground let them look eastward to the once mighty United Kingdom. Here the skilled craftsman is as powerful as his American counterpart - and unless he gets less cocky, the British skilled worker will help bankrupt the land, ruin its currency, make private savings almost valueless and find himself on the dole.

So tight are the craft workers union restrictions that fully hundreds of thousands of workers are paid for doing nothing but to stand around. So though are the unions' jurisdictional lines in the shipbuilding industry it sometimes takes seven highly paid skilled workers to do one man's job -- all getting full pay.

This report here is based on personal trips to plants and a thorough examination of the documents at the Royal Commission on Trade Unions and Employes' Associations.

There are detailed studies proving that in some sections of the British newspaper industries, production and distribution, at least 34 per cent of the employes are paid for doing nothing -- redundant, they call them. Superfluous, we call them.

Furthermore, some of the highly paid graphic arts workers -- meaning print shops -- actually sweep the floors or carry messages to make work. But they can only carry messages or paper from one department to a line drawn on the floor. Then another skilled worker, at skilled rates, picks it up and goes to another chalk line.

There is also "ghost" work. This develops when there is a need for extra pages. Ordinarily such extra work would require additional machines and union men. But the union says that the regular force can handle the sudden spurt. They simply pick up a little speed.

But the pay is reckoned at the rate of what extra equipment and manpower would have been necessary if the union men had not worked at a swifter pace. The ghost machines and ghost employes actually are put on the payroll accounting, but the ghosts' wages are divided and handed to the regular staff.

Thus the added costs accrue. In the electrical construction field there are "mates" (apprentices or helpers). Scores of thousands of them are paid for doing nothing or for working three and a half hours during a day. They stand around, hand up a tool now and then or "hold" a ladder for the journeyman electrician. Thus they are paid for doing nothing at all 65 per cent of the time.

Now for shipbuilding. Once the United Kingdom was the world's leader. Craft unions, or their predecessors began when ships were built in wood. Then just about the time our chief Sittin Bull took his first scalp back home and wood began yielding to iron on ship hulls, the British craft unions decided that tradition is tradition. The works practices of that time still hold over.

The unions developed "demarcation" of labor among themselves (jurisdiction). Sometimes different unions fight for the same work. Sometimes sections of the membership inside one union battle each other for the job.

There is, for example, the making of a portlight. In most shipbuilding yards around the world, one man, perhaps two, make such a portlight. Here this has happened: First a shipwright marks the position of the portlight. A burner (acetylene torch welder) cuts the opening. A caulker "dresses" it. A driller drills and fits the frame. A brass finisher polishes it off and fits the hinged glass frame. A driller fits the deadlight. Then a joiner (or driller) fits the deadlight hook to the linings of the steel deckhead. One such operation may be all that one of these men will do for hours since he must wait for the others to start and finish.

And then there is "overmanning." The practice holding over from wooden wrigate days lays rigid rules for the number of men on a job. In the Mersey district, for example, the Boilermakers insisted on a continued application on a welding agreement signed generations ago. Though it is completely out of date, it can require 42 boilermakers on an acetylane torch job when only ten are needed.

Also two men had to be on each torch, though only one was needed.

Add to this jurisdictional rigidity the battles between unions winding up in costly strikes. Plumbers, engineers coppersmiths fight over who shall install certain kinds of piping. Carpenters and upholsterers battle over who should lay linoleum on particular surfaces. Woodworkers (carpenters), sheet - metal workers and shipwrights struggle over who shall drill holes in aluminum sheet and bolt it to wood.

Add to all this the tough army of 200,000 union shop stewards who do not produce but who are paid high wages by the employer. The shop steward has his place inside the shops and factories of this society but the system does mean that the equivalent of 750,000 men in the U.S. simply do nothing but handle occasional grievances and whip up trouble.

No doubt the scarce skilled worker can get tough anywhere. But he had better have a mind to what may happen when he gets too rigid, too tough and too expensive -- and forces his country to price itself out of the world market.

Hudson Speaks at DAR Meeting

The Kingshighway chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Helen Jones, regent, with Mrs. Gladys Renner as co-hostess.

A dessert was served before the meeting.

Mrs. Jones opened the meeting with the ritual, pledge of allegiance to the flag, pledge of allegiance to Missouri lead by Miss Margaret Harris, American's Creed lead by Mrs. Audley Brown and the national anthem.

The president general's message was read by Mrs. Hazelle Wilson. The message said the public school system should be sure to keep teaching the children the history of the Constitution and never let the history of the United States be put on the back shelves and forgotten.

Mrs. Alice Huff was appointed chairman of the children of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Frank Hudson of Charleston agreed to help her with the starting of the chapter in Sikeston.

Mrs. Velna Brown invited the club to come to the Gallery in Charleston starting next Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily through Sept. 29.

Roll call was answered by the telling of an ancestor of each member.

The district meeting in DeSoto will be Sept. 19 at the St. Andrews Methodist church, 1200 Rock Road. Reservations should be sent to Mrs. Sam McKinstry, Blackwell, Mo. 63226.

The state conference will be held in St. Louis at the Chase Park Plaza hotel, March 25-27.

The 77th Continental Congress will be held in Washington, D.C. April 15-19.

The national defence was given by Miss Lucille Howlett. It reported that part of the Land-Lease assistance furnished to the Soviet Union during World War II was in the form of 84 merchant ships and 48 miscellaneous army and navy watercraft. Among them were the ships now being used in Vietnam by the Soviets. In the agreement signed June 11, 1942, by the governments of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the United States of America it was provided that at the end of World War II such articles as had been transferred under the agreement and had not been destroyed, lost or consumed should be returned to the United States. These ships have not been returned nor has any settlement been reached regarding payment for them.

Frank Hudson, Charleston, gave the program. His subject was "The Constitution." He told the group that for the time that it was written the Constitution could be called a very radical piece of work. With the turmoil and confusion in that time, every word was considered and discussed before it was written into the constitution. Then the supreme court was formed to give the letter of the law and the intent of the law, then the Bill of Rights was formed to be able to make amendments to the Constitution with the changing of the times.

Miss Bridges Marries Jimmy Smith

ADVANCE -- Miss Evelyn Bridges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Winchester became the bride of Jimmy Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of Advance, at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Assembly of God church. The Rev. Frank Heitman performed the single ring ceremony after traditional wedding music played by Mrs. Heitman, organist, in a setting provided by lighted candles in candelabra and baskets of white flowers.

Mrs. Bob Winchester and Mrs. Wilbur Winchester were in charge of the guest book.

The bride, given in marriage by her guardian, Wilbur Winchester, was attired in a floor-length gown of satin brocade fashioned with a fitted bodice with round neckline and long sleeves which ended in points at the back of the hands. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion was attached to a dainty headpiece outlined with pearls and rhinestones and she carried a bridal bouquet of white pompons and red roses.

Mrs. Dallas Dover of St. Louis was the bride's only attendant and wore a rose pink dress and headpiece fashioned by Mrs. Wilbur Winchester of this city who, also, fashioned the bride's dress and veil. Mrs. Dover carried a single large white rose.

Smith chose Wayne McCullogh of St. Louis as his attendant.

For the wedding Mrs. Lee Winchester wore a blue knit dress and harmonizing accessories. Mrs. Smith, mother of the groom, wore a pink dress and white accessories. Their corsages were of white carnations.

A reception was given at the church immediately after the wedding and the entertaining room was decorated in red and white. The bride's table, covered with white lace also carried out the red and white color scheme and was centered with a two tiered cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. Guests were served by Mrs. Bob Winchester and Mrs. Wilbur Winchester.

After a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination Smith and his bride will make their home in Cape Girardeau. For travel the new Mrs. Smith wore a beige two piece lace suit, enhanced with the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The former Miss Bridges is a 1967 graduate of Advance high school.

Smith, also, a graduate of Advance high school, is employed by Uregas Company in Cape Girardeau.

Kegler's Karner

By Hildred Poole

Hello! Mary Meyer is not feeling quite up to par this week so I'm pinch hitting for her.

It sure is nice to get back in to the swing of things and see all the friends you have missed all summer and then to make some new ones. So far there are several gals bowling that are new to town or just new to bowling and we really are glad to have them.

DELTA IMPERIALETTS

Potlatch 4-Police 0, Ziegenhorn 3-Barketts 1, Reiss Dairy 3-A&B Pastries 1, Ziegiers Superette 3-Campbell Farms 1, L & A Laundry 3 - Crown Finance 1, Progressive Loan 2 - Ferrell Rental 2.

Wanda Baugher really started out the year with a bang with a big 211 game but Norma Baker took high series with a 523.

My good buddy Vera Gaston took a quick lead in this league with a big 202 game and a 510 series. Oh Vera, what have you done to your average?

Splits picked up this week: Ruby Andres, Almeda Presley 5-10, Harryette Campbell, Lola Maevers, Janie Carter, Betty Kelley 5-7, June Gosnell 4-5, Jane Manley 6-7-10, Lola Maevers, Betty Kelley 8-9, Minnie Ramsey 5-9-10, Ann Pearson 5-8-10, Jean Livingston 5-6, 3-7, Lois Cokenour 3-10, and Erma Wilson 2-5-6.

Hurry up and get well Mary and we'll see you all next week.

Cream butter with parsley and tarragon and use as a spread for French or Italian bread. Slice the bread, but not all the way through; then spread both sides of each slice with some of the herbed butter. Place on foil or wrap in foil and heat in a moderate or hot oven before serving.

Nick Garner Is Four Years Old

Nick Garner celebrated his fourth birthday Aug. 24 at Angel Day nursery.

Attending were Rex DeRoush, Timmie Gardner, Lisa and Scotty Stout, Robert Murrell, Kendal Hicks, Lisa Johnson, Wendy Lindsey, Mike Lee.

Buzz and John Ferrell, Terry and Jimmie Cook, Victoria Byrd, Libby and Kevin Boyer and Roy Lee and Billie Alsup.

Unique Ability

Pigeons and their relatives in the sandgrouse family of the Old World share the unique ability to drink water like a horse, with heads down and bill immersed; other birds must raise their heads to swallow.

'ROUND THE TOWN

Mrs. Tina Parks has visited for a month with her son, M/Sgt. Bobby Jo Parks, and family in Canarillo, Calif. One of the high points of her visit was her trip to Disneyland, along with many other famous and interesting places.

Please don't fail to call your local news, or mail it to Cherie GR 1-0380. Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ellis of Bernie, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Beaird and children Hal, Caroll, and Sharon, and the Misses Becky Sloan and Wilda Runnels, spent last weekend in the Ozarks vacationing.

This Labor Day weekend found the Bob Scotts and children, Colleen and Charles, flying to Hamburg, Iowa, for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carpenter.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Patterson had as guests last week in their home, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Richard and children of Bridgeton. This Sunday and Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Crowell of Osage Beach, were guests of the Pattersons. Their uncle, Roy Crowell, also visited with them.

Mrs. Phyllis Dover, 800 Pine, and daughters, Mrs. Bobbie Limbaugh and Mrs. Sue Kemper and daughter Lisa of Decatur, Ill., were visitors Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dover, 603 Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Dickie and Laura Denise of Port Byron, Ill., spent the Labor Day weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louie Dickie and Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Abernathy and Leslie. While here Laura Denise celebrated her second birthday at a party at the Louie Dickie home. Cake, ice cream and coffee were served. Guests were the Lonnie Dickies, the Abernathys and Leslie and Mrs. Irene Crawford.

More Birds In Your Bag

Doves, unlike quail, provide three distinct methods of hunting: feeding ground, waterhole, and flyway. With or without a dog, the hunter walks-up quail; but two methods of dove shooting actually are stand hunting. The hunter takes a position at a waterhole or on a flyway and waits for the doves to come in.

Although the stand is an effortless way to hunt, it is not easy --that is, if you count your hulls in comparison with the bag. A flying dove seems to be a large target -- because of wingspread and tail feathers -- but its speed of flight and aerial antics make it a difficult bullseye, particularly in late season.

Doves, I believe, attract more hunters inexperienced in wing shooting than do other types of birds. Ratio of hulls to doves in the bag is an indication; and also suggests consistent pre-season practice with the shotgun for pattern check, for conditioning and for gun familiarity.

Few, if any, knowing hunters would go afield with a rifle that they personally had not sighted-in; yet many hunters go after doves each year with shotguns that have not been patterned or corrected. Successful dove shooting demands a dense, uniform pattern that prints where the gunner is looking -- provided he's mounting and cheeking gun correctly.

When checking shotgun pattern, I try to duplicate actual shooting conditions -- that is, as much as possible with a still target. I mark off a 40-yard range and set up regular pattern target or a piece of cardboard large enough to accommodate a 30-inch circle, with 3-inch bullseye in center. Dropping back some 45 yards, I walk toward the target -- eyes roving, not concentrated -- then shoulder the gun and fire quickly from the 40-yard marker.

After perforating several targets at 40 yards, it's no trouble to count the holes and figure out percentage of pellets in the circle. I quarter the circle with pencil marks to make counting easier and to determine where and how much the concentration is -- whether right or left, high or low. The average of several targets provides a pretty good picture of where pellets are striking in relations to the bullseye.

It's advantageous to try all available dove loads in various brands because some will pattern better than others in any one gun. Try both No. 7 1/2 and 8 in various loads until you find the most uniform pattern. This may or may not be a high velocity load but give the lighter loads a thorough testing -- you may be surprised at the results.

The handloader has an advantage over the counter buyer because he can develop specific loads for specific game under various shooting conditions. And he usually learns quickly that more powder and more shot don't necessarily mean a better pattern. In a 20-gauge OU, for which I handload, I get better patterns with 7/8 oz. of shot than with 1 ounce.

High velocity is not a cure-all; it's pellets in the bird that count. A good pattern is easier to hit with -- even if the pellets are traveling a bit slower.

Handloading provides another advantage for the scatter gunner, particularly the double owner. With special loads he can convert his modified and full choke into improved cylinder and modified or get tight patternsn from more open bores.

If the pattern doesn't concentrate where you're looking, you may not be cheeking the comb correctly or stock dimensions may need altering in length, pitch, comb height, or thickness. Check with an experienced shooter or gunsmith until the gun throws its pattern where you're looking.

Locating doves requires little practice. If they're around, the hunter will see them in trees, on wires, taking gravel or in the feeding areas. Doves usually concentrate around feed grounds, waterholes or roosts. They're gregarious birds, and perch or fly in pairs or flights, numbers depending on concentration of doves in the vicinity.

Walking-up feeding doves is similar to hunting quail without a dog. Unlike a covey rise, however, doves get up in singles, doubles or staggered relays as the hunter moves through the feeding ground. Although its rising flight usually is not as jet-propelled as the bobwhite's, the dove resorts to more aerial antics in its takeoff. One may rise rapidly and head for the trees; the next dove may be a straight-away winging slowly just over the sunflower stalks; and the third one may bank sharply right or left. Seldom will one particular lead apply to the next flush.

It's this variation in takeoff that makes feed ground hunting an interesting challenge.

Doves like most any type of grain, and will concentrate around fields both before and after harvesting. Feed grain -- maize particularly -- will attract most of the doves in any one area. Harvested fields of peanuts also results in a heavy concentration of doves.

THE DOVE'S gregarious nature makes them susceptible to decoys.

August Welfare Is $169,000

A total of $169,444.03 was paid to 2,180 cases by the Scott county welfare department in August, Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, county welfare director, reports.

Old age assistance with 1,264 cases had a total payment of $87,342 or $69.10 per case. Old age assistance nursing care and vendor payments had 55 cases receiving a total of $5,250.03 or $95.45 per case.

Aid to dependent children had 436 cases with 1,400 children receiving a total of $46,709, or $107.13 per case and $33.36 per child.

General relief had 172 cases with 198 persons receiving a total of $11,945, or $69.45 per case and $60.33 per person.

Permanent and total disability had 213 cases receiving $14,998 or $70.41 per case.

Thirty-nine cases on the aid to the blind roll received $3,120 or $80 per case. One blind pension for $80 was paid.

Of the 112 children receiving child welfare services, 54 were protective services, 24 foster home care and 34 services were given to adoptive and unmarried mothers and supplementary services.

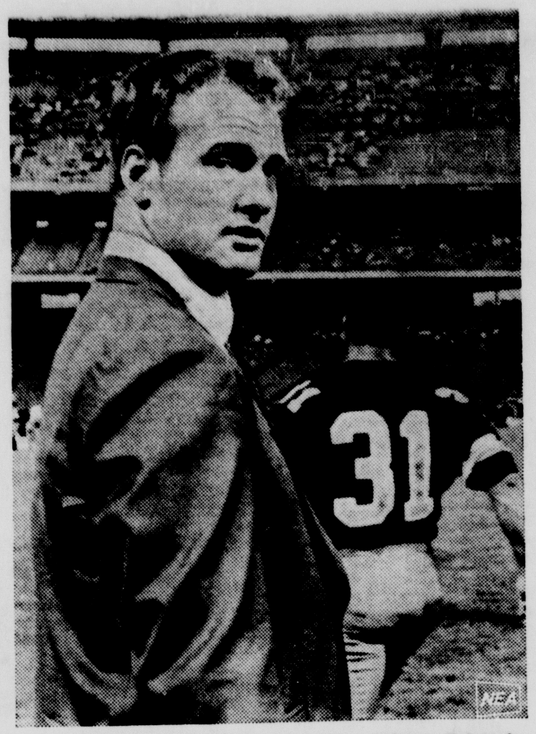
SEMO Intrasquad Game Saturday

DEXTER -- Southeast Missouri State College of Cape Girardeau will hold an intrasquad game Saturday at the high school field.

Many Southeast Missouri stars will return to the Bearcats field for the first time in many years.

Dexter's Vaughn and Bland are among those who will be featured in the game.

TORONTO AP - Almost 500 entries have been received for the North American Karate Championships beginning Monday.



COACH PAUL HORNUNG of the New Orleans Saints is on the sidelines now. A neck injury forced his retirement. Hornung is an assistant backfield coach. His old Green Bay running mate Jim Taylor (31) is also with the Saints.

Football Cards Wind Up Pre-Season Campaign Fri.

ST. LOUIS -- With only one victory to show for three starts, the St. Louis Football Cardinals wind up the pre-season portion of their campaign when they entertain the Detroit Lions here Friday night.

The game, whose proceeds go to benefit the St. Louis Symphony Society, will begin at 8:35 p.m. (CDT).

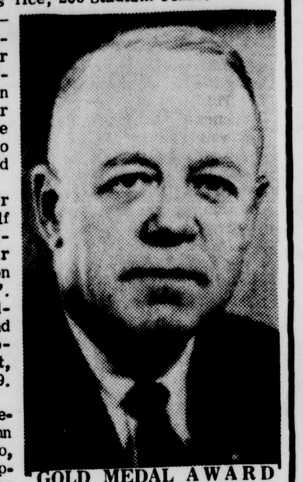
Friday's game will be the first of a pair of 1967 meetings between the Big Red and the Lions. The clubs, which have not met in the regular season since 1961, also will tangle here on October 1.

Detroit, 2-2 for the pre-season campaign, has won two of three games from American Football League foes, and lost to the Baltimore Colts.

Oddly, the Colts are the only victim of the Cardinals, this summer. The Big Red topped Baltimore, 9-5, here on August 21, but has lost to Pittsburgh, New Orleans and Chicago.

Jim Hart, who has completed 61 of 128 passes for 844 yards in the pre-season, again will lead the Cardinal attack, with John Roland and Roy Shivers probably paired in the backfield.

After Friday's game, the Big Red will start preparing for the season opener, schedule here on Sunday, September 17, against the New York Giants in Fran Tarkenton's Eastern Conference debut. Tickets for it, and for all Big Red home games, are on sale at Cardinal ticket office, 200 Stadium Plaza.



GOLD MEDAL AWARD winner of the National Football Foundation is Dr. Frederick Hovde, president of Purdue University. Hovde once was a quarterback at the University of Minnesota.

DRIVER EDUCATION

Mothers of America, pour a cup of coffee, put your feet up and relax. It's school time again. While you enjoy your end-of-the-summer peace and quiet, your thoughts may turn to how drastically things have changed since you were in school. But while you are pondering the new math you and your children will be muddling through this year, chances are good that your teenager is thinking first and foremost about Driver Education. It's his passport to freedom. If your child has the benefit of it, suggest it. Many firms and organizations have prepared helpful material for this purpose.

He takes driving seriously, he should be a capable driver . . . certainly a much better one initially than his mother or father was at his age.

But his education still may be somewhat lacking one vital ingredient: a knowledge of the machine he will command. Many Driver Ed courses are woefully short in the car care phase of training, in such subjects as why brakes fail, why radiators overheat, why engines stall.

What does this have to do with being a good driver? Just this: Your new driver cannot be safe in an unsafe car. And unless he is mechanically inclined to begin with, he may not know the car he is driving is unsafe. He may not recognize loose steering, or a low brake pedal or a broken shock absorber. These things and many other mechanical problems contribute to accident situations.

Why not check into your school's Driver Education course to see if the students are being taught this important aspect of highway safety? If it is not included, suggest it. Many firms and organizations have prepared helpful material for this purpose.

The Safe Car Educational Institute's series of film strips, for example, was produced specifically for Driver Education classes. Called "Car Care for Safety", the series covers the automobile from bumper to bumper with easy to understand sketches and narration.

If your child is ready for Driver Education, take it upon yourself to see that he gets the best training possible. Suggest that your school write for information about "Car Care for Safety". The address is: Safe Car Educational Institute, c/o Motor and Equipment Manufacturers Association, 304 West 58th Street, New York, New York 10019.

TORONTO AP - Danny Pecora of Wheeling, Ill., John Tannehill of Middleport, Ohio, and Del Sweeris of Grand Rapids, Mich., scored two victories apiece in the men's singles events at an international table tennis tourney Friday. The U.S. men defeated Canada 6-1 but the American women lost to Canada 6-3.

Ann Landers

All Men Should Stay Together

Dear Ann: At a recent social gathering there were nine women and four men present, including me. I am thoroughly masculine and am not the least bit interested in female chatter.

After dinner everyone adjourned to the living room and the conversation was taken over by the women. Ten minutes passed and the three men announced that they were going to the library to play cards. I was not asked to join them and spent the entire evening bored stiff, listening to over-the-fence gossip and cooking and cleaning hints.

This same sort of thing occurred with another group. I was greatly offended and told my wife later that I thought this was the height of bad manners. My wife said I was unduly sensitive. I know how to play cards and wish to make it plain that in both cases the host was one of the offending gentlemen.

Will you comment, please?--ST. LOUIS.

Dear St.: Why in the world wound a man sit with nine women while three other males go off to another room?

You should have gotten up and left when the others did. You did not need a special invitation to join the men.

Dear Ann: I am a 15-year-old girl. My brother and his wife live two blocks from us. They have three small children.

Every time my sister-in-law sees me she asks me to sit with their children "tonight" or "tomorrow night," or "next Saturday." I do not get paid. Last week I asked my mother if I had to sit for them and she said, "Not if you don't want to."

Friday morning my sister-in-law called and asked me to be sure to be on time that night because they were going to a party. I told her I was not coming. She was furious and hung up on me. I did not know my mother had told her I would sit.

Now I will never hear the end of it. Do you think I should apologize or what?--BLACK SHEEP

Dear Sheep: Your mother should not have spoken for you in the first place and then neglected to tell you that she did, in the second place.

Your sister-in-law should not ask you to be a babysitter without pay unless she rewards you in other ways.

No, I do not feel that you owe her an apology. I feel, however, that you three ladies should sit down together and have an understanding.

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago you published a letter from a teenager whose friends were killed in an auto accident. That letter hit very close to home because I was the driver of a car that went out of control and two of my dearest friends were killed.

I would glady trade places with either of my friends because life hasn't been worth living since that night. First, there is the horrible feeling of guilt. I was going too fast. I had too many beers. The accident was my fault and I killed my buddies. If I had been hurt, bad I mean, I would have felt better, but I walked away without a scratch.

When I see the parents of the kids who died in my car I feel like a criminal. The crank letters and phone calls still keep coming. They don't help any. Nobody can say anything to me that I haven't already said to myself a hundred times. I know teenagers get sick and tired of adults climbing on their backs about drinking and speeding but maybe if they hear it from one of their own they'll pay some attention. -- GUILTY OF MURDER

Dear Guilty: Here is one letter that should be clipped and pasted to the dashboard of thousands of automobiles around the country. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann: The letter from the couple who was mad because the jewelry store wrote them an "undignified" letter asking them to pay their bill made me see red. They sound like the same people who called their friendly druggist (my husband) at 3 a.m. and asked him to open his store and given them something for Susie's earache.

When he asked if they had called the doctor they said, "We wouldn't think of bothering him at this hour." The friendly druggist got dressed and went out in the bitter cold, opened up the store and fixed the eardrops and aspirin. They said, "Thanks a lot. Charge it."

It's hard to refuse to give people medicine because they owe a bill, but my husband has to pay for his merchandise. He doesn't get it for nothing.

Please, Ann, tell those people out there that merchants are not nasty people. They are ordinary folks who are trying to make a living. And they can't make a living if people don't pay their bills. Thank you. -- MRS. AMERICA

Dear Mrs.: I had a tough time deciding which merchant's letter to print. I received hundreds. They all said the same thing. But you said it best. Thanks.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of The Daily Standard, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

SHOULD YOU SHOVEL SNOW DOWN A MANHOLE? No!

Should you get rid of that mountain of snow on your front sidewalk or driveway to shoveling it down the nearest manhole?

No, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. During the recent 23-inch snowfall that paralyzed Chicago for several days, some folks got the notion that shoving the nasty white stuff down a manhole was an ideal method of snow removal. Their neighbors feared this might cause sewers to freeze or create a backup in residential waste lines.

As a practical matter, the likelihood of either happening is remote, the Bureau says, since the number of people likely to go looking for a manhole during a heavy snowfall is almost certain to be negligible. As for the freezing question, there's enough heat in underground sewers to make a freeze-up just as unlikely.

However, the Bureau points out, in most areas, tampering with manholes by unauthorized persons is against the law. It's also dangerous because you might forget to put the cover back or return it improperly, and someone could fall in.

Final advice: Don't shovel snow down a manhole -- leave it to the "department of streets."

MRS. J. W. BRADEN, JR., East Prairie, and daughter, Tracy Samantha, four months old, watch as another daughter, Melinda Baker, six, works a puzzle.

Mrs. J.W. Braden Jr. Vice President of Jr. Civic Club

Editor's Note: This is the 53rd in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

By RUTH DILLENDER

EAST PRAIRIE -- Mrs. Frances Braden taught tap, ballet and acrobatic dancing for 10 years in Charleston and Wyatt. She is not teaching now but plans to return to the profession.

She spends much of her time caring for her husband, J. W. Braden, Jr., and her two daughters, Melinda Barker, six, a first grader at Doyle elementary school, and Tracy Samantha Braden, four months old.

Braden is manager of the Delta Lumber and Hardware Company.

Mrs. Braden is vice president of the Junior Civic club. The family attends the First Christian church.

Mrs. Braden likes to swim and embroider. Her mother taught her to cook.

Braden is interested in sports.

A treasure in the home is cut glassware that belonged to Mrs. Braden's grandmother.

Favorite recipes of the family are:

CHEESE PIE

Crust:
12 to 14 graham crackers
¼ cup melted butter

Combine finely crumbled crackers and butter. Press into nine-inch pie pan.

Filling:
4 3-ounce packages white cream cheese
¾ cup sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 eggs

Combine ingredients and whip until smooth and light. Pour into graham cracker crust and bake 15 to 20 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Remove from oven and allow to cook for five minutes. Pour following topping over pie:
3½ tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sour cream.

Blend sour cream with sugar and vanilla.

Return pie to oven and bake 10 minutes longer. Place in refrigerator at least five hours before serving.

POUND CAKE

Cream 1 pound pure butter and 3½ cups sugar. Add 10 eggs one at a time. Add 4 cups all purpose flour and 2 cups chopped nuts.

Mix together. Pour into 3 greased loaf pans. Bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour.

STRAWBERRY JELLO SALAD
2 packages strawberry Jello
1 10-ounce package strawberries
1 small can crushed pineapple
2 ripes bananas
1 cup sour cream.

Mix one package Jello, drained pineapple and two bananas mashed. Put in refrigerator and let set until firm. Add one cup sour cream, spreading evenly over Jello. Return to refrigerator to cool. Mix remaining Jello with strawberries and juice. Return the refrigerator to set until very firm. Serve on lettuce leaf.

MEXICAN CORN BREAD
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs beaten
1 can cream style corn
3 tablespoons baking powder
1 cup sour cream
2/3 cup salad oil
1 cup yellow corn meal
½ teaspoon salt
Mix above ingredients.
2 jalopino peppers
1 cup grated cheddar cheese

Pour half of the batter into eight or nine-inch square pan. Sprinkle half of cheese over batter and put strips of peppers on top of cheese. Pour other half of batter over peppers and top with remaining cheese and peppers. Bake in 350 degree oven one hour.

This corn bread recipe was given to Mrs. Braden by her mother.

$100,000 for Law School Sought

COLUMBIA -- A three-month campaign by the Law School Foundation to raise $100,000 "to provide a margin of excellence" for the school of law at the University of Missouri, was announced jointly by Dr. Joe E. Covington, law school dean, and Clarence O. Woolsey, Springfield, foundation president.

Also announced was the appointment of Lowell L. Knipmeyer of Kansas City as general chairman of the campaign.

The school's 1,200 graduates in Missouri will be contacted personally and its 600 graduates outside the state will be solicited by mail or telephone. Campaign workers, all alumni, will begin their efforts in mid-October.

The campaign is being coordinated through the University Development Office.

The Foundation seeks a minimum of $100,000 in cash and pledges to be paid over a three-year period to provide "those items which will contribute directly to the quality of education in the School of Law," according to Dean Covington.

The basic goal is to secure funds for what he called "qualitative extras." These will include student scholarships, faculty aids, and a visiting lecturer series that would bring to the campus outstanding judges, educators and lawyers. However, donors may designate their contributions "for specific acceptable purposes."

Knipmeyer, who received his law degree in 1932, recently was elected a trustee of the Foundation, an independently chartered group of law school alumni.

His vice chairmen in the drive are Kenneth Teasdale, '18, St. Louis; A. D. Sappington, '36, Columbia; and Gerald Rowan, '40, Kansas City.

First Load of Beans Delivered At Hayti

HAYTI -- Bert Richardson delivered the first load of this year's soybeans to the Missouri Farmers Association elevator Tuesday afternoon.

The 235-bushel load tested 13.5 per cent moisture and 56 pounds to the bushel. The variety was Scott. Richardson said they were making about 30 bushels to the acre.

Mrs. Herbert Henderson, office manager of the elevator, said she had not heard of any other Missouri soybeans being harvested.

School Gets Own Storm Shelter

ORRICK, Mo. (AP)-- Students returning to classes Tuesday at Orrick High School found the building boasting a new storm shelter aimed at preventing repetition of a tragic tornado which hit the school last winter.

Two pupils were killed and 16 injured when the twister hit Orrick last Jan. 24, and the school was damaged extensively.

Included in the $357,000 reconstruction program still underway was installation of a concrete and steel reinforced storm shelter under the stage in the school gymnasium.

The shelter will provide refuge for up to 350 youngsters, and Supt. Berl W. Carpenter said he believes Orrick is the only school in Missouri to have an area specifically designed for such use. Orrick is about 35 miles east of Kansas City.

Seven classrooms wrecked by the tornado have been rebuilt, as has an industrial arts-vocational agriculture building adjacent to the main structure.

Three other classrooms and school offices are expected to be ready by next month, and the gym in which a girls' physical education class was trapped by the twister is scheduled to be rebuilt by mid November.

"We'll have a full curriculum and use the elementary school cafeteria for some classes," said Sup Carpenter.

He added about the reconstructed school:

"It's better than anything we have ever had. But it was a terrible way to get it."

"Gee, Mom. Why doesn't Crest bring out a second flavor that tastes like mint?"

"Look, Mom. They did!"

Now cavity-fighting Crest comes in two great flavors—Regular and New Mint flavor. Both have fluoride—the most effective cavity-fighter ever put in a toothpaste. In fact, of the five leading toothpastes Crest is the only one with fluoride. So have regular checkups, watch treats, and brush after eating with the cavity-fighter, Crest. Regular or New Mint flavor.

"Crest has been shown to be an effective decay-preventive dentifrice that can be of significant value when used in a conscientiously applied program of oral hygiene and regular professional care." — Council on Dental Therapeutics, American Dental Association

Coffee Corner
by Cherie

You wouldn't believe today--only a mother, and I think perhaps a mother of sons could truly appreciate this day. I rose early, refreshed, and looking forward to the morn as this is the day I was to receive a new and much needed appliance to help me out with my family dinner for 17 tomorrow evening, and this was also the day I play bridge and some lovely lady comes in and picks up the debris and makes all nice and spic and span. So I arose, sprinkled clothes, got one fellow off to school, cleaned out drawers and moved furniture to get ready for my new life saver, and was off breathless but happy for a stimulating game of bridge. And why is it when you are so excited about a game of cards you never seem to hold a hand with anything in it all day long?

Well, that was me today. So, after a boring game of bridge, I returned home to begin preparing dinner for tonight and stirring up salads and rolls for tomorrow evening, and this you'll never believe-I only wish I didn't have to. While I am in the midst of this, in walks this extremely kind neighbor, (and I do mean extremely kind, cause if he had done it at my house and on my floor I would have killed him), walked in with my youngest and was he a mess (and I saw him after she had cleaned him up). He, for some unknown reason, I never did get anything more out of him than, "Well, they shouldn't have left it there."! had tried to pull a quart can of white paint off of a shelf above his head, and the whole dern thing, minus the lid, fell 'plunk' right on top of him. He isn't very big--that was a lot of paint---and just use your imagination, I might add use lots of it as there was sure lots of paint used. Kind neighbor had scrubbed him well but on vital area like the hair upon his head was still saturated. I washed, scrubbed, cursed, and scrubbed some more, but still no avail. Finally, I poured the only form of paint remover on that mop of curly hair I could find around the house, (finger nail polish), and made a teeny headway. If you see Brete in the near future, just bear in mind that he doesn't really need Head and Shoulders, he is still just flaking off that accidental dunking. I eventually quit, and went back to the rolls and salad which were now rather diluted by my tears of frustration, and waited patiently for dad to come home and bestow his wrath upon the little one, and that new appliance I was so desperate for upon me. And what comes in the door? Only the straw that broke the camels' back, thats what! My husband, but no appliance, now what kind of a choice is that? No appliance in fact, for another 10 days----and who's having company for dinner than? Well, I don't think I can bear it, so if you hear an ambulance roaring through the streets and headed in the direction of Farmington, with a woman wrapped in a strait jacket strapped in the back, just bow your head and say a silent prayer, cause brother about now I need it!

New Anti-Poverty Group Organized

KENNETT-Three counties in the Bootheel-Dunklin, Pemiscot and Stoddard-have a new poverty program corporation which has taken the name of the Bootheel Economic Encouragement Program, Inc.

The new corporation was formed Saturday as a possible replacement for the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corp. in administering poverty programs in the three-county area.

Each of the 12 community action agencies in the three counties is being asked by the new corporation to elect two representatives as members of the board of directors for the new agency. The local CAAs are also asked to hold the elections in time for their delegates to attend a meeting to be held Wednesday.

The temporary nine-man board of directors for the new corporation has three members from each of the counties; Dunklin County-Rev. William Donovan of Malden, Larney McNeal, Jr. of Hermandale and William B. Morgan of Kennett; Pemiscot County-William L. Jones of Hayti, Leonil Muir of Caruthersville and B. T. Owen of Wardell; Stoddard County-Mrs. Sherry B. Barker of Dexter, William O'Herin of Bernie and Lincoln Scherer of Bell City. At the meeting Wednesday these original directors will be replaced by the newly elected delegates.

At the Saturday meeting, the temporary board of directors approved articles of incorporation, adopted bylaws and elected officers.

Elected as temporary officers were; William B. Morgan, president; Rev. William Donovan, vice-president; Lenoir Muir, secretary; and William O'Herin, treasurer.

The bylaws provide that the terms of the original directors will expire on September 13, 1967, or as soon after that time as five of the 12 community action agencies in the three-county area have elected their delegates to the new board of directors.

Man Caught Trying To Slip Space Data Out of County

BALTIMORE, Md., (AP) -- Federal customs agents arrested a Japanese scientist after, the agents said, they discovered three crates labled "used household goods" contained information on a U.S. space project.

Charged with making a false customs declaration was Dr. Hidehumi Hasuna, 39, formerly a researcher for a National Aeronautics and Space Administration project at University Hospital.

The material was described as the complete and only record of a $300,000 study on the effects of living in space on the human brain.

John M. Dolan, assistant customs agent, said the crates seized aboard the Pioneer Moon in Baltimore harbor contained data tables, slides, documents, records, computations and other information.

Stephen H. Sachs, U.S. attorney for Maryland, said the material was not regarded as secret.

Thrift Aides Make Clothes

MORLEY-The Central County thrift shop aides, Mrs. Jake Smith, Mrs. Donner Campbell, Mrs. Rendy Jenkins, and volunteer workers work in the center, making clothes for needy families and piecing and quilting quilts. They also make over and repair used donated clothes.

Senior citizens in the area will meet in the center Sept. 15 from 2 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. to organize a senior citizen program under the supervision of the family service aide, Mrs. Bill Stephens. Anyone in the Central School county area 50 years old and up, may participate.

The group will meet every other week, on the second and fourth Fridays from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The program will consist of arts and crafts and educational programs. There will also be a social hour, with songs and games.

The young Homemakers will have a similar program Wednesday afternoons from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

On Sept. 15, a film, Beyond These Hills, a Rural Community Action Film, with Billy Graham, will be shown.

The Romper room school, under the supervision of Mrs. Phillip Newman will reopen Monday. A survey has been made of the children, ages 3 - 5, in the area. Anyone who has been missed may come to the center office and enroll their child. The school will be conducted from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

The children in the Vanduser summer recreation program were taken on a Wiener roast, Aug. 22 to the Clayton park. The women who helped with the children, were Mrs. Bill Foster, Mrs. Joe Hill, Mrs. Wilma Simpson, Mrs. Bernice Owens, Mrs. Lee J. True and Mrs. Woodrow Beavers.

Report From Washington
Stuart Symington

VIETNAM HEARINGS

The Senate Military Preparedness Subcommittee, of which I am a member, has now concluded for a time its hearings on the air war in North Vietnam. The testimony of the witnesses -- members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and other military officials involved with the conduct of these air operations -- will be made available to the public in a few weeks. In addition, a preliminary report will be available.

There is no one who believes more in civilian control of the military than do I, and if the decision of the top civilians of this Administration has been and is against attacking many military targets located in North Vietnam, that policy should of course be followed by the military.

Unfortunately, however, it is becoming increasingly apparent that many people have been led to the inaccurate belief that all members of the Chiefs of Staff as well as the Commander in Chief of Pacific forces -- CINCPAC, Admiral Sharp -- have approved and do approve the heavy limitations placed on the attacking of military targets over North Vietnam by civilian heads.

I would earnestly hope that all Americans interested in this problem, a problem so vitally important to the future structure of the military posture essential to the security of the United States, would refrain from reaching conclusions to this matter until they have had the opportunity to read the testimony of these witnesses.

FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION LOANS AND GRANTS

A bill designed to provide loans to farmers to help them supplement their incomes by starting small non-farm enterprises has passed the Senate and awaits House action.

The measure, which I co-sponsored, would amend the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961 which authorizes loans to farmers only for the purpose of improving their farms. Under this bill, farmers would be able to obtain loans for such farm-located enterprises as machine shops, processing and marketing of locally produced products; and woodworking, leathercraft and handicraft shops.

An individual who has farmed for two years could apply for a loan to convert his farm to recreational use.

The bill also increases total authorization for rural water and sewer system development grants from $50 million to $150 million. The annual limit on planning grants would be raised from $5 million to $25 million. Loans for water and sewer projects would be made only if they were unavailable from private or cooperative sources.

AUTHORIZATION FOR THE HIGHWAY BEAUTIFICATION PROGRAM

The Senate has passed and sent to the House an $85 million 1967 authorization for the Highway Beautification Program. Of this, $15 million is for implementation of the control program on outdoor advertising and junkyards, and $70 million is for landscaping and developing scenic easements.

This legislation is directed at controlling, not eliminating, outdoor advertising.

According to the Secretary of Transportation, the penalty provision which would eliminate 10 percent of a state's authorized Federal highway fund, will not be invoked through calendar year 1968 and probably not for a reasonable time through 1969. This will give more states which do not now have the authority to enter into agreements with the Secretary the opportunity to decide what approach they wish.

New Troops Ticketed for Front Lines

SAIGON (AP) — The 45,000 to 50,000 new U.S. troops ticketed for duty in South Vietnam by early next spring will include a larger percentage of front-line combat men than ever before.

At least 75 per cent of the new troops—probably 20 battalions or more—will be "trigger pullers," it was learned today.

The reason for the increase in combat soldiers is that over the last two years the United States had to build an enormous logistics base as well as help fight the war. The logistics base is now said to be capable of supporting the new combat troops with a proportionately much smaller increase in its own strength.

At the same time, it also was learned that the U.S. Command believes the estimated enemy strength in South Vietnam is perhaps much lower than the 297,000 carried in weekly U.S. headquarters reports over the past several weeks.

It is known that some high-ranking U.S. officers feel the figure is meaningless because it includes at least 57,000 men and women who are political cadres and administrative types.

American intelligence lists 230,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong main force units in South Vietnam, plus another 120,000 local guerrillas.

The American command, it is understood, now has a much larger base of solid intelligence, including more documents, better interrogators and more informers. A broad new intelligence analysis of the enemy strength is being made and results are expected to be made public in a month.

The new American forces scheduled for Vietnam will include several helicopter units. The U.S. Command wants to get the new troops into South Vietnam as soon as possible.

There is no target date, but by present reckoning, barring unforeseen logistical problems, all of the new troops can be expected in the country by next March or April instead of July as earlier indicated. One new Army brigade, the 198th Light Infantry, is expected here by the end of this year.

The command now lists 462,000 U.S. troops in South Vietnam, as of the week ending Aug. 26. There are another 69,000 U.S. military men involved in air war operations out of Thailand and Guam.

Tycoon Accused Of Holding Wife Captive

LONDON (AP) — American grocery millionaire Huntington Hartford was involved in a scuffle when his estranged 25-year-old wife fled his London home with the aid of a former policeman, her legal representative said today.

Diane Brown Hartford, who is suing her 58-year-old husband for divorce, told her lawyers: "I was kept a captive in the house."

The incident occurred at Hartford's house in Red Lion Yard, Mayfair, on Aug. 16, the lawyer said.

Jack Jenner, 39, a member of the staff of the London legal firm of Crane and Hawkins, described the affair.

"Mrs. Hartford telephoned her American lawyer, Burton Monasch of Berger, Monasch and Mandelstam. As a result of her transatlantic telephone call, we received a cable from Monasch asking us to extend her every assistance," he said.

"Our senior partner, Peter Crane, telephoned her at the Mayfair house and then told me to go along and see what I could do to help her. I went along to the house at about 10.30 a.m., accompanied by a former policeman, John Craig, who now works for Q-Men, a firm of London private inquiry agents."

Jenner was asked about a report that there were security guards at the house. He said: "There were no guards there when we were there—which is just as well, or we would not have got her out.

"I rang the bell and Mrs. Hartford herself let us in. We went upstairs and she was packing her cases. She seemed quite composed but was obviously a little agitated, as anyone would be in the circumstances.

"Mr. Hartford was in the house and asked us who we were. We told him we had come to see his wife.

"While she was getting ready I kept a taxi waiting outside in Red Lion Yard. As we went to leave there was an incident with Mr. Hartford. He obviously didn't want his wife to leave and there was a bit of a scuffle.

"We took her down and put her in the taxi and I went with her straight to London Airport and she got away on an afternoon flight to New York. She didn't say a great deal about the situation but said she hadn't been allowed to go out of the house, even for a walk."

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

"IF EVERY household just spent a few cents for a package of seed, or a few bulbs, the impact upon our American landscape and city scene would be beyond the capabilities of any artist to capture on canvas."

The words are those of Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who proposes the first week of October as "National Spring Garden Planning Week."

Magnuson, urging Congress to approve his plan, says planting activities at that time of year would "represent a big step toward the national beautification goals.

"The national beautification program is one in which each of us must play a role if it is to succeed," he said. "The seed has begun to grow and with our support will play a significant part in making the country a more attractive place to live."

Sen. Magnuson's wife is chairman of the national committee for Spring Garden Planting Week. Last year, many governors proclaimed such weeks within their states.

Magnuson says the "key ingredient in the program is the individual action of people in and around their own homes."

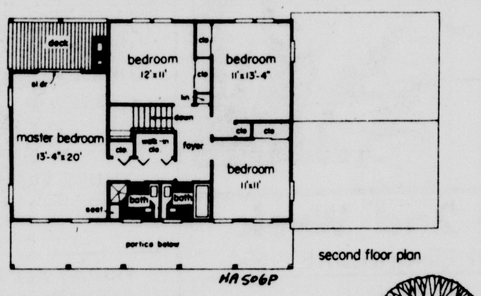
This, he adds, can take the form of a "formal garden, a large bed of flowers, a small parking strip or a window box in an apartment."

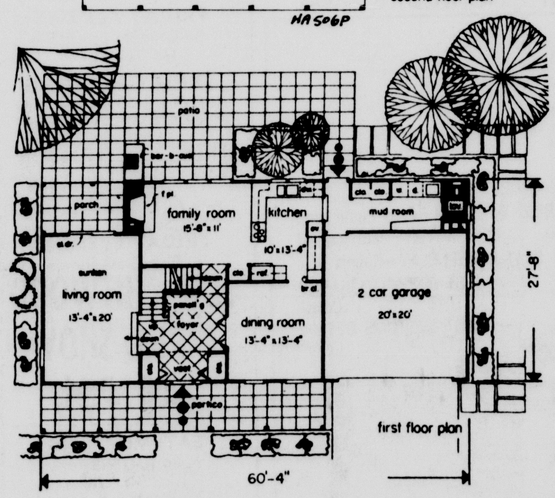
Happy Anniversary

This year is the 100th anniversary of the hybrid tea rose. This rose is a cross between the hybrid Perpetual (which Jackson & Perkins recalls was the queen of the rose world from 1840 to 1890) and the Tea Rose, a hybrid imported from China in the 18th Century. Hybrid teas produce large roses lovely in bud and flower form.

PLANNING FOR SPRING — Mrs. Warren G. Magnuson, wife of Sen. Magnuson, D-Wash., picks tulips from bulbs she planted in the fall.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS





SOUTHERN ELEGANCE — This type of home, with its two-story high colonnade, connotates a gracious way of life. Plan HA506P is comfortable (2,022 square feet) but modest enough to fit most budgets. The vestibule has closets on both sides. Folding doors lead to the dining room. Opposite is the formal living room, a three-exposure expanse sunken two steps. The family room is separated from the kitchen only by kitchen cabinets. Upstairs, the three children's bedrooms are insulated from each other's sounds by closets. Architect is Samuel Paul, 89-30 161 St., Jamaica, N.Y.

Blair Resigns From Bench

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Sam C. Blair resigned Tuesday from the Kansas City Court of Appeals to return to his home in Jefferson City and practice law.

Blair, 63, said he did not plan to run for office and would not sit on the bench any more. He was Cole County circuit judge 26 years before being appointed to the Court of Appeals in 1965 by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Before becoming circuit judge Blair was an assistant U. S. district attorney who helped prosecute the late T.J. Pendergast.

He is the brother of the late Gov. James T. Blair and Jefferson City Postmaster William C. Blair.

Stoddard Welfare Payments Decrease

DEXTER — Welfare payments in August showed a decrease over the same month a year ago, according to Leon Ward, County Welfare Director. In Aug. of this year the total was $177,393.71 as compared to $179,714, a year ago.

Drug vendor payments last month amounted to $8,545.19 and dental vendor payments were $558. A year ago, drug vendor payments were $6,528.53 and dental vendor payments amounted to $713.

Heading the list for the past month was old age assistance to 1500 persons which amounted to $104,906.71; aid to dependent children, 986 children was $34,-072.

General relief for 282 persons during Aug. amounted to $17,470., aid to the blind, 41 persons, $3,280., and blind pension, one person, $80.

A year ago, old age assistance for 1519 persons amounted to $104,569., aid to dependent children, 1091 persons, $37,826., general relief, 274 persons, $17,-183, permanent and total disability, 219 persons, $16,456, aid the the blind, 45 persons, $3,600 and one blind pension was $80.

Winning Artist Claims No Knowledge Of Abstract Art

LONDON (AP) — A housewife who admits she knows nothing about abstract art Tuesday won an award for the best abstract painting of 1967.

After being congratulated by Mrs. Harold Wilson, wife of the British prime minister, Brenda Jeanes said in an interview:

"I've dabbled with paints, but I can honestly say this is the first time I ever tried to do an abstract."

What was her technique?

"Well," she laughed, "I started in the upper left-hand corner and just painted down and across."

Why?

"Because that way the paint doesn't smudge."

Her winning award was called "Road of Infinity," and of its message, Mrs. Jeanes, the mother of a 15-year-old daughter, said:

"It's intended to depict life from the fetus to infinity, and the struggle for the first breath of life. The section of rectangles indicate the cut-and-dried life one might hope to live, passing on to life's trials which are a reality.

"The small white sections denote tranquility, and the circle complete peace."

She stood back, squinted at the painting and added: "It also looks a bit like the southeastern coast of the United States — you know, Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia."

Edmondson Draws Two-Year Sentence

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — George Ben Edmondson, who built a successful career as a selftaught engineer in Canada, was sentenced Tuesday to two years for escape.

Circuit Judge James T. Riley turned down Edmondson's appeal for a five-year suspended sentence.

Edmondson was serving a 10-year prison sentence for an armed robbery in Springfield when he escaped from a work detail in 1965.

He became project engineer for the West German pavilion at Expo 67 and had landed another engineering job when recognized and returned to the United States.

Their Difference

The religious holidays of Easter and Passover vary from year to year in their dates, and often in their sequence, because of the different calendars followed by Christianity and Judaism.

THE FIRST COPY of The Signal at Chaffee, comes off the press. Co-publishers Karl von Kessel, left, and Bob Kielhofner, take a look at the paper purchased from Warren Millham. The new owners have combined the old Chaffee Signal and the Oran News. The paper is the ninth weekly publication printed on the Daily Standard's Web offset press.

Chaffee Paper Has New Owners

CHAFFEE - Karl von Kessel and R. H. Kielhofner announced repurchase of the weekly newspaper formerly known as "The Chaffee Signal."

In the future, the paper will be titled "The Signal" and will be a consolidation of "The Chaffee Signal" and the "Oran News," they said.

Kielhofner and Von Kessel previously owned the paper and sold it to Mr. and Mrs. Warren Millham, from whom they bought it back.

They plan to be joint editors and publishers, they said. Remaining positions on the staff have not been assigned.

Kielhofner stated the paper will be assembled at its office and then will be printed on an offset press at Sikeston. Publishing date is each Wednesday, he added.

Ichord Discloses Interest in Race for Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Rep. Richard H. Ichord, 8th District Democratic congressman from Houston, Mo., says he is considering running against Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo. for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

He said he hopes to make up his mind by the first of next month.

In a radio interview he also said he thought Long should make a full explanation of the referral fees he has received from Morris Shenker, St. Louis lawyer and chief counsel for convicted Teamster boss James Hoffa.

Long has denied the fees had anything to do with Hoffa.

If he does not run for the Senate, Ichord said he would seek renomination in the 8th Conressional District. He expressed himself as satisfied with the way the legislature realigned the district.

Rosberry Promoted to Foreman

James Roseberry has been promoted to special maintenance foreman of the highway department and has been assigned to the Sikeston area.

Mrs. Geniece Latham has been promoted to senior stenographer.

Lawrence April has been promoted to inspection assistant.

James Johnson has been promoted from construction inspector to CART fund inspector.

Nine maintenance employes have been promoted from regular equipment operators to maintenancemen.

They are Jerry Britt, East Prairie; Paul Jaco, Hiram; Donald Murray Williamsville; Lowell Pettigrew, Risco; Harvell Phillips, Wardell; Paul Rennier, Morehouse; Charles Rhodes, Matthews; Curtis Tipler, Bragg City and Roy Williams, Sikeston.

William Pedigo of the New Madrid resident office has been promoted to inspection assistant.

Bill Williamson, district payroll clerk, has been granted a military leave. Replacing him is Billy Overfield of Sikeston.

Gary Gavan, construction rodman, was also granted military leave. Those who have returned following fulfillment of their military obligation are Glen Graham, construction rodman, and Donald Moore, surveys rodman.

The following wage rate employes have been promoted to maintenancemen: Lonny Blasingame, Gordon Deason, Charles Hester, Lawrence Malney, Morris McLean, Cecil Murray and Edward Ubelhor.

Highway Wives met Aug. 2 at the El Capri for their monthly dinner meeting. There were 16 members present. The group welcomed Reta Miller as a new member. The president, Ann Yarnell, presided and presented plans and ideas for the Christmas party. Canasta, bridge and bingo were played after the business meeting. Hostesses for the September meeting will be Bette Sorrells and Kay Sprout.

POULTRY MUST BE IN "CHICKEN SOUP"

For consumers who may have wondered whether the chicken was merely waved over their "chicken soup," there's assurance now of its presence.

Effective September 1, poultry soups are required to contain at least two percent poultry meat, on a ready-to-serve basis. A new U. S. Department of Agriculture regulation prohibits labeling of soups as "Chicken. . ." or "Turkey. . . " unless this minimum is met.

Designed to help assure consumers that they will find enough poultry meat in their soup to merit such a label, this ruling applies to dried, condensed, frozen and liquid soups. Manufacturers must either increase the "meat" content or qualify the name.

Minimum content standards have been set previously for poultry pies, canned boned and shredded poultry, poultry chow mein and numerous other such products.

This regulation is part of the consumer protection programs administered by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service.

Water Level of Lake Lowered

MEMPHIS--Lowering the water level at Lake Wappapello began Monday as scheduled, Col. James A. Vivian, District Engineer, said.

The 359-foot mean sea level elevation, normal for this time of year, will be reduced 6 1/2 feet by Sept. 21 so that engineers can examine the dam's control structure to see what effect 25 years of wear have had on it.

The Corps of Engineers has planned to drawdown to permit the inspection of the structure during the period when least rainfall is normally expected, basing their computations on official records of rainfall over the portions of the St. Francis River basin most likely to be affected.

Immediately after the inspection and the completion of repairs, which may be necessary, the lake will be allowed to refill to its normal level. Colonel Vivian said that, unless major maintenance problems are encountered, the reservoir may return to the 359-foot level by late November, depending upon the amount of rain over the hilly area which drains into Lake Wappapello.

Bank Board Chairman Resigns

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- R. Crosby Kemper Sr., stepped down Tuesday as board chairman of the City National Bank and Trust Co., the city's third largest commercial bank.

His son, R. Crosby Kemper Jr. who is president, was given the added position of chief executive officer. Charles G. Young Jr. will succeed the retiring Kemper as board chairman.

The elder Kemper, 74, joined City National in 1919.

FOOD STAMP PROGRAM REPORTS GAINS OVER YEAR AGO

The number of needy folks in the Midwest taking part in the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Food Stamp Program rose 35 percent from June, 1966 to June, 1967. Total participation came to 570,231 in a 10-state area.

Recipients bought $7,322,219 worth of food coupons, and received an additional $3,310,813 in free or bonus coupons. The number of projects jumped from 89 to 283 over the year -- a gain of 215 percent.

Those persons certified as eligible by their local welfare office use the money they would ordinarily spend for food to purchase food stamps. Additional stamps received over what they purchase provide them with extra buying power. All foods, except imported items, can be bought with the stamps.

In the Midwest, there were 146,382 participants in Illinois; 26,290 in Indiana; 16,428 in Iowa; and 74,685 in Michigan. Other state figures included Minnesota, 42,642; Missouri, 21,826; Nebraska, 12,212; North Dakota, 2,338; Ohio, 291,790; and Wisconsin, 25,374.

Nationally, the number of projects soared from 324 to 838, and persons participating rose 52 1/2 percent to 1,829,052 from June to June.

If You Were the Judge

Marijuana on County Property No Defense

By Jack Strauss, LL.B

Officer Reilly had a beat that included the county court house. And every day, he watched with great interest and suspicion as Knoby would diligently and carefully water and care for certain plants that were located just behind the judges' parking lot. And, while he had an annoying feeling that Knoby was up to something no good, Officer Reilly just couldn't put his finger on what it was that he thought Knoby was up to.

Each day for three months, Officer Reilly passed and repassed the parking lot but all that came to him was a pleasant smile from Knoby as the latter tended his plants. Then, it suddenly struck Officer Reilly what Knoby was up to. He was growing marijuana right under the noses of the judges and law officers.

Officer Reilly cuffed Knoby and brought him before the bar on charges of unlawfully possessing the illegal plant.

"He took care of those plants," Officer Reilly told the judge, "as if they were the last plants on the earth."

"Maybe so," retorted Knoby a little wistfully. "But I never possessed them. They were on county property and were the property of the county. Therefore, while you may be able to throw the county in jail, you can't jail me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jug Knoby?

This is how the judge ruled: Knoby went to jail. The judge held that a person possesses a thing when he takes care of it, manages and controls it. In this case, while Knoby may have been growing his marijuana on county property, it was no defense since he still possessed it.

Program for Psychiatric Training Starts

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- The Division of Mental Diseases announced Tuesday the start of a psychiatric residency training program at the Nevada State Hospital in cooperation with the Kirksville College of Osteopathy and Surgery.

Dr. George A. Ulett, head of the division, said the program will include three years of active training with an obligation for two years of service. It is the only one of its kind in the nation.

It will be under the direction of Dr. Joe Combs, new director of residency training, and Dr. Fleda M. Brigham, professor of psychiatry at the Kirksville college.

Four osteopathic physicians already have been named for the residency training.

They helped every one his neighbor; and every one said to his brother, Be of good courage. (Isaiah 41:6)

PRAYER: O Lord, who art always at our side in time of need, help us this day to be mindful of our neighbors. Help us never to be so caught up in our own selfish desires that we have no time to listen to the wishes of others. Help us especially to make time for Thee. In the name of Christ. Amen.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 6, the 249th day of 1967. There are 116 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1620, the Pilgrims sailed on the Mayflower from Plymouth, England.

On this date—

In 1898, Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands was crowned.

In 1899, U.S. Secretary of State John Hay proposed an open door policy to give foreign powers equal trade rights in China.

In 1901, President William McKinley was shot by an anarchist in Buffalo, N.Y. He died Sept. 14.

In 1909, Arctic explorer Robert E. Peary sent word that he had reached the North Pole five months earlier.

In 1914, the first battle of the Marne began in World War I.

In 1940, in World War II, King Carol II of Romania abdicated as the Germans prepared to occupy his country.

Ten years ago — The U.N. Security Council voted to hold off any formal action on a new territorial dispute between Israel and Jordan.

Five years ago — U.S. Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall visited Soviet Premier Khrushchev at Khrushchev's estate on the Black Sea.

One year ago — Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd of South Africa was stabbed to death.

Mrs. Hudson Dies Monday

CHARLESTON -- Mrs. Millie Wright Hudson, 84, died at her home at 11:30 p.m. Monday after an illness of five years.

Born Sept. 2, 1883 at Preston, she had lived at Charleston 10 months.

She was a member of the Methodist church of Buffalo.

Her husband, Dr. Frank Hudson, died in 1930.

Surviving are one son, Frank Hudson, Charleston, and one sister, Mrs. Burr Randles, Denver.

Services were 9 a.m. today at McMikle Funeral Home with the Rev. J. W. House officiating. Burial was in a Buffalo cemetery.

James Brewer Dies Monday

CHARLESTON -- James Brewer, 69, of Cairo, a retired farmer, died at an Anna, Ill., hospital at 11:55 p.m. Monday.

Born Nov. 29, 1897, at Charleston, he had lived in the Thompson Bend community until moving to Cairo a year ago.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Brewer; one sister, Mrs. Florence Henry, Cairo, and two brothers, Eli Brewer, Wyatt, and Hunter Brewer, Cairo.

The body is at Sparks Funeral Home.

Mrs. E.H. Percy Dies Tuesday

CANALOU -- Mrs. Clementine Percy, 88, died Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., in the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston. She was the widow of E. H. Percy, former owner of the Percy Gin. He died in March, 1944.

She suffered a fractured right hip on July 28.

Born in Illinois, Feb. 19, 1879, she was a member of the Sikeston Order of Eastern Star, the Daughters of American Revolution, the First Methodist church, Sikeston, and the White Shrine, Cape Girardeau.

She is survived by five nieces and two nephews.

Services will be held in the Welsh Funeral Chapel in Sikeston, Thursday at 2p.m. with the Rev. Larry McClarty, pastor of the Baptist church, and the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, pastor of the Methodist church, Sikeston, officiating.

The body will be removed to Bloomington, Ill., where graveside rites will be held in the Evergreen cemetery, Friday at 11 a.m., with Dr. Harold R. Martin, officiating.

Rites Held For Amberg

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Funeral services were conducted today for Richard H. Amberg, publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and a member of The Associated Press board of directors.

Amberg, 55, died in New York Sunday of an apparent heart attack. He was visiting the East Coast on a combined business and pleasure trip, accompanied by his wife and three children.

Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes headed a large number of national, state and local government officials and news executives attending the funeral.

Fifteen Globe - Democrat executives and editors were pallbearers.

Religious rites were conducted at the Central Presbyterian Church in suburban Clayton. Burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Masonic services were conducted Tuesday night at the Scottish Rite Temple, where the body lay in state more than 24 hours attended by an honor guard of Naval reservists, Boy Scouts, a boys club and the Masonic Order.

President Johnson and former President Eisenhower joined hundreds of others in paying tribute to the newspaper executive.

"The tragic loss of Richard Amberg is a loss to our country as well as the newspaper world," the President said in a wire to the Amberg family.

"I share with all who knew and admired him the sense of loss that they feel today."

Eisenhower described Amberg as a working newspaperman who knew his countrymen from country town to great city.

"He was able to persuasively address himself to them with a knowledge of their interest and aspirations that was fortified by his own patriotism and commitment to the American way," Eisenhower said.

Readers of the Globe-Democrat expressed their sympathy in letters to the editor, one suggested the interstate highway bridge nearing completion over the Mississippi River be named in Amberg's honor.

Another reader proposed renaming the Herbert Hoover Boys' Club the publisher actively supported the Richard H. Amberg Boys' Club.

It is not unusual for students at Gettysburg College to be asked for directions to various places on the battlefield. As we walked to class one afternoon, a car with southern plates and a Confederate flag slowed to a stop at the curb. The driver leaned from the window and, in an accent dripping with Dixie, asked, "Say, y'all, can you tell me where Lee's headquarters are?"

With studied innocence, my friend asked, "Lee who?"

Lonnie Pearson, charged with failing to yield right of way, fined $15 and $11 costs.

I love Christmas! I feel near to God at Christmas time. I love the Word of God at Christmas. I like to use the Christmas season as a good excuse to get into people's hearts and win them to Christ. If the world has a Christmas of revelry, let us make it a day of Christian love and fellowship and a day honoring to Christ. Let us make much of the Christmas story in the Bible, of Christmas carols. Christian people today do well to have a day of rejoicing over the birth of the Savior and to send portions to one another and to make merry with spiritual joy.

His training was highlighted by participatieg in mid-America's "Salute to the Flag" ceremonies held at Soldier Field in Chicago. He was one of the more than 10,000 Navymen who formed a human "Living Flag" in honor of all men and women who are, or have been, in the U. S. Armed Forces.

During his training he studied military subjects and lived and worked under conditions similar to those he will encounter on his first ship or at his first duty station. He also received instruction in seamanship, survival techniques, military drill and other related subjects.

FT. GORDON, GA. (AHTNC) -- Private Harry G. Williamson, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Williamson, Essex, Mo., completed a radio teletype operation course at the Army Southeastern Signal School, Ft. Gordon, Ga., Sept. 1.

During the 11 weeks of training, he received instruction in the operation of radio transmitting and receiving sets by voice and Morse code.

LUZON, Philippines -- Master Sergeant Ocel M. McCoy, son of Mrs. Leona E. McCoy of 208 Delmar St., Sikeston, Mo., has arrived for duty at Clark AB, Philippines.

Sergeant McCoy, a tele-communications technicians, is assigned to a unit of the Air Force Communications Service which provides global communications and aids to aerial navigation for USAF and other agencies.

A Korean War veteran, he previously served at Offutt AFB, Neb.

The sergeant if a graduate of Gray Ridge, Mo., High School. His father, Chester M. McCoy, resides at Gray Ridge.

Sergeant McCoy's wife is the former Barbara M. Ierma.

WITH U. S. COMBAT AIR FORCES, Vietnam -- Airman First Class Timothy D. Patrick, whose mother is Mrs. Mary K. Bone of 415 Coml Ave., Mound City, Ill., is one duty at Bien Hoa AB, Vietnam.

Airman Patrick, a material specialist, is a member of the Pacific Air Forces. Before his arrival in Southeast Asia, he was assigned to Malmstrom AFB, Mont.

The airman is a graduate of Charleston, Mo., High School. His father, Roscoe H. Patrick, resides in Charleston.

ALEXANDRIA, La. -- Orland J. Bollinger Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Orland J. Bollinger Sr. of Benton, Mo., has been promoted to airman second class in the U. S. Air Force.

Airman Bollinger is a weapons mechanic at England AFB, La. He is a member of the Tactical Air Command which provides combat reconnaissance, aerial firepower and assault airlift for U. S. Army forces.

The airman, a graduate of Thomas W. Kelly High School, received his B. S. degree in accounting from Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau.

His wife, Linda, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Glueck of R. R. 1, Illmo, Mo.

Ruling Made on Emergency Road Service Pacts

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. Norman H. Anderson ruled today auto financing companies who offer bonds, accident-travel expenses, legal expenses, emergency road service and other accident and emergency services for an annual fee are engaged in the insurance business.

The inquiry was made by Robert D. Scharz, commissioner of insurance, in regard to a one-year contract issued by the Allied Auto Acceptance Corp.

For a payment of $105, it would provide for these emergency services or repay the contract holder, if the need came about as the result of ownership or operation of an auto described in the contract.

This being the case the policies of the company would come under the control of the State Insurance Division.

FACING UP to the challenge, 12-year-old John Mentz of Assumption, Ill., keeps a wary eye on the opposition through the fruits of battle as he plunges into a blueberry pie-eating contest at the Illinois State Fair at Springfield.

Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Sir:

Thank you for using the article about my shop and my work.

Too much praise was given me which I feel I do not merit.

Nevertheless, I am delighted and very much appreciative of your attention.

Very sincerely
Rosemarye

My brother, who had just finished Navy basic training, was very excited about earning an extra $55 a month for "hazardous duty pay." I expressed my hope that his job wasn't going to be too dangerous and urged him to be cautious.

"Aw gosh, sis," he said, "it's not that horrible. I'm going to be a lifeguard at the Officers Club swimming pool."

Church Young People Honor— Bohannons

MOREHOUSE -- The young people of the First Baptist church honored the Rev. Glen Bohannon and family with a going away social Sunday night after church services.

The program theme was "Total Commitment" and the colors were yellow and white.

The refreshment table was decorated in yellow and white with greenery and bronze mums centerpiece and candles. The piano was decorated with bronze, yellow and rust mums. The devotional table was covered with a linen cloth and held a large Bible and candles. Across the front were the words, "Total Commitment."

The devotional was given by Gerri Oliver. Special music was by Barbara Orr, with Paulette Glover at the piano.

Present were Paulette Glover, Gerri Oliver, Lou Cagle, Sandra Breeden, Sharon Breeden, Carlene Winkle, Donna Bohannon, Marjorie Rogers, Jean Shaffer, Regina Jackson, James Lee and Susie Hewitt.

Charles Northcutt, Ronnie Peek, Patti Taylor, Judy Taylor, Teresa Tarrants, Steve Westerfield, Linda Neal, Debbie Payne, Barbara and Peggy Orr, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. McFarling, Lisa, Dale and Johnny Bohannon and the sponsors of the young people's department, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Westerfield.

After games were played and refreshments served, gifts were presented to the pastor and his family.

Tuesday night a going away supper was given in honor of the Rev. Sonny Graham and family at the Delmo community building.

The Rev. Mr. Graham is moving to Gary, Ind.

Attending were Mrs. Richard Kiersey and son, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Clarry, John Hughes, Mrs. Jennie Nimmo, Johnny Nimmo and family, Mrs. Connie Bolen, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bolen.

Mrs. Violet Summers, Donnie Sterling and family, Mrs. Oliver and granddaughters, Mrs. Campbell and children, Murrell Gosnell and family, Suzi King, Jasper Dovers and son and the Rev. Mr. Graham and family.

Johnny Nimmo and family visited last weekend with her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller of Joplin.

Mrs. Juanita Rogers and Marjorie visited Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Crowley of Sikeston Monday night. Tuesday they visited Mr. and Mrs. Acie Adkins of Dexter.

The Nazarene church has concluded a one-week vacation Bible school. Commencement was Sunday morning.

Superintendent was Mrs. Elizabeth Lawrence. Kindergarten was taught by Mrs. Lawrence, primary by Mrs. Nancy Hurley, junior by Mrs. Harold Lacy, youth department by Mrs. Mary Etta Richardson and the pastor, the Rev. Herman Lawrence.

Helpers were Mrs. Jewel Scales and Mrs. Mais Bryant.

Thirty-six pupils were enrolled, with an average daily attendance of 24.

At commencement the kindergarten class sang "Open, Shut Them" and "Let's Go A-Walking;" primary, "We Make Our Garden" and "God Sends the Rain." Each primary pupil recited a scripture he learned at school, and the kindergarten and primary joined in a rhythm band.

Juniors sang "This Is My Father's World" and repeated the Ten Commandments in unison. A choral of a psalm and "By My Spirit" by the youth department ended the program.

Awards for memory work of scripture verses were given to Norma Hurley and Jack and Jill Lawrence. Norma Hurley also received an award for bringing the most visitors to Sunday school.

Symington Opposed To Bombing Halt

WASHINGTON AP - Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., Sunday reiterated his opposition to any halt of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and said that in the brief Mideast war the "Israeli Air Force destroyed about $2 billion worth of Arab equipment - mostly supplied by the Russians."

Symington, former secretary of the Air Force, in a taped radio-TV program with Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., said the Russians now are concentrating military expenditures on an antiballistic missile ABM system.

He said he didn't think the Russians will want to start anything out there for some time to come. Peace can be maintained in the Middle East, he said, unless "war is deliberately formented by the Soviets."

On Vietnam, the Missouri Senator said that "according to our top military authorities, another bombing cessation would guarantee 10,000 additional dead. We've got to either move forward or move out."

He backed actions of the Senate Armed Services and Appropriations committee in urging immediate deployment of an ABM system by the United States.

Opens New Plant

International Shoe Company's new, ultra-modern, 95,000 square foot shoe manufacturing plant in Paducah, Kentucky, began operations last week. The new plant is geared for an estimated daily capacity of 5,000 pairs of men's high-grade welt shoes, including Hy-Test Safety Shoes. This plant replaces the aged, 71,000 square foot factory that has been in operation in Paducah since 1919.

"International's new plant in Paducah is, without a doubt, one of the most modern shoe manufacturing facilities in the country" said Edward J. Riley, International's Executive Vice-President. "It has been designed and built to incorporate the industry's most advanced technology and to provide complete flexibility for any changes that may be necessary to stay abreast of future manufacturing innovations and developments. It's another step-forward in International's long range program of replacing aged and obsolete plants with the newest and most efficient equipment and facilities".

The plant is located in Tyler Park, a new industrial development on the Belt-Line Highway in Paducah. It is one-story, fully air-conditioned and gas heated. Temperature and humidity are zone controlled to facilitate better handling of shoe materials. Modern equipment includes: automatically controlled electric drying rooms; individual motor drives; scientifically engineered lighting and the most efficient application of work-flow planning.

Perry H. Jones, General Superintendent, Men's Manufacturing stated, "Every detail has been planned to improve manufacturing efficiency and to up-grade the quality of our product."

Total employment now 550 is expected to increase in stride with the increasing demand for this type footwear. S. A. Hughes, who has been the Paducah Superintendent since 1965, is Superintendent of the new plant and Charles Scudder is Assistant Superintendent.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: LBJ likely to get war tax but not 10 per cent; oilmen will continue to enjoy tax loopholes; Mike Feighan hits the trail again.

WASHINGTON -- Judging by the mood of the tax-writing house ways and means committee, President Johnson should get his war tax, but it will be trimmed down to less than the 10 per cent he has requested.

This will be followed by a big show over tax reforms to quiet the public clamor over tax loopholes. Once the clamor abates, insiders indicate, the reforms will be sidetracked.

Meanwhile, the taxpayers will be stuck with paying the increased costs of the Vietnam war while the oil millionaires and other privileged people continue to escape paying their fair share of the burden.

The oil industry is now putting out the propaganda that plugging the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance won't save enough revenue to be noticed.

But treasury experts have told this column that $2.5 billion a year drains through the oil depletion loophole. This would go a long way toward paying for more arms and ammunition. The oil millionaires, of course, would rather spend it on air-conditioned Cadillacs and heated swimming pools.

One of the nation's foremost tax experts, whose credentials are respected by liberals and conservatives alike, is ex-senator Paul Douglas. He has contended that the tax rate could be cut in half without reducing federal revenue a single cent, if congress would only plug the tax loopholes.

In one of his last appearances on the senate floor, he declared: "Last year a charwoman earning $55 a week paid more in income taxes than an oil company whose income was $26 million."

Additional evidence can be found in the fine print of the New York Times financial columns. Consider this notice which appeared several months ago in the "capital wants" column: "West Texas ranchman has one-half interest in oil well on his ranch and is selling one-fourth interest to drill additonal wells. Income from this oil production is suitable for non-active investor needing 27½ per cent depletion allowance."

For years, oil privileges were protected on Capitol Hill by that powerful pair from Texas, the late Sam Rayburn and his pupil, Lyndon Johnson. The venerable Rayburn, as speaker of the house, controlled appointments to the ways and means committee. No one was admitted to this select circle who couldn't give Rayburn the right answer to one question: "Do you favor the oil depletion allowance?"

Although Rayburn has now been dead six years, his influence still haunts the ways and means committee. A majority of members, in response to inquiries from this column, expressed a willingness to consider tax reforms. But close questioning indicated that they didn't have the oil giveaway in mind.

"I don't consider oil depletion allowances to be tax loopholes," grumbled Rep. James Battin, R-Mont.

"What's one man's loophole is another man's equity," said Rep. Syd Herlong, D-Fla.

"I know how people feel about this oil depletion," said Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y. "But I think they are inclined to view it more simply than they should. The return on capital investment isn't red hot, not as much as you would think from the 27½ per cent depletion allowance."

Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., echoed the Texas view: "I do not view the depletion or depreciation provisions of the tax law as inequitable."

The prevailing sentiment was summed up by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.: "Whether or not we could eliminate the 27½ per cent depletion allowance? . . I am sure that we couldn't go that far."

NEWS NUGGETS

FOOT-LOOSE FEIGHAN -- Rep. Michael Feighan, who has a distressing habit of making foolish statements overseas, is off on another junket. At a 1965 immigration conference in Geneva, he assailed the memory of the late President Kennedy for "his left-wing attitudes and his softness on Communism." Life Magazine reported that he also called the slain President "A Nigger Lover."

Now Feighan is on his way to Spain, Italy and other vacation spots -- at the taxpayers' expense, of course. Our diplomats are holding their breath, hoping Feighan will hold his tongue. Incidentally, the white-haired, 62-year-old house veteran, once an engaging Irishman but now an embittered old man, has hit up the taxpayers for another $19,000 a year as salary for his son William.

BRAINWASH CLUES -- Pentagon doctors have been studying Communist films of U.S. prisoners in North Vietnam for clues to brainwashing techniques. There is evidence in some of the films that the prisoners do not react normally. But the doctors have been unable to determine whether the prisoners have been drugged or tortured. The Communist technique is to apply psychological torture, combined with extreme physical discomfort, particularly loss of sleep, until the victim loses control of his emotions.

LBJ'S INVESTIGATORS -- President Johnson has sent staff members quietly into the Negro Ghettos to look around and report back their impressions to him. He has concluded from their reports that the Negroes aren't nearly as worried about unemployment as they are simply sick of slumliving amid the rats and vermin.

IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

INTER-ENTAGLEMENT OF FUNDS

Chief Justice Earl Warren spent 13 days in Bolivia, Peru and Colombia earlier this year, at a cost to the State Department of $948. About a year ago Justice Potter Stewart made a 7-day trip to 15 nations in the Middle East, Asia and Europe, at a cost to the State Department of $5,351.

The Chief Justice was participating in "informal, seminar-type discussions," and Justice Stewart discussed with lawyers, officials and others, matters "concerned with law and safety." This would seem to be a mingling of the affairs of two of the main departments of our government--the executive with the judicial. It is very disturbing to learn that the executive department is using high officials in the judicial department to promote its objectives. A mingling of funds and personnel in these two main branches of our government is unhealthy and, I believe, unconstitutional.

If the learned Justices were engaged in work pertaining to the judicial department, their expenses ought not to have been paid by the State Department. If they were promoting objectives of the executive department, high judicial personnel should not have been used for that purpose. If they, with their wives, were merely enjoying foreign travel at the expense of the taxpayer, that too was wrong. More meticulous attention is needed to avoid inter-entanglement of the three main branches of our government and to avoid wasting the resources of our people.

It would be most unfortunate indeed if our people should become suspicious that high officials of the judicial department have placed themselves under obligations to the executive department as a result of having accepted favors. Any needful travel by the Justices of the Supreme Court in the furtherance of legitimate functions should be paid for by funds appropriated for the use of the judicial department.

ELECTION WORKERS at Saigon's second district headquarters conduct a dress rehearsal prior to Sunday's South Vietnamese presidential election in which voters chose a president and vice president and a 60-man senate. Lt. Gen. Nguyn Van Thieu, the winner among 11 candidates for president, told newsmen that if he wins under a cloud of fraud charges that "I will give up the office."

Modern Silent Movie in Works

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What's this? Somebody making a SILENT movie again after all these years?

Yes, he's Ralph Andrews, an independent television producer. The film, his first for theaters, is "The Silent Treatment." Judging from two reels he projected for this reporter, it will be as wild as the soundless Charlie Chaplin and Keystone Kops antics of the '20s.

There are the frantic chases, exaggerated guestures and dialogue cards instead of audible words. Will moderns go to see this first Hollywood silent since Chaplin's 1936 "Modern Times"?

Andrews is so sure they will that he financed the film himself, is directing it, and isn't bothering to seek a distributor until he has a rough cut assembled this fall.

"The novelty will bring people into the theater and the humor will keep them there and bring them back," claims Andrews, 38.

A onetime NBC studio page and Ralph Edwards TV apprentice, he has produced daytime's "You Don't Say," starring Tom Kennedy, for five years. Fond of visual gags, Andrews clutters his desk with gadgets including a monstrous mallet labeled "We welcome criticism."

Eggheads like Yul Brynner, he shaves his head -- and colorful in striped shirt and red sweater, Andrews sketched his film's plot.

As advertising agency selects a clean-shaven hippie (Marty Ingels) for a promotional stunt. If Ingels can make $10,000 worth of purchases in two weeks with a client's credit card, using no cash, he'll win a prize. His escapades involve one of the biggest casts of bit-playing guest stars ever assembled.

Rowan and Martin are cops, Barry Sullivan a car-rental proprietor, Wally Cox a masseur, Godfrey Cambridge a hotel manager, Phyllis Diller a prostitute working for "Never on Sunday, Inc." Others including George Raft, Rudy Vallee, Gene Autry and Jackie Coogan -- Chaplin's co-star in the silents' famed "The Kid" -- flash by.

President and Mrs. Johnson and California Gov. Ronald Reagan join the action on clips from press-conference newsreels. "First time in history a president has had a part in a movie!" Andrews exulted.

As Ingels' adventures make banner headlines, LBJ tells newsmen on a dialogue card, "Ah watch and wait with the entire nation." Lady Bird assures Ingels, "We're all pullin' for you," and Reagan wonders, "Will he make it?"

None of the dignitaries was consulted about these liberties. Contrary to the original silents, the film will be in color and have a musical background including a trumpet tickle to simulate Miss Diller's laugh.

"Good comedy should be seen and not heard," Andrews argues. "A lot of people have told me they thought of making a silent, but nobody's had the nerve."

Misprints Can Increase Stamp Value

NEW YORK (AP) — On May 13, 1918, a stock broker's clerk went to the Washington, D.C., post office on his lunch hour to buy a sheet of the first U.S. airmail stamp.

He paid $24 for the sheet of 100, 24-cent, red and blue stamps showing a Curtiss "Jenny" in flight.

As he turned to leave, the clerk looked at the sheet in his hands and, as he said later, his "heart stood still." Every stamp showed the biplane flying upside down.

Collectors call stamps with a printing abnormality in them freaks, and they all dream of coming across at least one someday. Few do.

The clerk who paid $24 for his sheet with the inverted airplanes sold it for $15,000. The buyer broke up the sheet and sold it piecemeal.

In 1964, four of the stamps were sold to a dealer for $67,000. The newest edition of Scott's Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue prices them at $20,000 for each 24-cent stamp.

This doesn't mean the owner of one of the inverted airmails can rush right out and sell it for $20,000, although that might be the retail price a dealer would charge if he sold it to a collector.

Stamps, like other commodities, swing to the tune played by the law of supply and demand.

A stamp may be listed in the Scott catalogue as having a value of $100, but to actually get $100 for it depends on the seller's luck in finding someone who wants that particular stamp badly enough to pay $100 for it.

In setting a value on a stamp, says Gordon R. Harmer, editor in chief of the Scott catalogue, "we try to get a cross-section of prices from dealers, auctions, and philatelic publications."

The prices quoted, Harmer says, try to represent the average retail price of the stamp at the time the catalogue is printed -- the price an informed dealer would charge an informed buyer for a fine specimen.

The prospect that new U.S. stamp issues will increase dramatically in value is not bright.

Forty years ago, when the government issued a stamp, the odds were the stamps would be used as postage and eventually destroyed when the envelopes on which they were stuck were thrown away.

Today, with most bulk mailings handled by postage meters, new stamp issues are purchased in great part by collectors and speculators, who store them away. Those new stamps that do get used as postage often are torn off the envelope and saved by collectors of people who know collectors. This means that when the new issue is withdrawn from sale the bulk of it still is in existence and a glut on the market.

Attacks Reported on North Viet Dikes

EDITOR'S NOTE — Amanio Doronila, correspondent of the Manila Times, is touring North Vietnam. This dispatch was made available to The Associated Press by the Manila Times.

By AMANIO DORONILA
Manila Times Correspondent

NINH BINH, North Vietnam (AP) — Dikes in the fertile Red River delta--North Vietnam's rice basket--have come under increasing air attack lately.

The bombing appears intended not only to demoralize and harass the population in the great densely populated region of the country but also to destroy the rice crops in the vast alluvial plains with its vulnerable open spaces.

The great dikes system near Hanoi and Haiphong, built over a hundred years to shield these cities from floods and divert the floodwaters to irrigate fields, have been reported to have been attacked only lightly and the bombing of dikes in Hanoi was connected with the strikes at the Paul Doumer Bridge, which disrupted the main traffic link between the capital and Haiphong and areas to the north Aug. 11-12.

The destruction of major dikes is regarded here with serious international complications and Americans have so far withheld their heavy air blows from these targets. But here in the delta region, whose paddy fields provide the bulk of rice supply of 17 million North Vietnamese, there have been almost daily attacks on dikes along the numerous small confluences of the Red River which empties into the Tonkin Gulf.

By Hanoi officials' account there were 50 attacks in this province on dams, sluice gates and dikes from June to December, 1966, alone with the intensity increasing to the daily rate during the past three months. One particular dike we visited last Thursday in Gia Binh village, district of Gia Vien, was bombed Aug. 27. Eight 500-pound bombs were dropped and three left a 20-foot breach in the dike.

The breaching of the dike flooded a small village and the rice cropp 9.8 feet below the water level at a time when rains were heavy.

The pattern of bombing in the delta seems evident-- to interdict agricultural production. No military targets are visible in the dikes. The heaviest artillery we saw were antiquated rifles of the peasant militia.

To illustrate the pattern, near the coast are towns, Dong Giac and Binh Minh, which have large state farms. The Dong Giac farm has been bombed and strafed 129 times, during which 298 head of cattle were killed, according to officials. They say Binh Minh has been raided 229 times, during which three workers have been killed and several buildings were destroyed.

These farms train agricultural workers and are showcases for agriculture, visited recently by Romanian agriculturists.

Since the province is near the Tonkin Gulf, it is the route of naval aircraft on bombing missions inland and the coastal villages are often shelled by naval guns, officials said.

Leaders to Attend Ground Breaking

ASBURY, Mo. (AP) — Two governors and three congressmen are expected to attend ceremonies here at Sept. 15 marking ground breaking for a $25 million power generating plant.

Planning to take part in the start of construction of the Empire District Electric Co. are Govs. Warren Hearnes of Missouri and Robert Docking of Kansas and Rep. Durward Hall, R-Mo., Rep. John Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., and Rep. Joe Skubitz, R-Kan.

The generating plant to be built in southwestern Missouri between Joplin and Pittsburg, Kan., will burn coal mined nearby from a new Pittsburg & Midway Coal Co. site.

J. Edgar Hoover tells this story of a con man who thought he knew all the angles. After laboring ceaselessly to perfect the signature of a society big shot, the swindler successfully passed off a forged check on a local merchant. Inspired by his initial success, he went back to cash a second check, only to be apprehended. The first check had been returned with the notation "Insufficient funds."

Misprints Can Increase Stamp Value

WASHINGTON (AP) — A greater percentage of American babies are surviving infancy than ever before, the Public Health Service reported today.

The agency said the U.S. infant mortality rate--the number of deaths under 1 year of age per 1,000 live births--dropped to an all-time low of 22.9 in the first six months of this year.

The 1966 rate was 23.4, a drop of 13.7 since 1958, the last year when the percentage of infant deaths failed to decline.

LITTERLY SPEAKING

Lives of motorists remind us
We can leave--if we are beasts--
Tin cans and, tossed out behind us,
Bottles and banana peels.
Let us then be up and doing
Everything we can contrive
To deface the land, and strewing
Garbage everywhere we drive.

Adult Evening Classes Will Begin Monday

Adult evening classes offered at Sikeston high school will be conducted in conjunction with the school of technology beginning Monday, Jim Cornett, director of vocational education said.

The four programs offered in the school are each two-year programs - drafting technology, printing technology, electronics technology and secretarial science.

The frist semester begins Monday and closes Jan. 12. The full time students will attend classes Monday through Friday from 4:30 p.m. until 10 p.m.

Registration for adult evening classes will be conducted Monday through Thursday at the vocational office at the high school.

Adults who wish to take a course offered as part of the curriculum of the school may do so, Cornett said.

Courses to be offered in the school are technical mathematics, basic mathematics, business mathematics, technical drafting, communications skills, materials of industry, manufacturing processes, general printing, typing, electronic devices, physics for electronics, business communications, and shorthand.

Courses to be offered adults in evening education classes include those listed above, and electronic principles, advanced electronics, speed reading, beginning art, furniture refinishing, slimnastics (men and women), auto mechanics, power mechanics, beginning welding, auto body, heliarc welding, and high school equivalency.

The number of the courses for adults will depend on the interest shown. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Cornett at the high school.

Bike, Horse, Mower, Wasp, Nail Injure

Nine emergency patients were treated Tuesday in the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Earsell Whittaker treated for a wasp sting on arm; Robert Gimlin caught finger in auger belt; Charles Lee Miller Jr. fell off truck on a steel skid; Karen Sue Fraley, upper lip cut in a fall; Robert M. Vann, cut finger on a lawn mower blade.

Linny B. Morton, Cape Girardeau, fractured skull in a fall out of high chair; Stephen Hill caught toe in bicycle spoke; Stacy Graham stepped on a nail; Ronald Givens, Matthews, fell off a horse.

More than two-thirds of Canada's estimated 18.5 million inhabitants live within 100 miles of the United States border.

Ninety percent of the foreign exchange of Ceylon is derived from tea, rubber and coconut. Tea alone accounts for 65 percent of the value of all exports.

Single District Okayed

NEW MADRID - The New Madrid county school board last night voted to form a single school district, absorbing six districts.

The districts included in the proposed district are Portageville, Lilbourn, New Madrid, Matthews, Morehouse and Parma. Two districts which asked to be excluded were Gideon and Risco.

A plan will be submitted to the state board of education in Jefferson City, which will make a decision on the proposal, in 60 days, according to Lyle Bird, board president.

If the plan is approved by the state board, an election will be called in the six districts to permit citizens to vote on the proposal.

Cotton Gin Burglarized

MATTHEWS -- The Matthews Cotton Company, was broken into between 7 p.m. and 6 a.m. today, when thieves forced their way into the lounge, according to Manager Jerry Aufdenberg.

Taken from the lounge was a 19-inch portable television set and coins from soft drink and cigarette machines.

The thieves forced their way into the gin through a window and took hand and power tools, chain hoist and a hydraulic lift, with a value of several hundred dollars.

There were truck tire marks and footprints left by the thieves at the rear of the gin.

Drinker Only Half-Guilty

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) - Blackie Creasey of nearby Qulin appeared in police court today charged with being drunk in public.

"Guilty or not guilty," intoned Judge Tom Cahill.

Your honor, "I was only half drunk," Creasey pleaded.

"Then I'll find you only half-guilty," declared Judge Cahill.

Cahill fined Creasey $17, half the usual fine for the offense.

City Pledges Aid to Guidance Program For Negro Youths

A delegation from Sunset addition interested in improving conditions for Negro youths requested cooperation from the city council in a guidance program at a city council meeting last night.

George Wolfe and Mrs. Carolyn Moon told the council that they were trying to get youths concerned about themselves and wanted professional guidance from the city.

Mrs. Moon said a meeting would be held tonight to organize teenagers in Sunset to begin a guidance program.

The project will include a recreation program. It had been recommended that the facilities of the community action agency on West Malone to be used.

Purpose of the program is to give Negro youths something to do to keep them off the streets.

Mayor Kendall Sikes and City Manager W. Raymert Miller said the council would cooperate to make the program a success and recommended that the group contact Recovery Incorporated.

A letter from James V. Smith, 802 Wayne, requesting that the city pass an ordinance regulating the time when trash can be burned in the city was tabled.

Miller said Sikeston had not reached the size where such an ordinance would be necessary, but added that the city's growth may necessitate such action later.

Acting upon a petition from residents of the 1400 block of East Kathleen, the council passed a resolution for blacktopping and drainage on East Kathleen from Selma to Dona.

Ordinances for a four by four foot concrete sidewalk on Maude from Fair to Petty and for blade mix paving from Lillian drive east to the existing pavement were passed.

An ordinance accepting the fifth addition of Town and Country to the city was passed.

Miller said the telephone company franchise fee of 5 per cent required an ordinance. The company paid $16,500 in taxes to the city in the last fiscal year.

The company will now list separately the city, state and federal taxes on customer bills. This will cost telephone customers more money since the taxes will be collected separately, Miller said, but added that people will save money in the long run because double taxation will be eliminated.

Fire Damages Door Of Old Warehouse

Wind spread flames from burning trash to an old warehouse at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at Malone Street and Jaycee Avenue.

Only a wooden door at the rear of the building was damaged firemen said. The building is used for storage of items sold by Bob's Salvage.

Cape Voter Heavily Favor Annexation

CAPE GIRARDEAU (AP)- For the third time in the past 20 years voters in Cape Girardeau have decided to annex territory around the Southeast Missouri city.

Unofficial returns indicate voters approved Tuesday the proposed annexation of eight square miles to the north and west of the city. The measure needed only a simple majority to pass.

The vote was 2,082 for the move and 529 against. Cape Girardeau had 15,000 eligible voters. The annexation would become effective immediately after an official count of the votes.

Firefighters Making Gains

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

All major forest fires in the Northwest states were reported controlled or near containment today.

But in British Columbia, a new 10,000-acre blaze burst out and was uncontrolled on a steep mountainside near Lumby, 50 miles south of the huge Shuswap Lake fire area.

Temperatures at Shuswap Lake dropped as much as 23 degrees late Tuesday, slowing the 45,000-acre blaze for the first time in two weeks.

More Than 300 Tour Delta Center Plots

PORTAGEVILLE -- The open house and tour of the University of Missouri Delta Center brought out more than 300 Bootheel farmers and farm advisers yesterday.

They were shown experiments on grain, cotton and forage crops.

The tours opened at 9 a.m., and were conducted in two phases both morning and afternoon under the supervision of the Delta Center personnel, John Garrett, Flernoy Jones, David Kelly, Henry DiCarlo and E. B. Nace. Catholic church women of Portageville served sandwiches and refreshments at noon.

The first stop was a cotton plot, with Lloyd Treece as guide, and Keith Harrendorf, insect control research specialist, displaying thrip control on cotton, where the granular systemic insecticides were added on May 24, when the plants averaged as many as 140 thrips. Following a one-inch rain on June 8 the thrips dropped to eight thrips per plant. He displayed a photograph taken of the plot July 3.

Harrendorf said that "when cotton is planted at too late a date insecticide control is wasted money."

Nace, who is in charge of farm management, discussed a barley project, sponsored by the Delta Center and a St. Louis brewer, where a barley followed soybeans with good results. He added that the crop would not compete with a wheat allotment program.

"The crop works well where you have irrigation for a double crop program."

Dr. Leo A. Duclos, soybean research specialist, said that the center tested and developed 19 bean varieties.

Duclos said that "the soybean crop was the number one crop in Missouri in 1966, bringing in $180 million to the farmers.

"You give us the type of soil and we will give you the seeding variety best suited for your soil."

He displayed a plot that would produce 104,544 plants per acre.

Of cyst nematode resistant seed varieties, Duclos said:

"We are increasing our seed, but not enough for everyone. We could sell all of our certified seed out-state if we wanted to because of the great demand."

The cyst nematode is causing heavy damage.

Dr. William Bugbee, cotton control specialist and pathologist, discussed the plants treated with terrachlor super disyston. The chemical kills or reduces root rot in plants at a cost of $3 to $4 per acre with an equipment cost of an additional $150.

Other specialists who assisted with the tour were W. P. Sappenfield, James A. Roth, L. E. Anderson, Armon Keaster and V. N. Lambeth.

Other plots shown visitors included corn varieties, sugar beet and vetch.

Tots Chosen to Reign Over Bean Festival

PORTAGEVILLE--Bobby Lynn Burk, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Burk of Portageville, and Rhonda Hillis, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hillis of Lilbourn, were named winners of the junior king and queen beauty revue Tuesday at the high school gymnasium.

The revue was the opening event of the National Soybean Festival.

Thirty two girls and 21 boys entered the contest.

First runnerup in the king contest was Johnny Toten, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Toten of Portageville, and second runnerup was Scott Bethune, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bethune of Caruthersville.

First runnerup in the queen contest was Lorie Ann Phillips, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Phillips of New Madrid, and second runnerup was Lisa Ann Martin, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Martin of Kewanee.

The contest was open to all boys and girls four and five years old.

TOURS OPENED at 9 a.m. at the Delta Center in Portageville Tuesday. This group is leaving for an inspection of the 600-acre experiment station plots.

The four programs offered in the school are each two-year programs - drafting technology, printing technology, electronics technology and secretarial science.

The frist semester begins Monday and closes Jan. 12. The full time students will attend classes Monday through Friday from 4:30 p.m. until 10 p.m.

Registration for adult evening classes will be conducted Monday through Thursday at the vocational office at the high school.

Adults who wish to take a course offered as part of the curriculum of the school may do so, Cornett said.

Courses to be offered in the school are technical mathematics, basic mathematics, business mathematics, technical drafting, communications skills, materials of industry, manufacturing processes, general printing, typing, electronic devices, physics for electronics, business communications, and shorthand.

Courses to be offered adults in evening education classes include those listed above, and electronic principles, advanced electronics, speed reading, beginning art, furniture refinishing, slimnastics (men and women), auto mechanics, power mechanics, beginning welding, auto body, heliarc welding, and high school equivalency.

The number of the courses for adults will depend on the interest shown. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Cornett at the high school.

Bike, Horse, Mower, Wasp, Nail Injure

Nine emergency patients were treated Tuesday in the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Earsell Whittaker treated for a wasp sting on arm; Robert Gimlin caught finger in auger belt; Charles Lee Miller Jr. fell off truck on a steel skid; Karen Sue Fraley, upper lip cut in a fall; Robert M. Vann, cut finger on a lawn mower blade.

Linny B. Morton, Cape Girardeau, fractured skull in a fall out of high chair; Stephen Hill caught toe in bicycle spoke; Stacy Graham stepped on a nail; Ronald Givens, Matthews, fell off a horse.

Ninety percent of the foreign exchange of Ceylon is derived from tea, rubber and coconut. Tea alone accounts for 65 percent of the value of all exports.

Single District Okayed

NEW MADRID - The New Madrid county school board last night voted to form a single school district, absorbing six districts.

The districts included in the proposed district are Portageville, Lilbourn, New Madrid, Matthews, Morehouse and Parma. Two districts which asked to be excluded were Gideon and Risco.

A plan will be submitted to the state board of education in Jefferson City, which will make a decision on the proposal, in 60 days, according to Lyle Bird, board president.

If the plan is approved by the state board, an election will be called in the six districts to permit citizens to vote on the proposal.

Cotton Gin Burglarized

MATTHEWS -- The Matthews Cotton Company, was broken into between 7 p.m. and 6 a.m. today, when thieves forced their way into the lounge, according to Manager Jerry Aufdenberg.

Taken from the lounge was a 19-inch portable television set and coins from soft drink and cigarette machines.

The thieves forced their way into the gin through a window and took hand and power tools, chain hoist and a hydraulic lift, with a value of several hundred dollars.

There were truck tire marks and footprints left by the thieves at the rear of the gin.

Drinker Only Half-Guilty

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) - Blackie Creasey of nearby Qulin appeared in police court today charged with being drunk in public.

"Guilty or not guilty," intoned Judge Tom Cahill.

Your honor, "I was only half drunk," Creasey pleaded.

"Then I'll find you only half guilty," declared Judge Cahill.

Cahill fined Creasey $17, half the usual fine for the offense.

City Pledges Aid to Guidance Program For Negro Youths

A delegation from Sunset addition interested in improving conditions for Negro youths requested cooperation from the city council in a guidance program at a city council meeting last night.

George Wolfe and Mrs. Carolyn Moon told the council that they were trying to get youths concerned about themselves and wanted professional guidance from the city.

Mrs. Moon said a meeting would be held tonight to organize teenagers in Sunset to begin a guidance program.

The project will include a recreation program. It had been recommended that the facilities of the community action agency on West Malone to be used.

Purpose of the program is to give Negro youths something to do to keep them off the streets.

Mayor Kendall Sikes and City Manager W. Raymert Miller said the council would cooperate to make the program a success and recommended that the group contact Recovery Incorporated.

A letter from James V. Smith, 802 Wayne, requesting that the city pass an ordinance regulating the time when trash can be burned in the city was tabled.

Miller said Sikeston had not reached the size where such an ordinance would be necessary, but added that the city's growth may necessitate such action later.

Acting upon a petition from residents of the 1400 block of East Kathleen, the council passed a resolution for blacktopping and drainage on East Kathleen from Selma to Dona.

Ordinances for a four by four foot concrete sidewalk on Maude from Fair to Petty and for blade mix paving from Lillian drive east to the existing pavement were passed.

An ordinance accepting the fifth addition of Town and Country to the city was passed.

Miller said the telephone company franchise fee of 5 per cent required an ordinance. The company paid $16,500 in taxes to the city in the last fiscal year.

The company will now list separately the city, state and federal taxes on customer bills. This will cost telephone customers more money since the taxes will be collected separately, Miller said, but added that people will save money in the long run because double taxation will be eliminated.

Fire Damages Door Of Old Warehouse

Wind spread flames from burning trash to an old warehouse at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at Malone Street and Jaycee Avenue.

Only a wooden door at the rear of the building was damaged firemen said. The building is used for storage of items sold by Bob's Salvage.

Cape Voter Heavily Favor Annexation

CAPE GIRARDEAU (AP)- For the third time in the past 20 years voters in Cape Girardeau have decided to annex territory around the Southeast Missouri city.

Unofficial returns indicate voters approved Tuesday the proposed annexation of eight square miles to the north and west of the city. The measure needed only a simple majority to pass.

The vote was 2,082 for the move and 529 against. Cape Girardeau had 15,000 eligible voters. The annexation would become effective immediately after an official count of the votes.

Firefighters Making Gains

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

All major forest fires in the Northwest states were reported controlled or near containment today.

But in British Columbia, a new 10,000-acre blaze burst out and was uncontrolled on a steep mountainside near Lumby, 50 miles south of the huge Shuswap Lake fire area.

Temperatures at Shuswap Lake dropped as much as 23 degrees late Tuesday, slowing the 45,000-acre blaze for the first time in two weeks.

More Than 300 Tour Delta Center Plots

PORTAGEVILLE -- The open house and tour of the University of Missouri Delta Center brought out more than 300 Bootheel farmers and farm advisers yesterday.

They were shown experiments on grain, cotton and forage crops.

The tours opened at 9 a.m., and were conducted in two phases both morning and afternoon under the supervision of the Delta Center personnel, John Garrett, Flernoy Jones, David Kelly, Henry DiCarlo and E. B. Nace. Catholic church women of Portageville served sandwiches and refreshments at noon.

The first stop was a cotton plot, with Lloyd Treece as guide, and Keith Harrendorf, insect control research specialist, displaying thrip control on cotton, where the granular systemic insecticides were added on May 24, when the plants averaged as many as 140 thrips. Following a one-inch rain on June 8 the thrips dropped to eight thrips per plant. He displayed a photograph taken of the plot July 3.

Harrendorf said that "when cotton is planted at too late a date insecticide control is wasted money."

Nace, who is in charge of farm management, discussed a barley project, sponsored by the Delta Center and a St. Louis brewer, where a barley followed soybeans with good results. He added that the crop would not compete with a wheat allotment program.

"The crop works well where you have irrigation for a double crop program."

Dr. Leo A. Duclos, soybean research specialist, said that the center tested and developed 19 bean varieties.

Duclos said that "the soybean crop was the number one crop in Missouri in 1966, bringing in $180 million to the farmers.

"You give us the type of soil and we will give you the seeding variety best suited for your soil."

He displayed a plot that would produce 104,544 plants per acre.

Of cyst nematode resistant seed varieties, Duclos said:

"We are increasing our seed, but not enough for everyone. We could sell all of our certified seed out-state if we wanted to because of the great demand."

The cyst nematode is causing heavy damage.

Dr. William Bugbee, cotton control specialist and pathologist, discussed the plants treated with terrachlor super disyston. The chemical kills or reduces root rot in plants at a cost of $3 to $4 per acre with an equipment cost of an additional $150.

Other specialists who assisted with the tour were W. P. Sappenfield, James A. Roth, L. E. Anderson, Armon Keaster and V. N. Lambeth.

Other plots shown visitors included corn varieties, sugar beet and vetch.

Tots Chosen to Reign Over Bean Festival

PORTAGEVILLE--Bobby Lynn Burk, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Burk of Portageville, and Rhonda Hillis, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hillis of Lilbourn, were named winners of the junior king and queen beauty revue Tuesday at the high school gymnasium.

The revue was the opening event of the National Soybean Festival.

Thirty two girls and 21 boys entered the contest.

First runnerup in the king contest was Johnny Toten, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Toten of Portageville, and second runnerup was Scott Bethune, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bethune of Caruthersville.

First runnerup in the queen contest was Lorie Ann Phillips, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Phillips of New Madrid, and second runnerup was Lisa Ann Martin, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Martin of Kewanee.

The contest was open to all boys and girls four and five years old.

TOURS OPENED at 9 a.m. at the Delta Center in Portageville Tuesday. This group is leaving for an inspection of the 600-acre experiment station plots.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

FIRST-GRADE TEACHER

In a recent copy of Catholic Quote, we noted an item by Mrs. Janet Gorrell Meyer which is appropos particularly at this time. We quote it as follows. . . .

When I am introduced as a teacher, I am usually asked what I teach. When I say "first-grade", I generally hear a very flat "Oh!"

I have never been certain whether this is an expression of pity, sympathy, disgust or perhaps disinterest. Always I wish I had the time to tell people something like this:

Yes, I teach first-grade.

Where else would a handsome and very young man put his arms around me and ask, "Do you know that I love you?"

Where else would I tie so many hair ribbons and belts and daily get to see a style show of pretty dresses and shirts?

Where else could I wear the same dress day after day and be told each time that it is pretty?

Where else could I walk up and down aisles and have warm hands touch me?

Where else could I have the privilege of wiggling loose teeth and receive a promise that I may pull them when they are loose?

Where else could I eat a soiled piece of candy from a grimy little hand and not get ill? (I have to eat it because he watches to see that I do.)

Where else would the future look as bright as it does amid an energetic group to whom nothing is impossible?

Where else could I guide the first letter formations of a chubby little hand that may some day write a book or an important document?

Where else could I forget my own aches and pains because so many cut fingers, scratched knees, bumped heads, and broken hearts need care?

Where else could I forget taxes and even "the state of the nation" because Stevie isn't grasping reading as he should and other methods must be tried?

Where else would my mind have to stay so young as with a group whose attention span in so short that I must keep a "bag of tricks up my sleeve"?

Where else could I feel so close to my Maker as I do each year when, because of something I have done, little children learn to read?

Yes, I do teach the first-grade, Mr. and Mrs. America.

And I love it!

More than ever, this country needs trained, educated people to continue the progress America has made and to take their rightful places in the society that is developing.

Much of the poverty and unemployment that exists today is directly related to the lack of education and preparation by previous generations.

Right now there are 2 million youngsters in this country in the 16 to 21 age group who dropped out of school before earning their high school diploma. Nearly a fourth of them are unemployed. Most of the rest are stuck in dead-end jobs, without any real future.

Large gains have been made in the fight against ignorance, unemployment and poverty during the past several years. Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz recently reported that 2 million more people are working and 1 million more are in high school and college than the population increase of the last three years accounts for.

The Education Campaign of the past two years has helped in this progress. It has paid big dividends by inspiring dropouts to return to the classrooms and encouraging the undecided to finish their education. In 1960 the dropout rate was 25 percent. Last year it had decreased to 18 percent.

But 18 percent is too high for a Nation to tolerate. The frightening fact remains that at the current dropout rate by 1975 there will be 32 million adults in the labor force without a high school education -- 32 million who will be unqualified for most of the jobs available then.

This newspaper supports the efforts being made to keep our youth in school and help them from becoming future victims of deprivation and poverty.

But it takes more than our support. It needs and commands the support and effort of every citizen.

Youngsters who have already dropped out of school need special help. They need to be counseled and guided into training that will help them develop skills for today's jobs. Others on the verge of leaving school before completing their education dropout many times to earn money to support their families or to buy necessities for themselves. Action by the business community in the form of part-time jobs is needed to help them stay in school.

You can serve your country best by helping to insure that tomorrow's leaders are educated today.

EXPENSIVE 'JUNK'

This is intended to be a short lesson in business economics on the topic of bulk mailing. It was prompted by a merchant who asked for this information.

This so-called "junk mail" may be just that to many people, but it begins to take on an entirely different aspect when the small merchant ventures into this field for the first time.

THE POST OFFICE Department charges $15 for a permit. This is a one-time only charge, and need not be renewed so long as the permit holder uses that permit at least once each year.

However, the PO Department charges another annual "Bulk Mailing Fee" of $30.00. That $30 lug must be paid each year to keep the permit alive.

After that, each mailing piece is charged for at the rate of 2 7/8 cents.

The mailer must also count out the correct number of pieces and identify each bundle by its correct address. In each bundle the handbills, folders or whatnot, must be counted out in multiples of 10. The mailer can do this himself, or he can hire it done by private individuals who charge according to the number of pieces handled.

THE OCCASIONAL user of this form of mailing can save $15 by using an established mailing permit number, and paying a fee of $30 for that privilege.

For example, a one-time only mailer would pay $45 for permit and bulk fee, plus $69.43 postage, plus $10 sorting and tying or a total of $124.43 to cover the Charleston area.

Who said junk?

P. S. The bulk mailing rate is scheduled to go up very soon. The exact new price has not been announced.

THE WILL THAT WINS

Many a man has gone down in defeat for the simple reason that he made only half - hearted attempts to reach his goal. Half-hearted attempts can only bring about despair, and despair is what forces a man to quit before he reaches the goal line. Which brings up this interesting little story which we like to keep handy for frequent reading:

Nothing will take the place of the kind of determination possessed by the youngster with a shining new pair of skates. Every stroke ended in a tumble. Sympathetic strangers watched the struggle until they saw tears forming in the boy's eyes. Then one of them suggested: "Buddy, you are only getting yourself hurt. Why don't you give up and watch the others?"

Whereupon the spunky little fellow who had aroused such sympathy toward himself blurted out this straight - from - the-heart reply:

"I didn't buy these skates to quit with - I bought 'em to learn how with!"

TIME RUNNING OUT

President Johnson's proposal for a Department of Transportation now pending before Congress has been favorably received by major segments of the transportation industry. One of the first tasks to which such a department should address its attention is the coordination of government activities in the transportation field.

An official of the Association of American Railroads says that a move in this direction could begin with those provisions of the legislation which call for the need to "develop and recommend national transportation policies and programs" and to evolve "standards and criteria . . . for the formulation and economic evaluation of all proposals for the investment of federal funds in transportation facilities or equipment."

Under pressure of mushrooming population and economic growth, time is running out on antiquated attitudes and policies that have no place in our highly competitive transportation industry. As the rail association official emphasized, archaic government policies which stifle competition and limit the efficient use of transport facilities must be eliminated if transportation "is to be responsive to our nation's pyramiding future needs." He outlines three principles and urged that they be used as guidelines in establishing new transportation policies; 1. The principle of maximum reliance upon competition and minimum reliance upon government regulation. 2. The principle that each mode of transportation must be allowed to perform that service which it can do best. 3. The principle that management be permitted to eliminate waste and unncessary duplication in its utilization of the transportation resources committed to its jurisdiction.

Railroads -- the most regulated element of transportation -- are the backbone of the transport industry. Recognition of this is fundamental to any workable transportation policy.

The nation's independent business propietors who have consistently voted against monopoly building mergers are not enchanted with the proposal to merge cabinet offices, either.

This became quite apparent with the announcement of the results of the nationwide poll conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business in the recommendation now before the Congress to combine the Department of Commerce and the Department of Labor into one agency.

The results show 72 per cent opposed, 22 per cent in favor, with 6 per cent undecided.

In Missouri the result was 72 per cent opposed, 20 per cent in favor, with 8 per cent undecided.

While the nation's small business community has long felt that the Department of Commerce is not concerned with their problems, but is rather an exclusive agency of big business, a feeling that led to the establishment of the Small Business Administration, their historic attitude to the Department of Labor has been even more cool.

Apparently they feel such a merger would result in turning over the entire direction of the national economy, during the time of labor-oriented administrations as at present, to the big labor leaders.

COMMUNISM-LIKE FUNGUS

Communism is like fungus. It is relatively simple to hold down the spread of fungus by keeping clean. Likewise, communism can be held down then beaten simply by keeping it in check and cleaning up often.

Like fungus, communism spreads slowly and surely until it finally chokes the life out of the people it has come in contact with. Communism began with World War I in Russia and by the end of World War II it had engulfed Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and several other countries in Eastern and Central Europe. Fungus is a furtive growth which must spread in order to survive. Communism is much the same in that unknowing to its victims it maliciously drains the economy of whatever it enslaves and must acquire more space to satisfy its hunger. Stalin once said: "We do not want a foot of foreign soil; we shall not yield an inch of our own." But after Stalin had subjected the peasants of Russia to such degradations as forced labor and wholesale deportation and robbing them of their farms to collectivize them, he was in need of more territory since Russian production soon almost ceased to exist.

Generations ago, people knew very little about fungus, but once they began getting some education on the subject, they learned the many ways of deterring it and eventually got rid of it to a large extent.

Communism is no different. All freedom loving people should educate themselves and learn the ways and means of this dreadful disease. Educate first and then clean up, for the infection is spreading and it must be contained before defeated.

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory the woods.

Therein, winter and summer, the seeds of the past lie dormant, ready to spring into instant bloom at any moment the mind wishes to bring them to life again.

Protected from the buffeting of new snows and fresh rains, those timeless flowers dwell serenely in the fair weather of the soul. Only the killing frost of death itself can tumble their unforgettable beauty.

How fares your own inside garden? It is well stocked with flowers— and perhaps a few thistles, too— if you can look back and remember when—

In the days before hippies, only children went barefoot along city streets.

One of the biggest problems in juvenile delinquency was keeping kids from raiding watermelon patches at night. The kids all thought the watermelons were guarded by irate farmers carrying shotguns loaded with bacon rind that would burn your skin off.

Hair dyes were so awful that you could tell at a glance whether a blonde was real or a product of the local drugstore— a "henna blonde."

Only chemists had heard of plastics.

When you went for a Sunday drive, the children in the back seat made a game of counting the number of white horses they saw on the farms. Now they could ride all day and never see a one.

Bluebirds— a lovely sight— seemed almost as common in the country as pigeons in the city. Today many a person old enough to vote has never seen a bluebird in his life.

There were more American homes with outdoor plumbing than indoor plumbing.

If you were too sophisticated to believe that the stork brought babies, you were told either that they grew in cabbage patches or that the doctor found them on tree stumps in the woods.

In most U.S. business offices the secretaries neatly pinned papers together instead of using paper clips.

Falling elevators and runaway horses killed more people each year than automobile accidents. That was 'way back when folks laughed at the phrase "23 Skidoo."

Bashful lads in the prairie states dreamed of growing up and going to sea because, it was thought, "sailors have girls in every port."

It was somewhat unusual to reach maturity without, somewhere along the way, having learned how to milk a cow.

If a fellow lost his buttonbook, he couldn't put on his shoes properly in the morning.

A big front porch was an essential of any home that held a large family, because where else could older daughters be courted without starting neighborhood gossip?

Children believed that if they were bad an evil demon called the boogeyman would get them. The boogeyman was sometimes thought to dwell at the bottom of the backyard well, and during daylight hours some kids were brave enough to throw small stones down the well to torment him.

When you didn't want to eat your lumpy, clotted oatmeal, mother always said, "Think of how many millions of starving children in China would be glad to have that for breakfast!" And all you wanted to find was an easy way to send it to them.

No minister felt his Sunday sermon was up to snuff unless it contained a denunciation of the devil and a vivid description of the everlasting pangs of hellfire. When he leaned back in his pulpit, exhausted, you could almost smell sulphur fumes in the church.

If people wanted something but couldn't pay cash for it, they did without it rather than go into debt.

Those were the days. Remember?

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

HONOLULU -- Here in Hawaii you understand the full impact of the war in Southeast Asia, the tremendous job of planning, of supply and command. For this is the hub of the war, the point where general policy is relayed from Washington to Saigon.

Here also you come to understand the political factors that make the war difficult to win in Southeast Asia.

And the conclusions seem inescapable that a chain of events is developing which should bring both sides to the peace conference table. They could bring an end to the fighting, or on the other hand lead to drastic and dangerous escalation.

The man in charge of this far-flung operation, Admiral U. S. Grant Sharp, commander of the Pacific Fleet, is a mild-mannered, pale - blue-eyed sailor, born in Montana, who commanded part of our naval operations in the Korean war and is now the over-all commander of Gen. William Westmoreland in South Vietnam.

It is Admiral Sharp's carriers which launch the daily bombing raids on North Vietnam. Naturally he is a firm believer in the wisdom of the bombing policy. He points out that bombing has seriously interrupted rail and truck traffic, has curtailed shipment of supplies south, diverted about 500,000 men to reconstruction work, forced farm labor to leave food production, destroyed half of the north's manufacturing potential, congested the seaports, tripled the time it takes for communist ships to unload, and forced the dispersion of the oil industry. He also believes that bombing must be extended to the key cities of Hanoi and Haiphong.

MILITARY ACHIEVEMENTS

The work of supporting American troops and building up South Vietnam has made tremendous advances. In January 1967, 35,000 tons of military supplies were unloaded in Saigon. In 1967, this has increased to an average of 700,000 tons per month. Bien Hoa has become the biggest airport in the world, with a plane landing on taking off every 42 seconds.

The civilian pacification program has been intensified to the point where 2,400,000 students are now in secondary schools-- double the number of five years ago.

Despite these military and civilian accomplishments, peace sentiment is strong in South Vietnam. And the Americans of oriental descent living in Hawaii who understand oriental philosophy explain the reasons why.

The military strategy of bombing the enemy to the peace table, they say, will never work in North Vietnam. And the Americans of oriental descent living in Hawaii who understand oriental philosophy explain the reasons why.

The military strategy of bombing the enemy to the peace table, they say, will never work in North Vietnam. It didn't work when Hitler rained bombs over London. It strengthened British morale. And it won't work in a more primitive country where lives are cheap and people can escape to the hills and the rice paddies overnight.

Orientals point to the fact that it hasn't worked during 26 years of constant Vietnamese warfare and occupation under the Japanese, the French, and the Americans.

FACTORS FOR PEACE

Meanwhile, several important factors point to the probability of peace talks. They are:

1-- Every candidate for president in the South Vietnam elections talked peace. The war is so unpopular that they couldn't do otherwise. Even Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, Chief of State, proposed peace talks and a bombing holiday -- if the Americans agreed. He knew in advance the Americans would agree, because sagacious Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker had been encouraging him to open avenues to peace.

2--Another peace feeler has recently come from Hanoi. It's difficult to tell how firm these feelers are, but this one is reinforced by U. N. Secretary General Thant and neutralist Burma.

3-- President Johnson has reached the point of political no return as far as the war is concerned. His senate support for the war is now down to about 50-50, and his domestic program, especially for the big cities, is suffering badly as a result of war appropriations.

4-- Gen. Westmoreland's request for 100,000 troops has been scaled down to 45,000 and even this number has not yet been supplies. Twice Secretary of Defense McNamara has vetoed the joint chiefs of staff's request that the reserves be called up. The White House is opposed.

Most important development of all, however, may be the discovery that the Viet Cong have hauled Russian rocket launchers to within a short distance of Saigon. This will make Saigon as vulnerable to attack as Hanoi would be from U.S. bombers.

The launchers throw a rocket two feet long and could fire into the heart of Saigon. So far Saigon has been outside the range of enemy guns. The Viet Cong have been forced to use secret agents to sneak in and blow up its buildings.

But with the new rocket-launchers, they could pour relentless day and night fire into a vast and teeming city which is much less prepared for bombing than Hanoi. There has been so much talk about bombing Hanoi that it has dispersed its strategic offices and prepared bomb shelters. Saigon, however, is totally unprepared.

These are some of the factors in the turbulent, ever-changing picture of the war which point toward a precarious peace.

Inside Labor

TWILIGHT OF A NATION

How Tough Skilled Workers' Unions' Restrictions Bankrupted an Empire.

London: -- A quiet revolution is stirring the U.S. Our skilled workers are coming out of their two-car garages, small ranch homes, good flats and are converging variously on the auto industry, shipbuilding, the newspapers, and space industries in particular and business in general. Skilled men are scarce and they believe they have it made. They think prosperity is as permanent as the Rock of Gibralter. Well they should take a second look at the big rock. Politically it's a mighty shaky stone.

If our skilled tradesmen want to observe their British cousins running a great nation into the ground let them look eastward to the once mighty United Kingdom. Here the skilled craftsman is as powerful as his American counterpart - and unless he gets less cocky, the British skilled worker will help bankrupt the land, ruin its currency, make private savings almost valueless and find himself on the dole.

So tight are the craft workers union restrictions that fully hundreds of thousands of workers are paid for doing nothing but to stand around. So though are the unions' jurisdictional lines in the shipbuilding industry it sometimes takes seven highly paid skilled workers to do one man's job -- all getting full pay.

This report here is based on personal trips to plants and a thorough examination of the documents at the Royal Commission on Trade Unions and Employes' Associations.

There are detailed studies proving that in some sections of the British newspaper industries, production and distribution, at least 34 per cent of the employes are paid for doing nothing -- redundant, they call them. Superfluous, we call them.

Furthermore, some of the highly paid graphic arts workers -- meaning print shops -- actually sweep the floors or carry messages to make work. But they can only carry messages or paper from one department to a line drawn on the floor. Then another skilled worker, at skilled rates, picks it up and goes to another chalk line.

There is also "ghost" work. This develops when there is a need for extra pages. Ordinarily such extra work would require additional machines and union men. But the union says that the regular force can handle the sudden spurt. They simply pick up a little speed.

But the pay is reckoned at the rate of what extra equipment and manpower would have been necessary if the union men had not worked at a swifter pace. The ghost machines and ghost employes actually are put on the payroll accounting, but the ghosts' wages are divided and handed to the regular staff.

Thus the added costs accrue. In the electrical construction field there are "mates" (apprentices or helpers). Scores of thousands of them are paid for doing nothing or for working three and a half hours during a day. They stand around, hand up a tool now and then or "hold" a ladder for the journeyman electrician. Thus they are paid for doing nothing at all 65 per cent of the time.

Now for shipbuilding. Once the United Kingdom was the world's leader. Craft unions, or their predecessors began when ships were built in wood. Then just about the time our chief Sittin Bull took his first scalp back home and wood began yielding to iron on ship hulls, the British craft unions decided that tradition is tradition. The works practices of that time still hold over.

The unions developed "demarcation" of labor among themselves (jurisdiction). Sometimes different unions fight for the same work. Sometimes sections of the membership inside one union battle each other for the job.

There is, for example, the making of a portlight. In most shipbuilding yards around the world, one man, perhaps two, make such a portlight. Here this has happened: First a shipwright marks the position of the portlight. A burner (acetylene torch welder) cuts the opening. A caulker "dresses" it. A driller drills and fits the frame. A brass finisher polishes it off and fits the hinged glass frame. A driller fits the deadlight. Then a joiner (or driller) fits the deadlight hook to the linings of the steel deckhead. One such operation may be all that one of these men will do for hours since he must wait for the others to start and finish.

And then there is "overmanning." The practice holding over from wooden wrigate days lays rigid rules for the number of men on a job. In the Mersey district, for example, the Boilermakers insisted on a continued application on a welding agreement signed generations ago. Though it is completely out of date, it can require 42 boilermakers on an acetylane torch job when only ten are needed.

Also two men had to be on each torch, though only one was needed.

Add to this jurisdictional rigidity the battles between unions winding up in costly strikes. Plumbers, engineers coppersmiths fight over who shall install certain kinds of piping. Carpenters and upholsterers battle over who should lay linoleum on particular surfaces. Woodworkers (carpenters), sheet - metal workers and shipwrights struggle over who shall drill holes in aluminum sheet and bolt it to wood.

Add to all this the tough army of 200,000 union shop stewards who do not produce but who are paid high wages by the employer. The shop steward has his place inside the shops and factories of this society but the system does mean that the equivalent of 750,000 men in the U.S. simply do nothing but handle occasional grievances and whip up trouble.

No doubt the scarce skilled worker can get tough anywhere. But he had better have a mind to what may happen when he gets too rigid, too tough and too expensive -- and forces his country to price itself out of the world market.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

FIRST-GRADE TEACHER

In a recent copy of Catholic Quote, we noted an item by Mrs. Janet Gorrell Meyer which is appropos particularly at this time. We quote it as follows. . . .

When I am introduced as a teacher, I am usually asked what I teach. When I say "first-grade", I generally hear a very flat "Oh!"

I have never been certain whether this is an expression of pity, sympathy, disgust or perhaps disinterest. Always I wish I had the time to tell people something like this:

Yes, I teach first-grade.

Where else would a handsome and very young man put his arms around me and ask, "Do you know that I love you?"

Where else would I tie so many hair ribbons and belts and daily get to see a style show of pretty dresses and shirts?

Where else could I wear the same dress day after day and be told each time that it is pretty?

Where else could I walk up and down aisles and have warm hands touch me?

Where else could I have the privilege of wiggling loose teeth and receive a promise that I may pull them when they are loose?

Where else could I eat a soiled piece of candy from a grimy little hand and not get ill? (I have to eat it because he watches to see that I do.)

Where else would the future look as bright as it does amid an energetic group to whom nothing is impossible?

Where else could I guide the first letter formations of a chubby little hand that may some day write a book or an important document?

Where else could I forget my own aches and pains because so many cut fingers, scratched knees, bumped heads, and broken hearts need care?

Where else could I forget taxes and even "the state of the nation" because Stevie isn't grasping reading as he should and other methods must be tried?

Where else would my mind have to stay so young as with a group whose attention span in so short that I must keep a "bag of tricks up my sleeve"?

Where else could I feel so close to my Maker as I do each year when, because of something I have done, little children learn to read?

Yes, I do teach the first-grade, Mr. and Mrs. America.

And I love it!

More than ever, this country needs trained, educated people to continue the progress America has made and to take their rightful places in the society that is developing.

Much of the poverty and unemployment that exists today is directly related to the lack of education and preparation by previous generations.

Right now there are 2 million youngsters in this country in the 16 to 21 age group who dropped out of school before earning their high school diploma. Nearly a fourth of them are unemployed. Most of the rest are stuck in dead-end jobs, without any real future.

Large gains have been made in the fight against ignorance, unemployment and poverty during the past several years. Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz recently reported that 2 million more people are working and 1 million more are in high school and college than the population increase of the last three years accounts for.

The Education Campaign of the past two years has helped in this progress. It has paid big dividends by inspiring dropouts to return to the classrooms and encouraging the undecided to finish their education. In 1960 the dropout rate was 25 percent. Last year it had decreased to 18 percent.

But 18 percent is too high for a Nation to tolerate. The frightening fact remains that at the current dropout rate by 1975 there will be 32 million adults in the labor force without a high school education -- 32 million who will be unqualified for most of the jobs available then.

This newspaper supports the efforts being made to keep our youth in school and help them from becoming future victims of deprivation and poverty.

But it takes more than our support. It needs and commands the support and effort of every citizen.

Youngsters who have already dropped out of school need special help. They need to be counseled and guided into training that will help them develop skills for today's jobs. Others on the verge of leaving school before completing their education dropout many times to earn money to support their families or to buy necessities for themselves. Action by the business community in the form of part-time jobs is needed to help them stay in school.

You can serve your country best by helping to insure that tomorrow's leaders are educated today.

EXPENSIVE 'JUNK'

This is intended to be a short lesson in business economics on the topic of bulk mailing. It was prompted by a merchant who asked for this information.

This so-called "junk mail" may be just that to many people, but it begins to take on an entirely different aspect when the small merchant ventures into this field for the first time.

THE POST OFFICE Department charges $15 for a permit. This is a one-time only charge, and need not be renewed so long as the permit holder uses that permit at least once each year.

However, the PO Department charges another annual "Bulk Mailing Fee" of $30.00. That $30 lug must be paid each year to keep the permit alive.

After that, each mailing piece is charged for at the rate of 2 7/8 cents.

The mailer must also count out the correct number of pieces and identify each bundle by its correct address. In each bundle the handbills, folders or whatnot, must be counted out in multiples of 10. The mailer can do this himself, or he can hire it done by private individuals who charge according to the number of pieces handled.

THE OCCASIONAL user of this form of mailing can save $15 by using an established mailing permit number, and paying a fee of $30 for that privilege.

For example, a one-time only mailer would pay $45 for permit and bulk fee, plus $69.43 postage, plus $10 sorting and tying or a total of $124.43 to cover the Charleston area.

Who said junk?

P. S. The bulk mailing rate is scheduled to go up very soon. The exact new price has not been announced.

THE WILL THAT WINS

Many a man has gone down in defeat for the simple reason that he made only half - hearted attempts to reach his goal. Half-hearted attempts can only bring about despair, and despair is what forces a man to quit before he reaches the goal line. Which brings up this interesting little story which we like to keep handy for frequent reading:

Nothing will take the place of the kind of determination possessed by the youngster with a shining new pair of skates. Every stroke ended in a tumble. Sympathetic strangers watched the struggle until they saw tears forming in the boy's eyes. Then one of them suggested: "Buddy, you are only getting yourself hurt. Why don't you give up and watch the others?"

Whereupon the spunky little fellow who had aroused such sympathy toward himself blurted out this straight - from - the-heart reply:

"I didn't buy these skates to quit with - I bought 'em to learn how with!"

TIME RUNNING OUT

President Johnson's proposal for a Department of Transportation now pending before Congress has been favorably received by major segments of the transportation industry. One of the first tasks to which such a department should address its attention is the coordination of government activities in the transportation field.

An official of the Association of American Railroads says that a move in this direction could begin with those provisions of the legislation which call for the need to "develop and recommend national transportation policies and programs" and to evolve "standards and criteria . . . for the formulation and economic evaluation of all proposals for the investment of federal funds in transportation facilities or equipment."

Under pressure of mushrooming population and economic growth, time is running out on antiquated attitudes and policies that have no place in our highly competitive transportation industry. As the rail association official emphasized, archaic government policies which stifle competition and limit the efficient use of transport facilities must be eliminated if transportation "is to be responsive to our nation's pyramiding future needs." He outlines three principles and urged that they be used as guidelines in establishing new transportation policies; 1. The principle of maximum reliance upon competition and minimum reliance upon government regulation. 2. The principle that each mode of transportation must be allowed to perform that service which it can do best. 3. The principle that management be permitted to eliminate waste and unncessary duplication in its utilization of the transportation resources committed to its jurisdiction.

Railroads -- the most regulated element of transportation -- are the backbone of the transport industry. Recognition of this is fundamental to any workable transportation policy.

The nation's independent business propietors who have consistently voted against monopoly building mergers are not enchanted with the proposal to merge cabinet offices, either.

This became quite apparent with the announcement of the results of the nationwide poll conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business in the recommendation now before the Congress to combine the Department of Commerce and the Department of Labor into one agency.

The results show 72 per cent opposed, 22 per cent in favor, with 6 per cent undecided.

In Missouri the result was 72 per cent opposed, 20 per cent in favor, with 8 per cent undecided.

While the nation's small business community has long felt that the Department of Commerce is not concerned with their problems, but is rather an exclusive agency of big business, a feeling that led to the establishment of the Small Business Administration, their historic attiude to the Department of Labor has been even more cool.

Apparently they feel such a merger would result in turning over the entire direction of the national economy, during the time of labor-oriented administrations as at present, to the big labor leaders.

COMMUNISM-LIKE FUNGUS

Communism is like fungus. It is relatively simple to hold down the spread of fungus by keeping clean. Likewise, communism can be held down then beaten simply by keeping it in check and cleaning up often.

Like fungus, communism spreads slowly and surely until it finally chokes the life out of the people it has come in contact with. Communism began with World War I in Russia and by the end of World War II it had engulfed Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and several other countries in Eastern and Central Europe. Fungus is a furtive growth which must spread in order to survive. Communism is much the same in that unknowing to its victims it maliciously drains the economy of whatever it enslaves and must acquire more space to satisfy its hunger. Stalin once said: "We do not want a foot of foreign soil; we shall not yield an inch of our own." But after Stalin had subjected the peasants of Russia to such degradations as forced labor and wholesale deportation and robbing them of their farms to collectivize them, he was in need of more territory since Russian production soon almost ceased to exist.

Generations ago, people knew very little about fungus, but once they began getting some education on the subject, they learned the many ways of deterring it and eventually got rid of it to a large extent.

Communism is no different. All freedom loving people should educate themselves and learn the ways and means of this dreadful disease. Educate first and then clean up, for the infection is spreading and it must be contained before defeated.

TWILIGHT OF A NATION

How Tough Skilled Workers' Unions' Restrictions Bankrupted an Empire.

London: -- A quiet revolution is stirring the U.S. Our skilled workers are coming out of their two-car garages, small ranch homes, good flats and are converging variously on the auto industry, shipbuilding, the newspapers, and space industries in particular and business in general. Skilled men are scarce and they believe they have it made. They think prosperity is as permanent as the Rock of Gibralter. Well they should take a second look at the big rock. Politically it's a mighty shaky stone.

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the best of all gardens.

Therein, winter and summer, the seeds of the past lie dormant, ready to spring into instant bloom at any moment the mind wishes to bring them to life again.

Protected from the buffeting of new snows and fresh rains, those timeless flowers dwell serenely in the fair weather of the soul. Only the killing frost of death itself can tumble their unforgettable beauty.

How fares your own inside garden? It is well stocked with flowers— and perhaps a few thistles, too— if you can look back and remember when—

In the days before hippies, only children went barefoot along city streets.

One of the biggest problems in juvenile delinquency was keeping kids from raiding watermelon patches at night. The kids all thought the watermelons were guarded by irate farmers carrying shotguns loaded with bacon rind that would burn your skin off.

Hair dyes were so awful that you could tell at a glance whether a blonde was real or a product of the local drugstore— a "henna blonde."

Only chemists had heard of plastics.

When you went for a Sunday drive, the children in the back seat made a game of counting the number of white horses they saw on the farms. Now they could ride all day and never see a one.

Bluebirds— a lovely sight— seemed almost as common in the country as pigeons in the city. Today many a person old enough to vote has never seen a bluebird in his life.

There were more American homes with outdoor plumbing than indoor plumbing.

If you were too sophisticated to believe that the stork brought babies, you were told either that they grew in cabbage patches or that the doctor found them on tree stumps in the woods.

In most U.S. business offices the secretaries neatly pinned papers together instead of using paper clips.

Falling elevators and runaway horses killed more people each year than automobile accidents. That was 'way back when folks laughed at the phrase "23 Skidoo."

Bashful lads in the prairie states dreamed of growing up and going to sea because, it was thought, "sailors have girls in every port."

It was somewhat unusual to reach maturity without, somewhere along the way, having learned how to milk a cow.

If a fellow lost his buttonbook, he couldn't put on his shoes properly in the morning.

A big front porch was an essential of any home that held a large family, because where else could older daughters be courted without starting neighborhood gossip?

Children believed that if they were bad an evil demon called the bocgeyman would get them. The bo geyman was sometimes thought to dwell at the bottom of the backyard well, and during daylight hours some kids were brave enough to throw small stones down the well to torment him.

When you didn't want to eat your lumpy, clotted oatmeal, mother always said, "Think of how many millions of starving children in China would be glad to have that for breakfast!" And all you wanted to find was an easy way to send it to them.

No minister felt his Sunday sermon was up to snuff unless it contained a denunciation of the devil and a vivid description of the everlasting pangs of hellfire. When he leaned back in his pulpit, exhausted, you could almost smell sulphur fumes in the church.

If people wanted something but couldn't pay cash for it, they did without it rather than go into debt.

Those were the days. Remember?

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

HONOLULU -- Here in Hawaii you understand the full impact of the war in Southeast Asia, the tremendous job of planning, of supply and command. For this is the hub of the war, the point where general policy is relayed from Washington to Saigon.

Here also you come to understand the political factors that make the war difficult to win in Southeast Asia.

And the conclusions seem inescapable that a chain of events is developing which should bring both sides to the peace conference table. They could bring an end to the fighting, or on the other hand lead to drastic and dangerous escalation.

The man in charge of this far-flung operation, Admiral U.S. Grant Sharp, commander of the Pacific Fleet, is a mild-mannered, pale - blue-eyed sailor, born in Montana, who commanded part of our naval operations in the Korean war and is now the over-all commander of Gen. William Westmoreland in South Vietnam.

It is Admiral Sharp's carriers which launch the daily bombing raids on North Vietnam. Naturally he is a firm believer in the wisdom of the bombing policy. He points out that bombing has seriously interrupted rail and truck traffic, has curtailed shipment of supplies south, diverted about 500,000 men to reconstruction work, forced farm labor to leave food production, destroyed half of the north's manufacturing potential, congested the seaports, tripled the time it takes for communist ships to unload, and forced the dispersion of the oil industry. He also believes that bombing must be extended to the key cities of Hanoi and Haiphong.

MILITARY ACHIEVEMENTS

The work of supporting American troops and building up South Vietnam has made tremendous advances. In January 1967, 35,000 tons of military supplies were unloaded in Saigon. In 1967, this has increased to an average of 700,000 tons per month. Bien Hoa has become the biggest airport in the world, with a plane landing on taking off every 42 seconds.

The civilian pacification program has been intensified to the point where 2,400,000 students are now in secondary schools-- double the number of five years ago.

Despite these military and civilian accomplishments, peace sentiment is strong in South Vietnam. And the Americans of oriental descent living in Hawaii who understand oriental philosophy explain the reasons why.

The military strategy of bombing the enemy to the peace table, they say, will never work in North Vietnam. It didn't work when Hitler rained bombs over London. It strengthened British morale. And it won't work in a more primitive country where lives are cheap and people can escape to the hills and the rice paddies overnight.

Orientals point to the fact that it hasn't worked during 26 years of constant Vietnamese warfare and occupation under the Japanese, the French, and the Americans.

FACTORS FOR PEACE

Meanwhile, several important factors point to the probability of peace talks. They are:

1-- Every candidate for president in the South Vietnam elections talked peace. The war is so unpopular that they couldn't do otherwise. Even Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, Chief of State, proposed peace talks and a bombing holiday -- if the Americans agreed. He knew in advance the Americans would agree, because sagacious Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker had been encouraging him to open avenues to peace.

2--Another peace feeler has recently come from Hanoi. It's difficult to tell how firm these feelers are, but this one is reinforced by U. N. Secretary General Thant and neutralist Burma.

3-- President Johnson has reached the point of political no return as far as the war is concerned. His senate support for the war is now down to about 50-50, and his domestic program, especially for the big cities, is suffering badly as a result of war appropriations.

4-- Gen. Westmoreland's request for 100,000 troops has been scaled down to 45,000 and even this number has not yet been supplies. Twice Secretary of Defense McNamara has vetoed the joint chiefs of staff's request that the reserves be called up. The White House is opposed.

Most important development of all, however, may be the discovery that the Viet Cong have hauled Russian rocket launchers to within a short distance of Saigon. This will make Saigon as vulnerable to attack as Hanoi would be from U.S. bombers.

The launchers throw a rocket two feet long and could fire into the heart of Saigon. So far Saigon has been outside the range of enemy guns. The Viet Cong have been forced to use secret agents to sneak in and blow up its buildings.

But with the new rocket-launchers, they could pour relentless day and night fire into a vast and teeming city which is much less prepared for bombing than Hanoi. There has been so much talk about bombing Hanoi that it has dispersed its strategic offices and prepared bomb shelters. Saigon, however, is totally unprepared.

These are some of the factors in the turbulent, ever-changing picture of the war which point toward a precarious peace.

Hudson Speaks at DAR Meeting

The Kingshighway chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Helen Jones, regent, with Mrs. Gladys Renner as co-hostess.

A dessert was served before the meeting.

Mrs. Jones opened the meeting with the ritual, pledge of allegiance to the flag, pledge of allegiance to Missouri lead by Miss Margaret Harris, American's Creed lead by Mrs. Audley Brown and the national anthem.

The president general's message was read by Mrs. Hazelle Wilson. The message said the public school system should be sure to keep teaching the children the history of the Constitution and never let the history of the United States be put on the back shelves and forgotten.

Mrs. Alice Huff was appointed chairman of the children of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Frank Hudson of Charleston agreed to help her with the starting of the chapter in Sikeston.

Mrs. Velna Brown invited the club to come to the Gallery in Charleston starting next Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily through Sept. 29.

Roll call was answered by the telling of an ancestor of each member.

The district meeting in DeSoto will be Sept. 19 at the St. Andrews Methodist church, 1200 Rock Road. Reservations should be sent to Mrs. Sam McKinstry, Blackwell, Mo. 63226.

The state conference will be held in St. Louis at the Chase Park Plaza hotel, March 25-27.

The 77th Continental Congress will be held in Washington, D.C. April 15-19.

The national defence was given by Miss Lucille Howlett. It reported that part of the Land-Lease assistance furnished to the Soviet Union during World War II was in the form of 84 merchant ships and 48 miscellaneous army and navy watercraft. Among them were the ships now being used in Vietnam by the Soviets. In the agreement signed June 11, 1942, by the governments of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the United States of America it was provided that at the end of World War II such articles as had been transferred under the agreement and had not been destroyed, lost or consumed should be returned to the United States. These ships have not been returned nor has any settlement been reached regarding payment for them.

Frank Hudson, Charleston, gave the program. His subject was "The Constitution." He told the group that for the time that it was written the Constitution could be called a very radical piece of work. With the turmoil and confusion in that time, every word was considered and discussed before it was written into the constitution. Then the supreme court was formed to give the letter of the law and the intent of the law, then the Bill of Rights was formed to be able to make amendments to the Constitution with the changing of the times.

Miss Bridges Marries Jimmy Smith

ADVANCE -- Miss Evelyn Bridges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Winchester became the bride of Jimmy Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of Advance, at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Assembly of God church. The Rev. Frank Heitman performed the single ring ceremony after traditional wedding music played by Mrs. Heitman, organist, in a setting provided by lighted candles in candelabra and baskets of white flowers.

Mrs. Bob Winchester and Mrs. Wilbur Winchester were in charge of the guest book.

The bride, given in marriage by her guardian, Wilbur Winchester, was attired in a floor-length gown of satin brocade fashioned with a fitted bodice with round neckline and long sleeves which ended in points at the back of the hands. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion was attached to a dainty headpiece outlined with pearls and rhinestones and she carried a bridal bouquet of white pompons and red roses.

Mrs. Dallas Dover of St. Louis was the bride's only attendant and wore a rose pink dress and headpiece fashioned by Mrs. Wilbur Winchester of this city who, also, fashioned the bride's dress and veil. Mrs. Dover carried a single large white rose.

Smith chose Wayne McCullogh of St. Louis as his attendant.

For the wedding Mrs. Lee Winchester wore a blue knit dress and harmonizing accessories. Mrs. Smith, mother of the groom, wore a pink dress and white accessories. Their corsages were of white carnations.

A reception was given at the church immediately after the wedding and the entertaining room was decorated in red and white. The bride's table, covered with white lace also carried out the red and white color scheme and was centered with a two tiered cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. Guests were served by Mrs. Bob Winchester and Mrs. Wilbur Winchester.

After a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination Smith and his bride will make their home in Cape Girardeau. For travel the new Mrs. Smith wore a beige two piece lace suit, enhanced with the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The former Miss Bridges is a 1967 graduate of Advance high school.

Smith, also, a graduate of Advance high school, is employed by Uregas Company in Cape Girardeau.

Kegler's Korner

By Hildred Poole

Hello! Mary Meyer is not feeling quite up to par this week so I'm pinch hitting for her.

It sure is nice to get back in to the swing of things and see all the friends you have missed all summer and then to make some new ones. So far there are several gals bowling that are new to town or just new to bowling and we really are glad to have them.

DELTA IMPERIALETTS

Potlatch 4-Police 0, Ziegenhorn 3-Barketts 1, Reiss Dairy 3-A&B Pastries 1, Zieglers Superette 3-Campbell Farms 1, L & A Laundry 3 - Crown Finance 1, Progressive Loan 2 - Ferrell Rental 2.

Wanda Baugher really started out the year with a bang with a big 211 game but Norma Baker took high series with a 523.

ROYAL KEGLERS

First National Bank 4- Holyfield Flying 0, Liberty 3 - Herb Stephens Realtor 1, Lewis Furniture 3 - C. D. Alcorn Agency 1, The No Names 2 1/2 - Malone and Hyde 1 1/2, Busch 2 - Bank of Sikeston 2, General Oil 2 - Wade's Body Shop 2.

Jean Lee (Little Dynamite) started out okay in this league with a 188 game but again Norma Baker took high series with a 503.

FRIDAY BOWLETTS

More Birds In Your Bag

Doves, unlike quail, provide three distinct methods of hunting: feeding ground, waterhole, and flyway. With or without a dog, the hunter walks-up quail; but two methods of dove shooting actually are stand hunting. The hunter takes a position at a waterhole or on a flyway and waits for the doves to come in.

Although the stand is an effortless way to hunt, it is not easy --that is, if you count your hulls in comparison with the bag. A flying dove seems to be a large target -- because of wingspread and tail feathers -- but its speed of flight and aerial antics make it a difficult bullseye, particularly in late season.

Doves, I believe, attract more hunters inexperienced in wing shooting than do other types of birds. Ratio of hulls to doves in the bag is an indication; and also suggests consistent pre-season practice with the shotgun for pattern check, for conditioning and for gun familiarity.

Few, if any, knowing hunters would go afield with a rifle that they personally had not sighted-in; yet many hunters go after doves each year with shotguns that have not been patterned or corrected. Successful dove shooting demands a dense, uniform pattern that prints where the gunner is looking -- provided he's mounting and cheeking gun correctly.

When checking shotgun pattern, I try to duplicate actual shooting conditions -- that is, as much as possible with a still target. I mark off a 40-yard range and set up regular pattern target or a piece of cardboard large enough to accommodate a 30-inch circle, with 3-inch bullseye in center. Dropping back some 45 yards, I walk toward the target -- eyes roving, not concentrated -- then shoulder the gun and fire quickly from the 40-yard marker.

After perforating several targets at 40 yards, it's no trouble to count the holes and figure out percentage of pellets in the circle. I quarter the circle with pencil marks to make counting easier and to determine where and how much the concentration is -- whether right or left, high or low. The average of several targets provides a pretty good picture of where pellets are striking in relations to the bullseye.

It's advantageous to try all available dove loads in various brands because some will pattern better than others in any one gun. Try both No. 7 1/2 and 8 in various loads until you find the most uniform pattern. This may or may not be a high velocity load but give the lighter loads a thorough testing -- you may be surprised at the results.

The handloader has an advantage over the counter buyer because he can develop specific loads for specific game under various shooting conditions. And he usually learns quickly that more powder and more shot don't necessarily mean a better pattern. In a 20-gauge OU, for which I handload, I get better patterns with 7/8 oz. of shot than with 1 ounce.

High velocity is not a cure-all; it's pellets in the bird that count. A good pattern is easier to hit with -- even if the pellets are traveling a bit slower.

Handloading provides another advantage for the scatter gunner, particularly the double owner. With special loads he can convert his modified and full choke into improved cylinder and modified or get tight patterns from more open bores.

If the pattern doesn't concentrate where you're looking, you may not be cheeking the comb correctly or stock dimensions may need altering in length, pitch, comb height, or thickness. Check with an experienced shooter or gunsmith until the gun throws its pattern where you're looking.

Locating doves requires little practice. If they're around, the hunter will see them in trees, on wires, taking gravel or in the feeding areas. Doves usually concentrate around feed grounds, waterholes or roosts. They're gregarious birds, and perch or fly in pairs or flights, numbers depending on concentration of doves in the vicinity.

Walking-up feeding doves is similar to hunting quail without a dog. Unlike a covey rise, however, doves get up in singles, doubles or staggered relays as the hunter moves through the feeding ground. Although its rising flight usually is not as jet-propelled as the bobwhite's, the dove resorts to more aerial antics in its takeoff. One may rise rapidly and head for the trees; the next dove may be a straight-away winging slowly just over the sunflower stalks; and the third one may bank sharply right or left. Seldom will one particular lead apply to the next flush.

It's this variation in takeoff that makes feed ground hunting an interesting challenge.

Doves like most any type of grain, and will concentrate around fields both before and after harvesting. Feed grain -- maize particularly -- will attract most of the doves in any one area. Harvested fields of peanuts also results in a heavy concentration of doves.

August Welfare Is $169,000

A total of $169,444.03 was paid to 2,180 cases by the Scott county welfare department in August, Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, county welfare director, reports.

Old age assistance with 1,264 cases had a total payment of $87,342 or $69.10 per case. Old age assistance nursing care and vendor payments had 55 cases receiving a total of $5,250.03 or $95.45 per case.

Aid to dependent children had 436 cases with 1,400 children receiving a total of $46,709, or $107.13 per case and $33.36 per child.

General relief had 172 cases with 198 persons receiving a total of $11,945, or $69.45 per case and $60.33 per person.

Permanent and total disability had 213 cases receiving $14,998 or $70.41 per case.

Thirty-nine cases on the aid to the blind roll received $3,120 or $80 per case. One blind pension for $80 was paid.

Of the 112 children receiving child welfare services, 54 were protective services, 24 foster home care and 34 services were given to adoptive and unmarried mothers and supplementary services.

DRIVER EDUCATION

Mothers of America, pour a cup of coffee, put your feet up and relax. It's school time again. While you enjoy your end-of-the-summer peace and quiet, your thoughts may turn to how drastically things have changed since you were in school. But while you are pondering the new math you and your children will be muddling through this year, chances are good that your teenager is thinking first and foremost about Driver Education. This is his passport to freedom. If your child has the benefit of a good Driver Ed course, and if he takes driving seriously, he should be a capable driver . . . certainly a much better one initially than his mother or father was at his age.

But his education still may be somewhat lacking one vital ingredient: a knowledge of the machine he will command. Many Driver Ed courses are woefully short in the car care phase of training, in such subjects as why brakes fail, why radiators overheat, why engines stall.

What does this have to do with being a good driver? Just this: Your new driver cannot be safe in an unsafe car. And unless he is mechanically inclined to begin with, he may not know the car he is driving is unsafe. He may not recognize loose steering, or a low brake pedal or a broken shock absorber. These things and many other mechanical problems contribute to accident situations.

Why not check into your school's Driver Education course to see if the students are being taught this important aspect of highway safety? If it is not included, suggest it. Many firms and organizations have prepared helpful material for this purpose.

The Safe Car Educational Institute's series of film strips, for example, was produced specifically for Driver Education classes. Called "Car Care for Safety", the series covers the automobile from bumper to bumper with easy to understand sketches and narration.

If your child is ready for Driver Education, take it upon yourself to see that he gets the best training possible. Suggest that your school write for information about "Car Care for Safety". The address is: Safe Car Educational Institute, c/o Motor and Equipment Manufacturers Association, 304 West 58th Street, New York, New York 10019.

TORONTO AP - Danny Pecora of Wheeling, Ill., John Tannehill of Middleport, Ohio, and Del Sweeris of Grand Rapids, Mich., scored two victories apiece in the men's singles events at an international table tennis tourney Friday. Football Cards Wind Up Pre-Season Campaign Fri.

ST. LOUIS -- With only one victory to show for three starts, the St. Louis Football Cardinals wind up the pre-season portion of their campaign when they entertain the Detroit Lions here Friday night.

The game, whose proceeds go to benefit the St. Louis Symphony Society, will begin at 8:35 p.m. (CDT).

Friday's game will be the first of a pair of 1967 meetings between the Big Red and the Lions. The clubs, which have not met in the regular season since 1961, also will tangle here on October 1.

Detroit, 2-2 for the pre-season campaign, has won two of three games from American Football League foes, and lost to the Baltimore Colts.

Oddly, the Colts are the only victim of the Cardinals, this summer. The Big Red topped Baltimore, 9-5, here on August 21, but has lost to Pittsburgh, New Orleans and Chicago.

Jim Hart, who has completed 61 of 128 passes for 844 yards in the pre-season, again will lead the Cardinal attack, with John Roland and Roy Shivers probably paired in the backfield.

After Friday's game, the Big Red will start preparing for the season opener, schedule here on Sunday, September 17, against the New York Giants in Fran Tarkenton's Eastern Conference debut. Tickets for it, and for all Big Red home games, are on sale at Cardinal ticket office, 200 Stadium Plaza.

GOLD MEDAL AWARD winner of the National Football Foundation is Dr. Frederick Hovde, president of Purdue University. Hovde once was a quarterback at the University of Minnesota.

More Birds In Your Bag

Doves, unlike quail, provide three distinct methods of hunting: feeding ground, waterhole, and flyway. With or without a dog, the hunter walks-up quail; but two methods of dove shooting actually are stand hunting. The hunter takes a position at a waterhole or on a flyway and waits for the doves to come in.

Although the stand is an effortless way to hunt, it is not easy --that is, if you count your hulls in comparison with the bag. A flying dove seems to be a large target -- because of wingspread and tail feathers -- but its speed of flight and aerial antics make it a difficult bullseye, particularly in late season.

Doves, I believe, attract more hunters inexperienced in wing shooting than do other types of birds. Ratio of hulls to doves in the bag is an indication; and also suggests consistent pre-season practice with the shotgun for pattern check, for conditioning and for gun familiarity.

Few, if any, knowing hunters would go afield with a rifle that they personally had not sighted-in; yet many hunters go after doves each year with shotguns that have not been patterned or corrected. Successful dove shooting demands a dense, uniform pattern that prints where the gunner is looking --provided he's mounting and cheeking gun correctly.

When checking shotgun pattern, I try to duplicate actual shooting conditions -- that is, as much as possible with a still target. I mark off a 40-yard range and set up regular pattern target or a piece of cardboard large enough to accommodate a 30-inch circle, with 3-inch bullseye in center. Dropping back some 45 yards, I walk toward the target -- eyes roving, not concentrated -- then shoulder the gun and fire quickly from the 40-yard marker.

After perforating several targets at 40 yards, it's no trouble to count the holes and figure out percentage of pellets in the circle. I quarter the circle with pencil marks to make counting easier and to determine where and how much the concentration is -- whether right or left, high or low. The average of several targets provides a pretty good picture of where pellets are striking in relations to the bullseye.

It's advantageous to try all available dove loads in various brands because some will pattern better than others in any one gun. Try both No. 7 1/2 and 8 in various loads until you find the most uniform pattern. This may or may not be a high velocity load but give the lighter loads a thorough testing -- you may be surprised at the results.

The handloader has an advantage over the counter buyer because he can develop specific loads for specific game under various shooting conditions. And he usually learns quickly that more powder and more shot don't necessarily mean a better pattern. In a 20-gauge OU, for which I handload, I get better patterns with 7/8 oz. of shot than with 1 ounce.

High velocity is not a cure-all; it's pellets in the bird that count. A good pattern is easier to hit with -- even if the pellets are traveling a bit slower.

Handloading provides another advantage for the scatter gunner, particularly the double owner. With special loads he can convert his modified and full choke into improved cylinder and modified or get tight patternsn from more open bores.

If the pattern doesn't concentrate where you're looking, you may not be cheeking the comb correctly or stock dimensions may need altering in length, pitch, comb height, or thickness. Check with an experienced shooter or gunsmith until the gun throws its pattern where you're looking.

Locating doves requires little practice. If they're around, the hunter will see them in trees, on wires, taking gravel or in the feeding areas. Doves usually concentrate around feed grounds, waterholes or roosts. They're gregarious birds, and perch or fly in pairs or flights, numbers depending on concentration of doves in the vicinity.

Ann Landers

All Men Should Stay Together

Dear Ann: At a recent social gathering there were nine women and four men present, including me. I am thoroughly masculine and am not the least bit interested in female chatter.

After dinner everyone adjourned to the living room and the conversation was taken over by the women. Ten minutes passed and the three men announced that they were going to the library to play cards. I was not asked to join them and spent the entire evening bored stiff, listening to over-the-fence gossip and cooking and cleaning hints.

This same sort of thing occurred with another group. I was greatly offended and told my wife later that I thought this was the height of bad manners. My wife said I was unduly sensitive. I know how to play cards and wish to make it plain that in both cases the host was one of the offending gentlemen.

Will you comment, please?--ST. LOUIS.

Dear St.: Why in the world wound a man sit with nine women while three other males go off to another room?

You should have gotten up and left when the others did. You did not need a special invitation to join the men.

Dear Ann: I am a 15-year-old girl. My brother and his wife live two blocks from us. They have three small children.

Every time my sister-in-law sees me she asks me to sit with their children "tonight" or "tomorrow night," or "next Saturday." I do not get paid. Last week I asked my mother if I had to sit for them and she said, "Not if you don't want to."

Friday morning my sister-in-law called and asked me to be sure to be on time that night because they were going to a party. I told her I was not coming. She was furious and hung up on me. I did not know my mother had told her I would sit.

Now I will never hear the end of it. Do you think I should apologize or what?--BLACKSHEEP

Dear Sheep: Your mother should not have spoken for you in the first place and then neglected to tell you that she did, in the second place.

Your sister-in-law should not ask you to be a babysitter without pay unless she rewards you in other ways.

No, I do not feel that you owe her an apology. I feel, however, that you three ladies should sit down together and have an understanding.

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago you published a letter from a teenager whose friends were killed in an auto accident. That letter hit very close to home because I was the driver of a car that went out of control and two of my dearest friends were killed.

I would glady trade places with either of my friends because life hasn't been worth living since that night. First, there is the horrible feeling of guilt. I was going too fast. I had too many beers. The accident was my fault and I killed my buddies. If I had been hurt, bad I mean, I would have felt better, but I walked away without a scratch.

When I see the parents of the kids who died in my car I feel like a criminal. The crank letters and phone calls still keep coming. They don't help any. Nobody can say anything to me that I haven't already said to myself a hundred times. I know teenagers get sick and tired of adults climbing on their backs about drinking and speeding but maybe if they hear it from one of their own they'll pay some attention. -- GUILTY OF MURDER

Dear Guilty: Here is one letter that should be clipped and pasted to the dashboard of thousands of automobiles around the country. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann: The letter from the couple who was mad because the jewelry store wrote them an "undignified" letter asking them to pay their bill made me see red. They sound like the same people who called their friendly druggist (my husband) at 3 a.m. and asked him to open his store and given them something for Susie's earache.

When he asked if they had called the doctor they said, "We wouldn't think of bothering him at this hour." The friendly druggist got dressed and went out in the bitter cold, opened up the store and fixed the eardrops and aspirin. They said, "Thanks a lot. Charge it."

It's hard to refuse to give people medicine because they owe a bill, but my husband has to pay for his merchandise. He doesn't get it for nothing.

Please, Ann, tell those people out there that merchants are not nasty people. They are ordinary folks who are trying to make a living. And they can't make a living if people don't pay their bills. Thank you. -- MRS. AMERICA

Dear Mrs.: I had a tough time deciding which merchant's letter to print. I received hundreds. They all said the same thing. But you said it best. Thanks.

SHOULD YOU SHOVEL SNOW DOWN A MANHOLE? No!

Should you get rid of that mountain of snow on your front sidewalk or driveway to shoveling it down the nearest manhole?

No, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. During the recent 23-inch snowfall that paralyzed Chicago for several days, some folks got the notion that shoving the nasty white stuff down a manhole was an ideal method of snow removal. Their neighbors feared this might cause sewers to freeze or create a backup in residential waste lines.

As a practical matter, the likelihood of either happening is remote, the Bureau says, since the number of people likely to go looking for a manhole during a heavy snowfall is almost certain to be negligible. As for the freezing question, there's enough heat in underground sewers to make a freeze-up just as unlikely.

However, the Bureau points out, in most areas, tampering with manholes by unauthorized persons is against the law. It's also dangerous because you might forget to put the cover back or return it improperly, and someone could fall in.

Final advice: Don't shovel snow down a manhole -- leave it to the "department of streets."

Mrs. J.W. Braden Jr. Vice President of Jr. Civic Club

Editor's Note: This is the 53rd in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

By RUTH DILLENDER

EAST PRAIRIE -- Mrs. Frances Braden taught tap, ballet and acrobatic dancing for 10 years in Charleston and Wyatt. She is not teaching now but plans to return to the profession.

She spends much of her time caring for her husband, J. W. Braden, Jr., and her two daughters, Melinda Barker, six, a first grader at Doyle elementary school, and Tracy Samantha Braden, four months old.

Braden is manager of the Delta Lumber and Hardware Company.

Mrs. Braden is vice president of the Junior Civic club. The family attends the First Christian church.

Mrs. Braden likes to swim and embroider. Her mother taught her to cook.

Braden is interested in sports.

A treasure in the home is cut glassware that belonged to Mrs. Braden's grandmother.

Favorite recipes of the family are:

CHEESE PIE

Crust:

12 to 14 graham crackers
¼ cup melted butter

Combine finely crumbled crackers and butter. Press into nine-inch pie pan.

Filling:

4 3-ounce packages white cream cheese
¾ cup sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 eggs

Combine ingredients and whip until smooth and light. Pour into graham cracker crust and bake 15 to 20 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Remove from oven and allow to cook for five minutes. Pour following topping over pie:

3½ tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sour cream.

Blend sour cream with sugar and vanilla.

Return pie to oven and bake 10 minutes longer. Place in refrigerator at least five hours before serving.

POUND CAKE

Cream 1 pound pure butter and 3½ cups sugar. Add 10 eggs one at a time. Add 4 cups all purpose flour and 2 cups chopped nuts.

Mix together. Pour into 3 greased loaf pans. Bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour.

STRAWBERRY JELLO SALAD

2 packages strawberry Jello
1 10-ounce package strawberries
1 small can crushed pineapple
2 ripes bananas
1 cup sour cream.

Mix one package Jello, drained pineapple and two bananas mashed. Put in refrigerator and let set until firm. Add one cup sour cream, spreading evenly over Jello. Return to refrigerator to cool. Mix remaining Jello with strawberries and juice. Return the refrigerator to set until very firm. Serve on lettuce leaf.

MEXICAN CORN BREAD

1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs beaten
1 can cream style corn
3 tablespoons baking powder
1 cup sour cream
2/3 cup salad oil
1 cup yellow corn meal
½ teaspoon salt

Mix above ingredients.

2 jalopino peppers
1 cup grated cheddar cheese

Pour half of the batter into eight or nine-inch square pan. Sprinkle half of cheese over batter and put strips of peppers on top of cheese. Pour other half of batter over peppers and top with remaining cheese and peppers. Bake in 350 degree oven one hour.

This corn bread recipe was given to Mrs. Braden by her mother.

$100,000 for Law School Sought

COLUMBIA -- A three-month campaign by the Law School Foundation to raise $100,000 "to provide a margin of excellence" for the school of law at the University of Missouri, was announced jointly by Dr. Joe E. Covington, law school dean, and Clarence O. Woolsey, Springfield, foundation president.

Also announced was the appointment of Lowell L. Knipmeyer of Kansas City as general chairman of the campaign.

The school's 1,200 graduates in Missouri will be contacted personally and its 600 graduates outside the state will be solicited by mail or telephone. Campaign workers, all alumni, will begin their efforts in mid-October.

The campaign is being coordinated through the University Development Office.

The Foundation seeks a minimum of $100,000 in cash and pledges to be paid over a three-year period to provide "those items which will contribute directly to the quality of education in the School of Law," according to Dean Covington.

The basic goal is to secure funds for what he called "qualitative extras." These will include student scholarships, faculty aids, and a visiting lecturer series that would bring to the campus outstanding judges, educators and lawyers. However, donors may designate their contributions "for specific acceptable purposes."

Knipmeyer, who received his law degree in 1932, recently was elected a trustee of the Foundation, an independently chartered group of law school alumni.

His vice chairmen in the drive are Kenneth Teasdale, '18, St. Louis; A. D. Sappington, '36, Columbia; and Gerald Rowan, '40, Kansas City.

First Load of Beans Delivered At Hayti

HAYTI -- Bert Richardson delivered the first load of this year's soybeans to the Missouri Farmers Association elevator Tuesday afternoon.

The 235-bushel load tested 13.5 per cent moisture and 56 pounds to the bushel. The variety was Scott. Richardson said they were making about 30 bushels to the acre.

Mrs. Herbert Henderson, office manager of the elevator, said she had not heard of any other Missouri soybeans being harvested.

School Gets Own Storm Shelter

ORRICK, Mo. (AP)-- Students returning to classes Tuesday at Orrick High School found the building boasting a new storm shelter aimed at preventing repetition of a tragic tornado which hit the school last winter.

Two pupils were killed and 16 injured when the twister hit Orrick last Jan. 24, and the school was damaged extensively.

Included in the $357,000 reconstruction program still underway was installation of a concrete and steel reinforced storm shelter under the stage in the school gymnasium.

The shelter will provide refuge for up to 350 youngsters, and Supt. Berl W. Carpenter said he believes Orrick is the only school in Missouri to have an area specifically designed for such use. Orrick is about 35 miles east of Kansas City.

Seven classrooms wrecked by the tornado have been rebuilt, as has an industrial arts-vocational agriculture building adjacent to the main structure.

Three other classrooms and school offices are expected to be ready by next month, and the gym in which a girls' physical education class was trapped by the twister is scheduled to be rebuilt by mid November.

"We'll have a full curriculum and use the elementary school cafeteria for some classes," said Supt. Carpenter.

He added about the reconstructed school:

"It's better than anything we have ever had. But it was a terrible way to get it."

Ann Landers

All Men Should Stay Together

Dear Ann: At a recent social gathering there were nine women and four men present, including me. I am thoroughly masculine and am not the least bit interested in female chatter.

After dinner everyone adjourned to the living room and the conversation was taken over by the women. Ten minutes passed and the three men announced that they were going to the library to play cards. I was not asked to join them and spent the entire evening bored stiff, listening to over-the-fence gossip and cooking and cleaning hints.

This same sort of thing occurred with another group. I was greatly offended and told my wife later that I thought this was the height of bad manners. My wife said I was unduly sensitive. I know how to play cards and wish to make it plain that in both cases the host was one of the offending gentlemen.

Will you comment, please?--ST. LOUIS.

Dear St.: Why in the world would a man sit with nine women while three other males go off to another room?

You should have gotten up and left when the others did. You did not need a special invitation to join the men.

Dear Ann: I am a 15-year-old girl. My brother and his wife live two blocks from us. They have three small children.

Every time my sister-in-law sees me she asks me to sit with their children "tonight" or "tomorrow night," or "next Saturday." I do not get paid. Last week I asked my mother if I had to sit for them and she said, "Not if you don't want to."

Friday morning my sister-in-law called and asked me to be sure to be on time that night because they were going to a party. I told her I was not coming. She was furious and hung up on me. I did not know my mother had told her I would sit.

Now I will never hear the end of it. Do you think I should apologize or what?--BLACKSHEEP

Dear Sheep: Your mother should not have spoken for you in the first place and then neglected to tell you that she did, in the second place.

Your sister-in-law should not ask you to be a babysitter without pay unless she rewards you in other ways.

No, I do not feel that you owe her an apology. I feel, however, that you three ladies should sit down together and have an understanding.

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago you published a letter from a teenager whose friends were killed in an auto accident. That letter hit very close to home because I was the driver of a car that went out of control and two of my dearest friends were killed.

I would glady trade places with either of my friends because life hasn't been worth living since that night. First, there is the horrible feeling of guilt. I was going too fast. I had too many beers. The accident was my fault and I killed my buddies. If I had been hurt, bad I mean, I would have felt better, but I walked away without a scratch.

When I see the parents of the kids who died in my car I feel like a criminal. The crank letters and phone calls still keep coming. They don't help any. Nobody can say anything to me that I haven't already said to myself a hundred times. I know teenagers get sick and tired of adults climbing on their backs about drinking and speeding but maybe if they hear it from one of their own they'll pay some attention. -- GUILTY OF MURDER

Dear Guilty: Here is one letter that should be clipped and pasted to the dashboard of thousands of automobiles around the country. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann: The letter from the couple who was mad because the jewelry store wrote them an "undignified" letter asking them to pay their bill made me see red. They sound like the same people who called their friendly druggist (my husband) at 3 a.m. and asked him to open his store and given them something for Susie's earache.

When he asked if they had called the doctor they said, "We wouldn't think of bothering him at this hour." The friendly druggist got dressed and went out in the bitter cold, opened up the store and fixed the eardrops and aspirin. They said, "Thanks a lot. Charge it."

It's hard to refuse to give people medicine because they owe a bill, but my husband has to pay for his merchandise. He doesn't get it for nothing.

Please, Ann, tell those people out there that merchants are not nasty people. They are ordinary folks who are trying to make a living. And they can't make a living if people don't pay their bills. Thank you. -- MRS. AMERICA

by Cherie

You wouldn't believe today—only a mother, and I think perhaps a mother of sons could truly appreciate this day. I rose early, refreshed, and looking forward to the morn as this is the day I was to receive a new and much needed appliance to help me out with my family dinner for 17 tomorrow evening, and this was also the day I play bridge and some lovely lady comes in and picks up the debris and makes all nice and spic and span. So I arose, sprinkled clothes, got one fellow off to school, cleaned out drawers and moved furniture to get ready for my new life saver, and was off breathless but happy for a stimulating game of bridge. And why is it when you are so excited about a game of cards you never seem to hold a hand with anything in it all day long?

Well, that was me today. So, after a boring game of bridge, I returned home to begin preparing dinner for tonight and stirring up salads and rolls for tomorrow evening, and this you'll never believe—I only wish I didn't have to. While I am in the midst of this, in walks this extremely kind neighbor, (and I do mean extremely kind, cause if he had done it at my house and on my floor I would have killed him), walked in with my youngest and was he a mess (and I saw him after she had cleaned him up). He, for some unknown reason, I never did get anything more out of him than, "Well, they shouldn't have left it there." I had tried to pull a quart can of white paint off of a shelf above his head, and the whole darn thing, minus the lid, fell 'plunk' right on top of him. He isn't very big—that was a lot of paint—and just use your imagination, I might add use lots of it as there was sure lots of paint used. Kind neighbor had scrubbed him and but on vital area like the hair upon his head was still saturated. I washed, scrubbed, cursed, and scrubbed some more, but still to no avail. Finally, I poured the only form of paint remover on that mop of curly hair I could find around the house, (finger nail polish), and made a teeny headway. If you see Ernie in the near future, just bear in mind that he doesn't really need Head and Shoulders, he is still just flaking off that accidental dunking. I eventually quit, and went back to the rolls and salad which were now rather diluted by my tears of frustration, and waited patiently for dad to come home and bestow his wrath upon the little one, and that new appliance I was so desperate for upon me. And what comes in the door? Only the straw that broke the camels' back, thats what! My husband, but no appliance, now what kind of a choice is that? No appliance in fact, for another 10 days—said who's having company for dinner that? Well, I don't think I can bear it, so if you hear an ambulance roaring through the streets and headed in the direction of Farmington, with a woman wrapped in a strait jacket strapped in the back, just bow your head and say a silent prayer, cause brother about now I need it!

New Anti-Poverty Group Organized

KENNETT—Three counties in the Bootheel-Dunklin, Pemiscot and Stoddard—have a new poverty program corporation which has taken the name of the Bootheel Economic Encouragement Program, Inc.

The new corporation was formed Saturday as a possible replacement for the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corp. in administering poverty programs in the three-county area.

Each of the 12 community action agencies in the three counties is being asked by the new corporation to elect two representatives as members of the board of directors for the new agency. The local CAAs are also asked to hold the elections in time for their delegates to attend a meeting to be held Wednesday.

The temporary nine-man board of directors for the new corporation has three members from each of the counties; Dunklin County—Rev. William Donovan of Malden, Larney McNeal, Jr. of Hermandale and William B. Morgan of Kennett; Pemiscot County—William L. Jones of Hayti, Leonit Muir of Caruthersville and B. T. Owen of Wardell; Stoddard County—Mrs. Harry B. Barker of Dexter, William O'Herin of Bernie and Lowell Sherer of Bell City. At the meeting Wednesday these original directors will be replaced by the newly elected delegates.

At the Saturday meeting, the temporary board of directors approved articles of incorporation, adopted bylaws and elected officers.

Elected as temporary officers were; William B. Morgan, president; Rev. William Donovan, vice-president; Leonit Muir, secretary; and William O'Herin, treasurer.

The bylaws provide that the terms of the original directors will expire on September 15, 1967, or as soon after that time as five of the 12 community action agencies in the three-county area have elected their delegates to the new board of directors.

The bylaws require that half of the delegates elected by the community action agencies must be persons who fall within the corporation's definition of "poor persons." The other half of the directors elected by the community action agencies need not be included in this qualification. In addition to these board members, five other directors are to be appointed by various state and federal agencies.

After the organization session, the new board discussed possibilities which it would submit to the Office of Economic Opportunity for the coming year and which must be in the Kansas City office by the September 15 deadline.

The new board has contacted the community action agency presidents in each community of the three counties involved and has informed them of the formation of new organization which was formed so that these counties would be able to receive OEO funds in the event that DAEOC should not be refunded.

Thrift Aides Make Clothes

MORLEY—The Central Scott County thrift shop aides, Mrs. Jake Smith, Mrs. Donner Campbell, Mrs. Hendy Jenkins, and volunteer workers work in the center, making clothes for needy families and piecing and quilting quilts. They also make over and repair used donated clothes.

Senior citizens in the area will meet in the center Sept. 15 from 2 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. to organize a senior citizen program under the supervision of the family service aide, Mrs. Bill Stephens.

Anyone in the Central Scott county area 50 years old and up, may participate.

The group will meet every other week, on the second and fourth Fridays from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The program will consist of arts and crafts and educational programs. There will also be a social hour, with songs and games.

The young Homemakers will have a similar program Wednesday afternoons from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

On Sept. 15, a film, Beyond These Hills, a Rural Community Action Film, with Billy Graham, will be shown.

The Romper room school, under the supervision of Mrs. Phillip Newman will reopen Monday. A survey has been made of the children, ages 3 - 5, in the area. Anyone who has been missed may come to the center office and enroll their child. The school will be conducted from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

The children in the Vanduser summer recreation program were taken on a Wiener roast, Aug. 22 to the Clayton park. The women who helped with the children, were Mrs. Bill Foster, Mrs. Joe Hill, Mrs. Wilma Simpson, Mrs. Bernice Owens, Mrs. Lee J. True and Mrs. Woodrow Beavers.

Man Caught Trying To Slip Space Data Out of County

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Federal customs agents arrested a Japanese scientist after, the agents said, they discovered he was trying to slip space secrets labled "used household goods" contained information on a U.S. space project.

Charged with making a false customs declaration was Dr. Hisebumi Hazama, 39, formerly a researcher for a National Aeronautics and Space Administration project at University Hospital.

The material was described as the complete and only record of a $300,000 study on the effects of living in space on the human brain.

John M. Dolan, assistant customs agent, said the crates seized aboard the Pioneer Moon in Baltimore harbor contained data tables, slides, documents, records, computations and other information.

Stephen H. Sachs, U.S. attorney for Maryland, said the material was not regarded as secret.

Coffee Corner
by Cherie

You wouldn't believe today--only a mother, and I think perhaps a mother of sons could truly appreciate this day. I rose early, refreshed, and looking forward to the morn as this is the day I was to receive a new and much needed appliance to help me out with my family dinner for 17 tomorrow evening, and this was also the day I play bridge and some lovely lady comes in and picks up the debris and makes all nice and spic and span. So I arose, sprinkled clothes, got one fellow off to school, cleaned out drawers and moved furniture to get ready for my new life saver, and was off breathless but happy for a stimulating game of bridge. And why is it when you are so excited about a game of cards you never seem to hold a hand with anything in it all day long?

Well, that was me today. So, after a boring game of bridge, I returned home to begin preparing dinner for tonight and stirring up salads and rolls for tomorrow evening, and this you'll never believe-I only wish I didn't have to. While I was in the midst of this, in walks this extremely kind neighbor, (and I do mean extremely kind, cause if he had done it at my house and on my floor I would have killed him), walked in with my youngest and was he a mess (and I saw him after she had cleaned him up). He, for some unknown reason, I never did get anything more out of him than, "Well, they shouldn't have left it there." I had tried to pull a quart can of white paint off of a shelf above his head, and the whole darn thing, minus the lid, fell 'plunk' right on top of him. He isn't very big--that was a lot of paint--and just use your imagination, I might add use lots of it as there was sure lots of paint used. Kind neighbor had scrubbed him well but on vital area like the hair upon his head was still saturated. I washed, scrubbed, cursed, and scrubbed some more, but still to no avail. Finally, I poured the only form of paint remover on that mop of curly hair I could find around the house, (finger nail polish), and made a teeny headway. If you see Brete in the near future, just bear in mind that he doesn't really need Head and Shoulders, he is still just flaking off that accidental dunking. I eventually quit, and went back to the rolls and salad which were now rather diluted by my tears of frustration, and waited patiently for dad to come home and bestow his wrath upon the little one, and one new appliance I was so desperate for upon me. And what cohoes in the door? Only the straw that broke the camels' back, thats what! My husband, but no appliance, now what kind of a choice is that? No appliance in fact, for another 10 days--and who's having company for dinner than? Well, I don't think I can bear it, so if you hear an ambulance roaring through the streets with me the little one, and one new appliance I was so desperate for upon me. And what cohoes in the door? Only the straw that broke the camels' back, thats what! My husband, but no appliance, now what kind of a choice is that? No appliance in fact, for another 10 days---and who's having company for dinner than? Well, I don't think I can bear it, so if you hear an ambulance roaring through the streets with me in it, you'll know that I need it!

New Anti-Poverty Group Organized

KENNETT-Three counties in the Bootheel-Dunklin, Pemiscot and Stoddard-have a new poverty program corporation which has taken the name of the Bootheel Economic Encouragement Program, Inc.

The new corporation was formed Saturday as a possible replacement for the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corp. in administering poverty programs in the three-county area.

Each of the 12 community action agencies in the three counties is being asked by the new corporation to elect two representatives as members of the board of directors for the new agency. The local CAAs are also asked to hold the elections in time for their delegates to attend a meeting to be held Wednesday.

The temporary nine-man board of directors for the new corporation has three members from each of the counties, Dunklin County-Rev. William Donovan of Haldeo, Larney McNeal, Jr. of Hermandale and William B. Morgan of Kennett; Pemiscot County-William L. Jones of Hayti, Lamoin Muir of Caruthersville and B. T. Owen of Wardell; Stoddard County-Mrs. Harry B. Barker of Dexter, William O'Herin of Bernie and Lacoln Scherer of Bell City. At the meeting Wednesday these original directors will be replaced by the newly elected delegates.

At the Saturday meeting, the temporary board of directors approved articles of incorporation, adopted bylaws and elected officers.

Elected as temporary officers were: William B. Morgan, president; Rev. William Donovan, vice-president; Lamoin Muir, secretary; and William O'Herin, treasurer.

The bylaws provide that the terms of the original directors will expire on September 13, 1967, or as soon after that time as five of the 12 community action agencies in the three-county area have elected their delegates to the new board of directors.

The bylaws require that half of the delegates elected by the community action agencies must be persons who fall within the corporation's definition of "poor persons." In addition to these board members, five other directors are to be appointed by various state and federal agencies.

After the organization session, the new board discussed possible programs which it would submit to the Office of Economic Opportunity for the coming year and which must be in the state by the September 15 deadline.

The new board has contacted the community action agency residents in each community of the three counties involved and has informed them of the new organization which was formed so that these counties would be able to receive OEO funds in the event that DAECC should not be included.

The material was described as the complete and only record of a $300,000 study on the effects of living in space on the human brain.

John M. Dolan, assistant customs agent, said the crates seized aboard the Pioneer Moon in Baltimore harbor contained data tables, slides, documents, records, computations and other information.

Stephen H. Sachs, U.S. attorney for Maryland, said the material was not regarded as secret.

Report From Washington

Stuart Symington

VIETNAM HEARINGS

The Senate Military Preparedness Subcommittee, of which I am a member, has now concluded for a time its hearings on the air war in North Vietnam. The testimony of the witnesses -- members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and other military officials involved with the conduct of these air operations -- will be made available to the public in a few weeks. In addition, a preliminary report will be available.

There is no one who believes more in civilian control of the military than do I, and if the decision of the top civilians of this Administration has been and is against attacking many military targets located in North Vietnam, that policy should of course be followed by the military.

Unfortunately, however, it is becoming increasingly apparent that many people have been led to the inaccurate belief that all members of the Chiefs of Staff as well as the Commander in Chief of Pacific forces -- CINCPAC, Admiral Sharp -- have approved and do approve the heavy limitations placed on the attacking of military targets over North Vietnam by civilian heads.

I would earnestly hope that all Americans interested in this problem, a problem so vitally important to the future structure of the military posture essential to the security of the United States, would refrain from reaching conclusions to this matter until they have had the opportunity to read the testimony of these witnesses.

FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION LOANS AND GRANTS

A bill designed to provide loans to farmers to help them supplement their incomes by starting small non-farm enterprises has passed the Senate and awaits House action.

The measure, which I co-sponsored, would amend the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961 which authorizes loans to farmers only for the purpose of improving their farms. Under this bill, farmers would be able to obtain loans for such farm-located enterprises as machine shops, processing and marketing of locally produced products; and woodworking, leathercraft and handicraft shops.

An individual who has farmed for two years could apply for a loan to convert his farm to recreational use.

The bill also increases total authorization for rural water and sewer system development grants from $50 million to $150 million. The annual limit on planning grants would be raised from $5 million to $25 million. Loans for water and sewer projects would be made only if they were unavailable from private or cooperative sources.

AUTHORIZATION FOR THE HIGHWAY BEAUTIFICATION PROGRAM

The Senate has passed and sent to the House an $85 million 1967 authorization for the Highway Beautification Program. Of this, $15 million is for implementation of the control program on outdoor advertising and junkyards, and $70 million is for landscaping and developing scenic easements.

This legislation is directed at controlling, not eliminating, outdoor advertising.

According to the Secretary of Transportation, the penalty provision which would eliminate 10 percent of a state's authorized Federal highway fund, will not be invoked through calendar year 1968 and probably not for a reasonable time through 1969. This will give more states which do not now have the authority to enter into agreements with the Secretary the opportunity to decide what approach they wish.

New Troops Ticketed for Front Lines

SAIGON (AP) — The 45,000 to 50,000 new U.S. troops ticketed for duty in South Vietnam by early next spring will include a larger percentage of front-line combat men than ever before.

At least 75 per cent of the new troops—probably 20 battalions or more—will be "trigger pullers," it was learned today.

The reason for the increase in combat soldiers is that over the last two years the United States had to build an enormous logistics base as well as help fight the war. The logistics base is now said to be capable of supporting the new combat troops with a proportionately much smaller increase in its own strength.

At the same time, it also was learned that the U.S. Command believes the estimated enemy strength in South Vietnam is perhaps much lower than the 297,000 carried in weekly U.S. headquarters reports over the past several weeks.

It is known that some high-ranking U.S. officers feel the figure is meaningless because it includes at least 57,000 men and women who are political cadres and administrative types.

American intelligence lists 120,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong main force units in South Vietnam, plus another 120,000 local guerrillas.

The American command, it is understood, now has a much larger base of solid intelligence, including more documents, better interrogators and more informers. A broad new intelligence analysis of the enemy strength is being made and results are expected to be made public in a month.

The new American forces scheduled for Vietnam will include several helicopter units. The U.S. Command wants to get the new troops into South Vietnam as soon as possible.

There is no target date, but by present reckoning, barring unforeseen logistical problems, all of the new troops can be expected in the country by next March or April instead of July as earlier indicated. One new Army brigade, the 198th Light Infantry, is expected here by the end of this year.

The command now lists 462,000 U.S. troops in South Vietnam, as of the week ending Aug. 26. There are another 69,000 U.S. military men involved in air war operations out of Thailand and Guam.

Tycoon Accused Of Holding Wife Captive

LONDON (AP) — American grocery millionaire Huntington Hartford was involved in a scuffle when his estranged 25-year-old wife fled his London home with the aid of a former policeman, her legal representative said today.

Diane Brown Hartford, who is suing her 58-year-old husband for divorce, told her lawyers: "I was kept a captive in the house."

The incident occurred at Hartford's house in Red Lion Yard, Mayfair, on Aug. 16, the lawyer said.

Jack Jenner, 39, a member of the staff of the London legal firm of Crane and Hawkins, described the affair.

"Mrs. Hartford telephoned her American lawyer, Burton Monasch of Berger, Monasch and Mandelstam. As a result of her transatlantic telephone call, we received a cable from Monasch asking us to extend her every assistance," he said.

"Our senior partner, Peter Crane, telephoned her at the Mayfair house and then told me to go along and see what I could do to help her. I went along to the house at about 10.30 a.m., accompanied by a former policeman, John Craig, who now works for Q-Men, a firm of London private inquiry agents."

Jenner was asked about a report that there were security guards at the house. He said: "There were no guards there when we were there—which is just as well, or we would not have got her out.

"I rang the bell and Mrs. Hartford herself let us in. We went upstairs and she was packing her cases. She seemed quite composed but was obviously a little agitated, as anyone would be in the circumstances.

"Mr. Hartford was in the house and asked us who we were. We told him we had come to see his wife.

"While she was getting ready I kept a taxi waiting outside in Red Lion Yard. As we went to leave there was an incident with Mr. Hartford. He obviously didn't want his wife to leave and there was a bit of a scuffle.

"We took her down and put her in the taxi and I went with her straight to London Airport and she got away on an afternoon flight to New York. She didn't say a great deal about the situation but said she hadn't been allowed to go out of the house, even for a walk."

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

"IF EVERY household just spent a few cents for a package of seed, or a few bulbs, the impact upon our American landscape and city scene would be beyond the capabilities of any artist to capture on canvas."

The words are those of Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who proposes the first week of October as "National Spring Garden Planning Week."

Magnuson, urging Congress to approve his plan, says planting activities at that time of year would "represent a big step toward the national beautification goals.

"The national beautification program is one in which each of us must play a role if it is to succeed," he said. "The seed has begun to grow and with our support will play a significant part in making the country a more attractive place to live."

Sen. Magnuson's wife is chairman of the national committee for Spring Garden Planting Week. Last year, many governors proclaimed such weeks within their states.

Magnuson says the "key ingredient in the program is the individual action of people in and around their own homes."

This, he adds, can take the form of a "formal garden, a large bed of flowers, a small parking strip or a window box in an apartment."

Happy Anniversary

This year is the 100th anniversary of the hybrid tea rose. This rose is a cross between the hybrid Perpetual (which Jackson & Perkins recalls was the queen of the rose world from 1840 to 1890) and the Tea Rose, a hybrid imported from China in the 18th Century. Hybrid teas produce large roses lovely in bud and flower form.

Blair Resigns From Bench

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) – Sam C. Blair resigned Tuesday from the Kansas City Court of Appeals to return to his home in Jefferson City and practice law.

Blair, 63, said he did not plan to run for office and would not sit on the bench any more. He was Cole County circuit judge 26 years before being appointed to the Court of Appeals in 1965 by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Before becoming circuit judge Blair was an assistant U. S. district attorney who helped prosecute the late T.J. Pendergast.

He is the brother of the late Gov. James T. Blair and Jefferson City Postmaster William C. Blair.

Stoddard Welfare Payments Decrease

DEXTER – Welfare payments in August showed a decrease over the same month a year ago, according to Leon Ward, County Welfare Director. In Aug. of this year the total was $177,393.71 as compared to $179,714, a year ago.

Drug vendor payments last month amounted to $8,545.19 and dental vendor payments were $558. A year ago, drug vendor payments were $6,528.53 and dental vendor payments amounted to $713.

Heading the list for the past month was old age assistance to 1500 persons which amounted to $104,906.71; aid to dependent children, 986 children was $34,-072.

General relief for 282 persons during Aug. amounted to $17,470., aid to the blind, 41 persons, $3,280., and blind pension, one person, $80.

A year ago, old age assistance for 1519 persons amounted to $104,569., aid to dependent children, 1091 persons, $37,826., general relief, 274 persons, $17,-183, permanent and total disability, 219 persons, $16,456, aid the the blind, 45 persons, $3,600 and one blind pension was $80.

Winning Artist Claims No Knowledge Of Abstract Art

LONDON (AP) – A housewife who admits she knows nothing about abstract art Tuesday won an award for the best abstract painting of 1967.

After being congratulated by Mrs. Harold Wilson, wife of the British prime minister, Brenda Jeanes said in an interview:

"I've dabbled with paints, but I can honestly say this is the first time I ever tried to do an abstract."

What was her technique?

"Well," she laughed, "I started in the upper left-hand corner and just painted down and across."

Why?

"Because that way the paint doesn't smudge."

Her winning award was called "Road of Infinity," and of its message, Mrs. Jeanes, the mother of a 15-year-old daughter, said:

"It's intended to depict life from the fetus to infinity, and the struggle for the first breath of life. The section of rectangles indicate the cut-and-dried life one might hope to live, passing on to life's trials which are a reality.

"The small white sections denote tranquility, and the circle complete peace."

She stood back, squinted at the painting and added: "It also looks a bit like the southeastern coast of the United States—you know, Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia."

Edmondson Draws Two-Year Sentence

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) – George Ben Edmondson, who built a successful career as a selftaught engineer in Canada, was sentenced Tuesday to two years for escape.

Circuit Judge James T. Riley turned down Edmondson's appeal for a five-year suspended sentence.

Edmondson was serving a 10-year prison sentence for an armed robbery in Springfield when he escaped from a work detail in 1965.

He became project engineer for the West German pavilion at Expo 67 and had landed another engineering job when recognized and returned to the United States.

Their Difference

The religious holidays of Easter and Passover vary from year to year in their dates, and often in their sequence, because of the different calendars followed by Christianity and Judaism.

THE FIRST COPY of The Signal at Chaffee, comes off the press. Co-publishers Karl von Kessel, left, and Bob Kielhofner, take a look at the paper purchased from Warren Millham. The new owners have combined the old Chaffee Signal and the Oran News. The paper is the ninth weekly publication printed on the Daily Standard's Web offset press.

Chaffee Paper Has New Owners

CHAFFEE - Karl von Kessel and R. H. Kielhofner announced repurchase of the weekly newspaper formerly known as "The Chaffee Signal."

In the future, the paper will be titled "The Signal" and will be a consolidation of "The Chaffee Signal" and the "Oran News," they said.

Kielhofner and Von Kessel previously owned the paper and sold it to Mr. and Mrs. Warren Millham, from whom they bought it back.

They plan to be joint editors and publishers, they said. Remaining positions on the staff have not been assigned.

Kielhofner stated the paper will be assembled at its office and then will be printed on an offset press at Sikeston. Publishing date is each Wednesday, he added.

Ichord Discloses Interest in Race for Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) – Rep. Richard H. Ichord, 8th District Democratic congressman from Houston, Mo., says he is considering running against Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo. for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

He said he hopes to make up his mind by the first of next month.

In a radio interview he also said he thought Long should make a full explanation of the referral fees he has received from Morris Shenker, St. Louis lawyer and chief counsel for convicted Teamster boss James Hoffa.

Long has denied the fees had anything to do with Hoffa.

If he does not run for the Senate, Ichord said he would seek renomination in the 8th Connessional District. He expressed himself as satisfied with the way the legislature realigned the district.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

"IF EVERY household just spent a few cents for a package of seed, or a few bulbs, the impact upon our American landscape and city scene would be beyond the capabilities of any artist to capture on canvas."

The words are those of Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who proposes the first week of October as "National Spring Garden Planning Week."

Magnuson, urging Congress to approve his plan, says planting activities at that time of year would "represent a big step toward the national beautification goals.

"The national beautification program is one in which each of us must play a role if it is to succeed," he said. "The seed has begun to grow and with our support will play a significant part in making the country a more attractive place to live."

Sen. Magnuson's wife is chairman of the national committee for Spring Garden Planting Week. Last year, many governors proclaimed such weeks within their states.

Magnuson says the "key ingredient in the program is the individual action of people in and around their own homes."

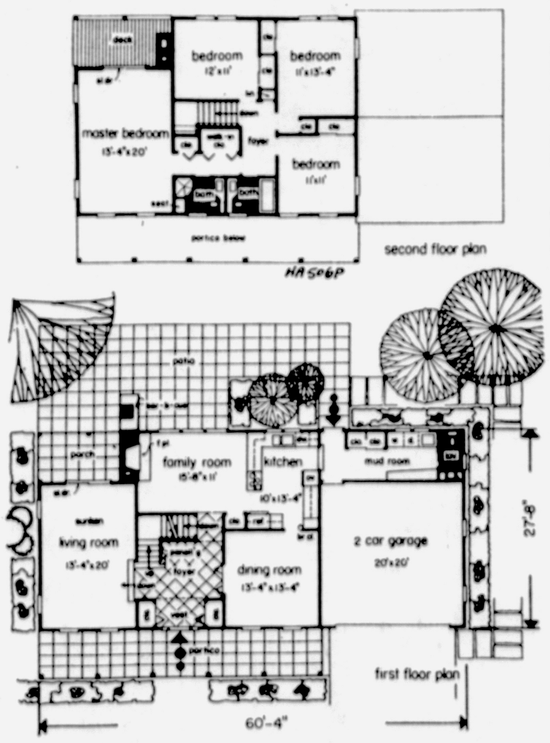
This, he adds, can take the form of a "formal garden, a large bed of flowers, a small parking strip or a window box in an apartment."

Happy Anniversary

This year is the 100th anniversary of the hybrid tea rose. This rose is a cross between the hybrid Perpetual (which Jackson & Perkins recalls was the queen of the rose world from 1840 to 1890) and the Tea Rose, a hybrid imported from China in the 18th Century. Hybrid teas produce large roses lovely in bud and flower form.

PLANNING FOR SPRING – Mrs. Warren G. Magnuson, wife of Sen. Magnuson, D-Wash., picks tulips from bulbs she planted in the fall.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS



SOUTHERN ELEGANCE – This type of home, with its two-story high colonnade, connotates a gracious way of life. Plan HA506P is comfortable (2,022 square feet) but modest enough to fit most budgets. The vestibule has closets on both sides. Folding doors lead to the dining room. Opposite is the formal living room, a three-exposure expanse sunken two steps. The family room is separated from the kitchen only by kitchen cabinets. Upstairs, the three children's bedrooms are insulated from each other's sounds by closets. Architect is Samuel Paul, 89-30 161 St., Jamaica, N.Y.

Blair Resigns From Bench

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) – Sam C. Blair resigned Tuesday from the Kansas City Court of Appeals to return to his home in Jefferson City and practice law.

Blair, 63, said he did not plan to run for office and would not sit on the bench any more. He was Cole County circuit judge 26 years before being appointed to the Court of Appeals in 1965 by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Before becoming circuit judge Blair was an assistant U. S. district attorney who helped prosecute the late T.J. Pendergast.

He is the brother of the late Gov. James T. Blair and Jefferson City Postmaster William C. Blair.

Stoddard Welfare Payments Decrease

DEXTER – Welfare payments in August showed a decrease over the same month a year ago, according to Leon Ward, County Welfare Director. In Aug. of this year the total was $177,393.71 as compared to $179,714, a year ago.

Drug vendor payments last month amounted to $8,545.19 and dental vendor payments were $558. A year ago, drug vendor payments were $6,528.53 and dental vendor payments amounted to $713.

Heading the list for the past month was old age assistance to 1500 persons which amounted to $104,906.71; aid to dependent children, 986 children was $34,072.

General relief for 282 persons during Aug. amounted to $17,470., aid to the blind, 41 persons, $3,280., and blind pension, one person, $80.

A year ago, old age assistance for 1519 persons amounted to $104,569., aid to dependent children, 1091 persons, $37,826., general relief, 274 persons, $17,183, permanent and total disability, 219 persons, $16,456, aid the the blind, 45 persons, $3,600 and one blind pension was $80.

Winning Artist Claims No Knowledge Of Abstract Art

LONDON (AP) – A housewife who admits she knows nothing about abstract art Tuesday won an award for the best abstract painting of 1967.

After being congratulated by Mrs. Harold Wilson, wife of the British prime minister, Brenda Jeanes said in an interview:

"I've dabbled with paints, but I can honestly say this is the first time I ever tried to do an abstract."

What was her technique?

"Well," she laughed, "I started in the upper left-hand corner and just painted down and across."

Why?

"Because that way the paint doesn't smudge."

Her winning award was called "Road of Infinity," and of its message, Mrs. Jeanes, the mother of a 15-year-old daughter, said:

"It's intended to depict life from the fetus to infinity, and the struggle for the first breath of life. The section of rectangles indicate the cut-and-dried life one might hope to live, passing on to life's trials which are a reality.

"The small white sections denote tranquility, and the circle complete peace."

She stood back, squinted at the painting and added: "It also looks a bit like the southeastern coast of the United States—you know, Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia."

Edmondson Draws Two-Year Sentence

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) – George Ben Edmondson, who built a successful career as a selftaught engineer in Canada, was sentenced Tuesday to two years for escape.

Circuit Judge James T. Riley turned down Edmondson's appeal for a five-year suspended sentence.

Edmondson was serving a 10-year prison sentence for an armed robbery in Springfield when he escaped from a work detail in 1965.

He became project engineer for the West German pavilion at Expo 67 and had landed another engineering job when recognized and returned to the United States.

Their Difference

The religious holidays of Easter and Passover vary from year to year in their dates, and often in their sequence, because of the different calendars followed by Christianity and Judaism.

THE FIRST COPY of The Signal at Chaffee, comes off the press. Co-publishers Karl von Kessel, left, and Bob Kielhofner, take a look at the paper purchased from Warren Millham. The new owners have combined the old Chaffee Signal and the Oran News. The paper is the ninth weekly publication printed on the Daily Standard's Web offset press.

Chaffee Paper Has New Owners

CHAFFEE – Karl von Kessel and R. H. Kielhofner announced repurchase of the weekly newspaper formerly known as "The Chaffee Signal."

In the future, the paper will be titled "The Signal" and will be a consolidation of "The Chaffee Signal" and the "Oran News," they said.

Kielhofner and Von Kessel previously owned the paper and sold it to Mr. and Mrs. Warren Millham, from whom they bought it back.

They plan to be joint editors and publishers, they said. Remaining positions on the staff have not been assigned.

Kielhofner stated the paper will be assembled at its office and then will be printed on an offset press at Sikeston. Publishing date is each Wednesday, he added.

Ichord Discloses Interest in Race for Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) – Rep. Richard H. Ichord, 8th District Democratic congressman from Houston, Mo., says he is considering running against Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo. for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

He said he hopes to make up his mind by the first of next month.

In a radio interview he also said he thought Long should make a full explanation of the referral fees he has received from Morris Shenker, St. Louis lawyer and chief counsel for convicted Teamster boss James Hoffa.

Long has denied the fees had anything to do with Hoffa.

If he does not run for the Senate, Ichord said he would seek renomination in the 8th Congressional District. He expressed himself as satisfied with the way the legislature realigned the district.

Rosberry Promoted to Foreman

James Roseberry has been promoted to special maintenance foreman of the highway department and has been assigned to the Sikeston area.

Mrs. Geniece Latham has been promoted to senior stenographer.

Lawrence April has been promoted to inspection assistant.

James Johnson has been promoted from construction inspector to CART fund inspector.

Nine maintenance employes have been promoted from regular equipment operators to maintenancemen.

They are Jerry Britt, East Prairie; Paul Jaco, Hiram; Donald Murray Williamsville; Lowell Pettigrew, Risco; Harvell Phillips, Wardell; Paul Rennier, Morehouse; Charles Rhodes, Matthews; Curtis Tipler, Bragg City and Roy Williams, Sikeston.

William Pedigo of the New Madrid resident office has been promoted to inspection assistant.

Bill Williamson, district payroll clerk, has been granted a military leave. Replacing him is Billy Overfield of Sikeston.

Gary Gavan, construction rodman, was also granted military leave. Those who have returned following fulfillment of their military obligation are Glen Graham, construction rodman, and Donald Moore, surveys rodman.

The following wage rate employes have been promoted to maintenancemen: Lonny Blasingame, Gordon Deason, Charles Hester, Lawrence Malney, Morris McLean, Cecil Murray and Edward Ubelhor.

Highway Wives met Aug. 2 at the El Capri for their monthly dinner meeting. There were 16 members present. The group welcomed Reta Miller as a new member. The president, Ann Yarnell, presided and presented plans and ideas for the Christmas party. Canasta, bridge and bingo were played after the business meeting. Hostesses for the September meeting will be Bette Sorrells and Kay Sprout.

POULTRY MUST BE IN "CHICKEN SOUP"

For consumers who may have wondered whether the chicken was merely waved over their "chicken soup," there's assurance now of its presence.

Effective September 1, poultry soups are required to contain at least two percent poultry meat, on a ready-to-serve basis. A new U. S. Department of Agriculture regulation prohibits labeling of soups as "Chicken. . ." or "Turkey. . . " unless this minimum is met.

Designed to help assure consumers that they will find enough poultry meat in their soup to merit such a label, this ruling applies to dried, condensed, frozen and liquid soups. Manufacturers must either increase the "meat" content or qualify the name.

Minimum content standards have been set previously for poultry pies, canned boned and shredded poultry, poultry chow mein and numerous other such products.

This regulation is part of the consumer protection programs administered by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service.

Water Level of Lake Lowered

MEMPHIS--Lowering the water level at Lake Wappapello began Monday as scheduled, Col. James A. Vivian, District Engineer, said.

The 359-foot mean sea level elevation, normal for this time of year, will be reduced 6 1/2 feet by Sept. 21 so that engineers can examine the dam's control structure to see what effect 25 years of wear have had on it.

The Corps of Engineers has planned to drawdown to permit the inspection of the structure during the period when least rainfall is normally expected, basing their computations on official records of rainfall over the portions of the St. Francis River basin most likely to be affected.

Immediately after the inspection and the completion of repairs, which may be necessary, the lake will be allowed to refill to its normal level. Colonel Vivian said that, unless major maintenance problems are encountered, the reservoir may return to the 359-foot level by late November, depending upon the amount of rain over the hilly area which drains into Lake Wappapello.

Bank Board Chairman Resigns

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- R. Crosby Kemper Sr., stepped down Tuesday as board chairman of the City National Bank and Trust Co., the city's third largest commercial bank.

His son, R. Crosby Kemper Jr. who is president, was given the added position of chief executive officer. Charles G. Young Jr. will succeed the retiring Kemper as board chairman.

The elder Kemper, 74, joined City National in 1919.

FOOD STAMP PROGRAM REPORTS GAINS OVER YEAR AGO

The number of needy folks in the Midwest taking part in the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Food Stamp Program rose 35 percent from June, 1966 to June, 1967. Total participation came to 570,231 in a 10-state area.

Recipients bought $7,322,219 worth of food coupons, and received an additional $3,310,813 in free or bonus coupons. The number of projects jumped from 89 to 283 over the year -- a gain of 215 percent.

Those persons certified as eligible by their local welfare office use the money they would ordinarily spend for food to purchase food stamps. Additional stamps received over what they purchase provide them with extra buying power. All foods, except imported items, can be bought with the stamps.

In the Midwest, there were 146,382 participants in Illinois; 26,290 in Indiana; 16,428 in Iowa; and 74,685 in Michigan. Other state figures included Minnesota, 42,642; Missouri, 21,826; Nebraska, 12,212; North Dakota, 2,338; Ohio, 291,790; and Wisconsin, 25,374.

Nationally, the number of projects soared from 324 to 838, and persons participating rose 52 1/2 percent to 1,829,052 from June to June.

If You Were the Judge

Marijuana on County Property No Defense

By Jack Strauss, LL.B

Officer Reilly had a beat that included the county court house. And every day, he watched with great interest and suspicion as Knoby would diligently and carefully water and care for certain plants that were located just behind the judges' parking lot. And, while he had an annoying feeling that Knoby was up to something no good, Officer Reilly just couldn't put his finger on what it was that he thought Knoby was up to.

Each day for three months, Officer Reilly passed and repassed the parking lot but all that came to him was a pleasant smile from Knoby as the latter tended his plants. Then, it suddenly struck Officer Reilly what Knoby was up to. He was growing marijuana right under the noses of the judges and law officers.

Officer Reilly cuffed Knoby and brought him before the bar on charges of unlawfully possessing the illegal plant.

"He took care of those plants," Officer Reilly told the judge, "as if they were the last plants on the earth."

"Maybe so," retorted Knoby a little wistfully. "But I never possessed them. They were on county property and were the property of the county. Therefore, while you may be able to throw the county in jail, you can't jail me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jug Knoby?

This is how the judge ruled: Knoby went to jail. The judge held that a person possesses a thing when he takes care of it, manages and controls it. In this case, while Knoby may have been growing his marijuana on county property, it was no defense since he still possessed it.

Program for Psychiatric Training Starts

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- The Division of Mental Diseases announced Tuesday the start of a psychiatric residency training program at the Nevada State Hospital in cooperation with the Kirksville College of Osteopathy and Surgery.

Dr. George A. Ulett, head of the division, said the program will include three years of active training with an obligation for two years of service. It is the only one of its kind in the nation.

It will be under the direction of Dr. Joe Combs, new director of residency training, and Dr. Fleda M. Brigham, professor of psychiatry at the Kirksville college.

Four osteopathic physicians already have been named for the residency training.

Rosberry Promoted to Foreman

James Roseberry has been promoted to special maintenance foreman of the highway department and has been assigned to the Sikeston area.

Mrs. Geniece Latham has been promoted to senior stenographer.

Lawrence April has been promoted to inspection assistant.

James Johnson has been promoted from construction inspector to CART fund inspector.

Nine maintenance employes have been promoted from regular equipment operators to maintenancemen.

They are Jerry Britt, East Prairie; Paul Jaco, Hiram; Donald Murray Williamsville; Lowell Pettigrew, Risco; Harvell Phillips, Wardell; Paul Rennier, Morehouse; Charles Rhodes, Matthews; Curtis Tipler, Bragg City and Roy Williams, Sikeston.

William Pedigo of the New Madrid resident office has been promoted to inspection assistant.

Bill Williamson, district payroll clerk, has been granted a military leave. Replacing him is Billy Overfield of Sikeston.

Gary Gavan, construction rodman, was also granted military leave. Those who have returned following fulfillment of their military obligation are Glen Graham, construction rodman, and Donald Moore, surveys rodman.

The following wage rate employes have been promoted to maintenancemen: Lonny Blasingame, Gordon Deason, Charles Hester, Lawrence Malney, Morris McLean, Cecil Murray and Edward Ubelhor.

Highway Wives met Aug. 2 at the El Capri for their monthly dinner meeting. There were 16 members present. The group welcomed Reta Miller as a new member. The president, Ann Yarnell, presided and presented plans and ideas for the Christmas party. Canasta, bridge and bingo were played after the business meeting. Hostesses for the September meeting will be Bette Sorrells and Kay Sprout.

POULTRY MUST BE IN "CHICKEN SOUP"

For consumers who may have wondered whether the chicken was merely waved over their "chicken soup," there's assurance now of its presence.

Effective September 1, poultry soups are required to contain at least two percent poultry meat, on a ready-to-serve basis. A new U. S. Department of Agriculture regulation prohibits labeling of soups as "Chicken. . ." or "Turkey. . . " unless this minimum is met.

Designed to help assure consumers that they will find enough poultry meat in their soup to merit such a label, this ruling applies to dried, condensed, frozen and liquid soups. Manufacturers must either increase the "meat" content or qualify the name.

Minimum content standards have been set previously for poultry pies, canned boned and shredded poultry, poultry chow mein and numerous other such products.

This regulation is part of the consumer protection programs administered by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service.

Water Level of Lake Lowered

MEMPHIS--Lowering the water level at Lake Wappapello began Monday as scheduled, Col. James A. Vivian, District Engineer, said.

The 359-foot mean sea level elevation, normal for this time of year, will be reduced 6 1/2 feet by Sept. 21 so that engineers can examine the dam's control structure to see what effect 25 years of wear have had on it.

The Corps of Engineers has planned to drawdown to permit the inspection of the structure during the period when least rainfall is normally expected, basing their computations on official records of rainfall over the portions of the St. Francis River basin most likely to be affected.

Immediately after the inspection and the completion of repairs, which may be necessary, the lake will be allowed to refill to its normal level. Colonel Vivian said that, unless major maintenance problems are encountered, the reservoir may return to the 359-foot level by late November, depending upon the amount of rain over the hilly area which drains into Lake Wappapello.

Bank Board Chairman Resigns

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- R. Crosby Kemper Sr., stepped down Tuesday as board chairman of the City National Bank and Trust Co., the city's third largest commercial bank.

His son, R. Crosby Kemper Jr. who is president, was given the added position of chief executive officer. Charles G. Young Jr. will succeed the retiring Kemper as board chairman.

The elder Kemper, 74, joined City National in 1919.

FOOD STAMP PROGRAM REPORTS GAINS OVER YEAR AGO

The number of needy folks in the Midwest taking part in the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Food Stamp Program rose 35 percent from June, 1966 to June, 1967. Total participation came to 570,231 in a 10-state area.

Recipients bought $7,322,219 worth of food coupons, and received an additional $3,310,813 in free or bonus coupons. The number of projects jumped from 89 to 283 over the year -- a gain of 215 percent.

Those persons certified as eligible by their local welfare office use the money they would ordinarily spend for food to purchase food stamps. Additional stamps received over what they purchase provide them with extra buying power. All foods, except imported items, can be bought with the stamps.

In the Midwest, there were 146,382 participants in Illinois; 26,290 in Indiana; 16,428 in Iowa; and 74,685 in Michigan. Other state figures included Minnesota, 42,642; Missouri, 21,826; Nebraska, 12,212; North Dakota, 2,338; Ohio, 291,790; and Wisconsin, 25,374.

Nationally, the number of projects soared from 324 to 838, and persons participating rose 52 1/2 percent to 1,829,052 from June to June.

If You Were the Judge

Marijuana on County Property No Defense

By Jack Strauss, LL.B

Officer Reilly had a beat that included the county court house. And every day, he watched with great interest and suspicion as Knoby would diligently and carefully water and care for certain plants that were located just behind the judges' parking lot. And, while he had an annoying feeling that Knoby was up to something no good, Officer Reilly just couldn't put his finger on what it was that he thought Knoby was up to.

Each day for three months, Officer Reilly passed and repassed the parking lot but all that came to him was a pleasant smile from Knoby as the latter tended his plants. Then, it suddenly struck Officer Reilly what Knoby was up to. He was growing marijuana right under the noses of the judges and law officers.

Officer Reilly cuffed Knoby and brought him before the bar on charges of unlawfully possessing the illegal plant.

"He took care of those plants," Officer Reilly told the judge, "as if they were the last plants on the earth."

"Maybe so," retorted Knoby a little wistfully. "But I never possessed them. They were on county property and were the property of the county. Therefore, while you may be able to throw the county in jail, you can't jail me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jug Knoby?

This is how the judge ruled; Knoby went to jail. The judge held that a person possesses a thing when he takes care of it, manages and controls it. In this case, while Knoby may have been growing his marijuana on county property, it was no defense since he still possessed it.

Rites Held For Amberg

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Funeral services were conducted today for Richard H. Amberg, publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and a member of The Associated Press board of directors.

Amberg, 55, died in New York Sunday of an apparent heart attack. He was visiting the East Coast on a combined business and pleasure trip, accompanied by his wife and three children.

Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes headed a large number of national, state and local government officials and news executives attending the funeral.

Fifteen Globe - Democrat executives and editors were pallbearers.

Religious rites were conducted at the Central Presbyterian Church in suburban Clayton. Burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Masonic services were conducted Tuesday night at the Scottish Rite Temple, where the body lay in state more than 24 hours attended by an honor guard of Naval reservists, Boy Scouts, a boys club and the Masonic Order.

President Johnson and former President Eisenhower joined hundreds of others in paying tribute to the newspaper executive.

"The tragic loss of Richard Amberg is a loss to our country as well as the newspaper world," the President said in a wire to the Amberg family.

"I share with all who knew and admired him the sense of loss that they feel today."

Eisenhower described Amberg as a working newspaperman who knew his countrymen from country town to great city.

"He was able to persuasively address himself to them with a knowledge of their interest and aspirations that was fortified by his own patriotism and commitment to the American way," Eisenhower said.

Readers of the Globe-Democrat expressed their sympathy in letters to the editor, one suggested the interstate highway bridge nearing completion over the Mississippi River be named in Amberg's honor.

Another reader proposed renaming the Herbert Hoover Boys' Club the publisher actively supported the Richard H. Amberg Boys' Club.

It is not unusual for students at Gettysburg College to be asked for directions to various places on the battlefield. As we walked to class one afternoon, a car with southern plates and a Confederate flag slowed to a stop at the curb. The driver leaned from the window and, in an accent dripping with Dixie, asked, "Say, y'all, can you tell me where Lee's headquarters are?"

With studied innocence, my friend asked, "Lee who?"

Drivers Fined At Charleston

CHARLESTON - Judge T. J. Brown Jr. heard these cases in magistrate court:

Ed VanPool, charged with disturbing the peace, fined $50 and $15 cost.

Ralph Andrew Brown, charged with driving while intoxicated and having no operator's license, fined $100 on first count and $14.25 costs. Second count dismissed, also a sentence of 60 days in jail.

Bryant Rogers, charged with having no operator's license, fined $5 and $11 costs.

Franklin Davisson, charged with speeding, fined $13 and $11 costs.

Lonnie Pearson, charged with failing to yield right of way, fined $15 and $11 costs.

I love Christmas! I feel near to God at Christmas time. I love the Word of God at Christmas. I like to use the Christmas season as a good excuse to get into people's hearts and win them to Christ. If the world has a Christmas of revelry, let us make it a day of Christian love and fellowship and a day honoring to Christ. Let us make much of the Christmas story in the Bible, of Christmas carols. Christian people today do well to have a day of rejoicing over the birth of the Savior and to send portions to one another and to make merry with spiritual joy.

Lonnie Pearson, charged with failing to yield right of way, fined $15 and $11 costs.

I love Christmas! I feel near to God at Christmas time. I love the Word of God at Christmas. I like to use the Christmas season as a good excuse to get into people's hearts and win them to Christ. If the world has a Christmas of revelry, let us make it a day of Christian love and fellowship and a day honoring to Christ. Let us make much of the Christmas story in the Bible, of Christmas carols. Christian people today do well to have a day of rejoicing over the birth of the Savior and to send portions to one another and to make merry with spiritual joy.

Ruling Made on Emergency Road Service Pacts

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Atty. Gen. Norman H. Anderson ruled today auto financing companies who offer bonds, accident-travel expenses, legal expenses, emergency road service and other accident and emergency services for an annual fee are engaged in the insurance business.

The inquiry was made by Robert D. Scharz, commissioner of insurance, in regard to a one-year contract issued by the Allied Auto Acceptance Corp.

For a payment of $105, it would provide for these emergency services or repay the contract holder, if the need came about as the result of ownership or operation of an auto described in the contract.

This being the case the policies of the company would come under the control of the State Insurance Division.

Church Young People Honor— Bohannons

MOREHOUSE -- The young people of the First Baptist church honored the Rev. Glen Bohannon and family with a going away social Sunday night after church services.

The program theme was "Total Commitment" and the colors were yellow and white.

The refreshment table was decorated in yellow and white with greenery and bronze mums centerpiece and candles. The piano was decorated with bronze, yellow and rust mums. The devotional table was covered with a linen cloth and held a large Bible and candles. Across the front were the words, "Total Commitment."

The devotional was given by Gerri Oliver. Special music was by Barbara Orr, with Paulette Glover at the piano.

Present were Paulette Glover, Gerri Oliver, Lou Cagle, Sandra Breeden, Sharon Breeden, Carlene Winkle, Donna Bohannon, Marjorie Rogers, Jean Shaffer, Regina Jackson, James Lee and Susie Hewitt.

Charles Northcutt, Ronnie Peek, Patti Taylor, Judy Taylor, Teresa Tarrants, Steve Westerfield, Linda Neal, Debbie Payne, Barbara and Peggy Orr, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. McFarling, Lisa, Dale and Johnny Bohannon and the sponsors of the young people's department, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Westerfield.

After games were played and refreshments served, gifts were presented to the pastor and his family.

Tuesday night a going away supper was given in honor of the Rev. Sonny Graham and family at the Delmo community building.

The Rev. Mr. Graham is moving to Gary, Ind.

Attending were Mrs. Richard Kiersey and son, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Clarry, John Hughes, Mrs. Jennie Nimmo, Johnny Nimmo and family, Mrs. Connie Bolen, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bolen.

Mrs. Violet Summers, Donnie Sterling and family, Mrs. Oliver and granddaughters, Mrs. Campbell and children, Murrell Gosnell and family, Suzi King, Jasper Dovers and son and the Rev. Mr. Graham and family.

Johnny Nimmo and family visited last weekend with her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller of Joplin.

Mrs. Juanita Rogers and Marjorie visited Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Crowley of Sikeston Monday night. Tuesday they visited Mr. and Mrs. Acie Adkins of Dexter.

The Nazarene church has concluded a one-week vacation Bible school. Commencement was Sunday morning.

Superintendent was Mrs. Elizabeth Lawrence. Kindergarten was taught by Mrs. Lawrence, primary by Mrs. Nancy Hurley, junior by Mrs. Harold Lacy, youth department by Mrs. Mary Etta Richardson and the pastor, the Rev. Herman Lawrence.

Helpers were Mrs. Jewel Scales and Mrs. Mais Bryant.

Thirty-six pupils were enrolled, with an average daily attendance of 24.

At commencement the kindergarten class sang "Open, Shut Them" and "Let's Go A-Walking;" primary, "We Make Our Garden" and "God Sends the Rain." Each primary pupil recited a scripture he learned at school, and the kindergarten and primary joined in a rhythm band.

Juniors sang "This Is My Father's World" and repeated the Ten Commandments in unison. A choral of a psalm and "By My Spirit" by the youth department ended the program.

Awards for memory work of scripture verses were given to Norma Hurley and Jack and Jill Lawrence. Norma Hurley also received an award for bringing the most visitors to Sunday school.

Symington Opposed To Bombing Halt

WASHINGTON AP - Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., Sunday reiterated his opposition to any halt of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and said that in the brief Mideast war the "Israeli Air Force destroyed about $2 billion worth of Arab equipment - mostly supplied by the Russians."

Symington, former secretary of the Air Force, in a taped radio-TV program with Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., said the Russians now are concentrating military expenditures on an antiballistic missile ABM system.

He said he didn't think the Russians will want to start anything out there for some time to come. Peace can be maintained in the Middle East, he said, unless "war is deliberately formented by the Soviets."

On Vietnam, the Missouri Senator said that "according to our top military authorities, another bombing cessation would guarantee 10,000 additional dead. We've got to either move forward or move out."

He backed actions of the Senate Armed Services and Appropriations committee in urging immediate deployment of an ABM system by the United States.

Opens New Plant

International Shoe Company's new, ultra-modern, 95,000 square foot shoe manufacturing plant in Paducah, Kentucky, began operations last week. The new plant is geared for an estimated daily capacity of 5,000 pairs of men's high-grade welt shoes, including Hy-Test Safety Shoes. This plant replaces the aged, 71,000 square foot factory that has been in operation in Paducah since 1919.

"International's new plant in Paducah is, without a doubt, one of the most modern shoe manufacturing facilities in the country" said Edward J. Riley, International's Executive Vice-President. "It has been designed and built to incorporate the industry's most advanced technology and to provide complete flexibility for any changes that may be necessary to stay abreast of future manufacturing innovations and developments. It's another step forward in International's long range program of replacing aged and obsolete plants with the newest and most efficient equipment and facilities".

The plant is located in Tyler Park, a new industrial development on the Belt-Line Highway in Paducah. It is one-story, fully air-conditioned and gas heated. Temperature and humidity are zone controlled to facilitate better handling of shoe materials. Modern equipment includes: automatically controlled electric drying rooms; individual motor drives; scientifically engineered lighting and the most efficient application of work-flow planning.

Perry H. Jones, General Superintendent, Men's Manufacturing stated, "Every detail has been planned to improve manufacturing efficiency and to up-grade the quality of our product."

Total employment now 550 is expected to increase in stride with the increasing demand for this type footwear. S. A. Hughes, who has been the Paducah Superintendent since 1965, is Superintendent of the new plant and Charles Scudder is Assistant Superintendent.

MOREHOUSE -- The young people of the First Baptist church honored the Rev. Glen Bohannon and family with a going away social Sunday night after church services.

The program theme was "Total Commitment" and the colors were yellow and white.

The refreshment table was decorated in yellow and white with greenery and bronze mums centerpiece and candles. The piano was decorated with bronze, yellow and rust mums. The devotional table was covered with a linen cloth and held a large Bible and candles. Across the front were the words, "Total Commitment."

The devotional was given by Gerri Oliver. Special music was by Barbara Orr, with Paulette Glover at the piano.

Present were Paulette Glover, Gerri Oliver, Lou Cagle, Sandra Breeden, Sharon Breeden, Carlene Winkle, Donna Bohannon, Marjorie Rogers, Jean Shaffer, Regina Jackson, James Lee and Susie Hewitt.

Charles Northcutt, Ronnie Peek, Patti Taylor, Judy Taylor, Teresa Tarrants, Steve Westerfield, Linda Neal, Debbie Payne, Barbara and Peggy Orr, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. McFarling, Lisa, Dale and Johnny Bohannon and the sponsors of the young people's department, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Westerfield.

After games were played and refreshments served, gifts were presented to the pastor and his family.

Tuesday night a going away supper was given in honor of the Rev. Sonny Graham and family at the Delmo community building.

The Rev. Mr. Graham is moving to Gary, Ind.

Attending were Mrs. Richard Kiersey and son, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Clarry, John Hughes, Mrs. Jennie Nimmo, Johnny Nimmo and family, Mrs. Connie Bolen, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bolen.

Mrs. Violet Summers, Donnie Sterling and family, Mrs. Oliver and granddaughters, Mrs. Campbell and children, Murrell Gosnell and family, Suzi King, Jasper Dovers and son and the Rev. Mr. Graham and family.

Johnny Nimmo and family visited last weekend with her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller of Joplin.

Mrs. Juanita Rogers and Marjorie visited Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Crowley of Sikeston Monday night. Tuesday they visited Mr. and Mrs. Acie Adkins of Dexter.

The Nazarene church has concluded a one-week vacation Bible school. Commencement was Sunday morning.

Superintendent was Mrs. Elizabeth Lawrence. Kindergarten was taught by Mrs. Lawrence, primary by Mrs. Nancy Hurley, junior by Mrs. Harold Lacy, youth department by Mrs. Mary Etta Richardson and the pastor, the Rev. Herman Lawrence.

Helpers were Mrs. Jewel Scales and Mrs. Mais Bryant.

Thirty-six pupils were enrolled, with an average daily attendance of 24.

At commencement the kindergarten class sang "Open, Shut Them" and "Let's Go A-Walking;" primary, "We Make Our Garden" and "God Sends the Rain." Each primary pupil recited a scripture he learned at school, and the kindergarten and primary joined in a rhythm band.

Juniors sang "This Is My Father's World" and repeated the Ten Commandments in unison. A choral of a psalm and "By My Spirit" by the youth department ended the program.

Awards for memory work of scripture verses were given to Norma Hurley and Jack and Jill Lawrence. Norma Hurley also received an award for bringing the most visitors to Sunday school.

Symington Opposed To Bombing Halt

WASHINGTON AP - Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., Sunday reiterated his opposition to any halt of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and said that in the brief Mideast war the "Israeli Air Force destroyed about $2 billion worth of Arab equipment - mostly supplied by the Russians."

Symington, former secretary of the Air Force, in a taped radio-TV program with Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., said the Russians now are concentrating military expenditures on an antiballistic missile ABM system.

He said he didn't think the Russians will want to start anything out there for some time to come. Peace can be maintained in the Middle East, he said, unless "war is deliberately formented by the Soviets."

On Vietnam, the Missouri Senator said that "according to our top military authorities, another bombing cessation would guarantee 10,000 additional dead. We've got to either move forward or move out."

He backed actions of the Senate Armed Services and Appropriations committee in urging immediate deployment of an ABM system by the United States.

Opens New Plant

International Shoe Company's new, ultra-modern, 95,000 square foot shoe manufacturing plant in Paducah, Kentucky, began operations last week. The new plant is geared for an estimated daily capacity of 5,000 pairs of men's high-grade welt shoes, including Hy-Test Safety Shoes. This plant replaces the aged, 71,000 square foot factory that has been in operation in Paducah since 1919.

"International's new plant in Paducah is, without a doubt, one of the most modern shoe manufacturing facilities in the country" said Edward J. Riley, International's Executive Vice-President. "It has been designed and built to incorporate the industry's most advanced technology and to provide complete flexibility for any changes that may be necessary to stay abreast of future manufacturing innovations and developments. It's another step-forward in International's long range program of replacing aged and obsolete plants with the newest and most efficient equipment and facilities".

The plant is located in Tyler Park, a new industrial development on the Belt-Line Highway in Paducah. It is one-story, fully air-conditioned and gas heated. Temperature and humidity are zone controlled to facilitate better handling of shoe materials. Modern equipment includes: automatically controlled electric drying rooms; individual motor drives; scientifically engineered lighting and the most efficient application of work-flow planning.

Perry H. Jones, General Superintendent, Men's Manufacturing stated, "Every detail has been planned to improve manufacturing efficiency and to up-grade the quality of our product."

Total employment now 550 is expected to increase in stride with the increasing demand for this type footwear. S. A. Hughes, who has been the Paducah Superintendent since 1965, is Superintendent of the new plant and Charles Scudder is Assistant Superintendent.

STATE FAIR TIME is coming up across the nation. As an example, Susan McDonald, 12, Middlesex, N.J., cuddles some chicks she will display at the Garden State's agricultural exhibition this month.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: LBJ likely to get war tax but not 10 per cent; oil men will continue to enjoy tax loopholes; Mike Feighan hits the trail again.

WASHINGTON -- Judging by the mood of the tax-writing house ways and means committee, President Johnson should get his war tax, but it will be trimmed down to less than the 10 per cent he has requested.

This will be followed by a big show over tax reforms to quiet the public clamor over tax loopholes. Once the clamor abates, insiders indicate, the reforms will be sidetracked.

Meanwhile, the taxpayers will be stuck with paying the increased costs of the Vietnam war while the oil millionaires and other privileged people continue to escape paying their fair share of the burden.

The oil industry is now putting out the propaganda that plugging the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance won't save enough revenue to be noticed.

But treasury experts have told this column that $2.5 billion a year drains through the oil depletion loophole. This would go a long way toward paying for more arms and ammunition. The oil millionaires, of course, would rather spend it on air-conditioned Cadillacs and heated swimming pools.

One of the nation's foremost tax experts, whose credentials are respected by liberals and conservatives alike, is exsenator Paul Douglas. He has contended that the tax rate could be cut in half without reducing federal revenue a single cent, if congress would only plug the tax loopholes.

In one of his last appearances on the senate floor, he declared: "Last year a chairwoman earning $55 a week paid more in income taxes than an oil company whose income was $26 million."

Additional evidence can be found in the fine print of the New York Times financial columns. Consider this notice which appeared several months ago in the "capital wanted" column: "West Texas ranchman has one-half interest in oil well on his ranch and is selling one-fourth interest to drill additional well. Income from this oil production is suitable for non-active investor needing 27½ per cent depletion allowance."

For years, oil privileges were protected on Capitol Hill by that powerful pair from Texas, the late Sam Rayburn and his pupil, Lyndon Johnson. The venerable Rayburn, as speaker of the house, controlled appointments to the ways and means committee. No one was admitted to this select circle who couldn't give Rayburn the right answer to one question: "Do you favor the oil depletion allowance?"

Although Rayburn has now been dead six years, his influence still haunts the ways and means committee. A majority of members, in response to inquiries from this column, expressed a willingness to consider tax reforms. But close questioning indicated that they didn't have the oil giveaway in mind.

"I don't consider oil depletion allowances to be tax loopholes," grumbled Rep. James Battin, R-Mont.

"What's one man's loophole is another man's equity," said Rep. Syd Herlong, D-Fla.

"I know how people feel about this oil depletion," said Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., "but I think they are inclined to view it more simply than they should. The return on capital investment isn't red hot, not as much as you would think from the 27½ per cent depletion allowance."

Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., echoed the Texas view: "I do not view the depletion or depreciation provisions of the tax law as inequitable."

The prevailing sentiment was summed up by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.: "Whether or not we could eliminate the 27½ per cent depletion allowance?. . . I am sure that we couldn't go that far."

NEWS NUGGETS

FOOT-LOOSE FEIGHAN -- Rep. Michael Feighan, who has a distressing habit of making foolish statements overseas, is off on another junket. At a 1965 immigration conference in Geneva, he assailed the memory of the late President Kennedy for "his left-wing attitudes and his softness on Communism." Life Magazine reported that he also called the slain President "A Nigger Lover."

Now Feighan is on his way to Spain, Italy and other vacation spots -- at the taxpayers' expense, of course. Our diplomats are holding their breath, hoping Feighan will hold his tongue. Incidentally, the white-haired, 62-year-old house veteran, once an engaging Irishman but now an embittered old man, has hit up the taxpayers for another $19,000 a year as salary for his son William.

BRAINWASH CLUES -- Pentagon doctors have been studying Communist films of U.S. prisoners in North Vietnam for clues to brainwashing techniques. There is evidence in some of the films that the prisoners do not react normally. But the doctors have been unable to determine whether the prisoners have been drugged or tortured. The Communist technique is to apply psychological torture, combined with extreme physical discomfort, particularly loss of sleep, until the victim loses control of his emotions.

LBJ'S INVESTIGATORS -- President Johnson has sent staff members quietly into the Negro Ghettos to look around and report back their impressions to him. He has concluded from their reports that the Negroes aren't nearly as worried about unemployment as they are simply sick of slum living amid the rats and vermin.

IT'S UP TO YOU

INTER-ENTANGLEMENT OF FUNDS

Chief Justice Earl Warren spent 13 days in Bolivia, Peru and Colombia earlier this year, at a cost to the State Department of $948. About a year ago Justice Potter Stewart made a 7½-day trip to 15 nations in the Middle East, Asia and Europe, at a cost to the State Department of $5,391.

The Chief Justice was participating in "informal, seminar-type discussions," and Justice Stewart discussed with lawyers, officials and others, matters "concerned with law and safety." This would seem to be a mingling of the affairs of two of the main departments of our government—the executive with the judicial. It is very disturbing to learn that the executive department is using high officials in the judicial department to promote its objectives. A mingling of funds and personnel in these two main branches of our government is unhealthy and, I believe, unconstitutional.

If the learned Justices were engaged in work pertaining to the judicial department, their expenses ought not to have been paid by the State Department. If they were promoting objectives of the executive department, high judicial personnel should not have been used for that purpose. If they, with their wives, were merely enjoying foreign travel at the expense of the taxpayers, that too was wrong. More meticulous attention is needed to avoid inter-entanglement of the three main branches of our government and to avoid wasting the resources of our people. It would be most unfortunate indeed if our people should become suspicious that high officials of the judicial department have placed themselves under obligations to the executive department as a result of having accepted favors. Any needful travel by the Justice of the Supreme Court in the furtherance of legitimate functions should be paid for by funds appropriated for the use of the judicial department.

ELECTION WORKERS at Saigon's second district headquarters conduct a dress rehearsal prior to Sunday's South Vietnamese presidential election in which voters chose a president, vice president and a 60-man senate. Lt. Gen. Nguyn Van Thieu, the winner among 11 candidates for president, told newsmen that if he wins under a cloud of fraud charges that "I will give up the office."

Modern Silent Movie in Works

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What's this? Somebody making a SILENT movie again after all these years?

Yes, he's Ralph Andrews, an independent television producer. The film, his first for theaters, is "The Silent Treatment."

Judging from two reels he projected for this reporter, it will be as wild as the soundless Charlie Chaplin and Keystone Kops antics of the '20s.

There are the frantic chases, exaggerated gestures and dialogue cards instead of audible words. Will moderns go to see this first Hollywood silent since Chaplin's 1936 "Modern Times?"

Andrews is so sure they will that he financed the film himself, is directing it, and isn't bothering to seek a distributor until he has a rough cut assembled this fall.

"The novelty will bring people into the theater and the humor will keep them there and bring them back," claims Andrews, a onetime NBC studio page and Ralph Edwards TV apprentice, he has produced daytime's "You Don't Say," starring Tom Kennedy, for five years. Fond of visual gags, Andrews clutters his desk with gadgets including a monstrous mallet labeled "We welcome criticism."

Egg-bald—like Yul Brynner, he shaves his head—and colorful in striped shirt and red sweater, Andrews sketched his film's plot.

An advertising agency selects a clean-shaven hippie (Marty Ingels) for a promotional stunt. If Ingels can make $10,000 worth of purchases in two weeks with a client's credit card, using no cash, he'll win a prize. His escapades involve one of the biggest casts of bit-playing guest stars ever assembled.

Rowan and Martin are cops, Barry Sullivan a car-rental proprietor, Wally Cox a masseur, Godfrey Cambridge a hotel manager, Phyllis Diller a prostitute working for "Never on Sunday, Inc." Others including George Raft, Rudy Vallee, Gene Autry and Jackie Coogan—Chaplin's co-star in the silents' famed "The Kid"—flash by.

President and Mrs. Johnson and California Gov. Ronald Reagan join the action on clips from press-conference newsreels. "First time in history a President has had a part in a movie!" Andrews exults.

As Ingels' adventures make banner headlines, LBJ tells newsmen on a dialogue card, "Ah watch and wait with the entire nation." Lady Bird assures Ingels, "We're all pullin' for you," and Reagan wonders, "Will he make it?"

None of the dignitaries was consulted about these liberties.

Contrary to the original silents, the film will be in color and have a musical background including a trumpet cackle to simulate Miss Diller's laugh.

"Good comedy should be seen and not heard," Andrews the jay argues. "A lot of people have told me they thought of making a silent, but nobody's had the nerve."

Misprints Can Increase Stamp Value

NEW YORK (AP) — On May 13, 1918, a stock broker's clerk went to the Washington, D.C., post office on his lunch hour to buy a sheet of the first U.S. airmail stamp.

He paid $24 for the sheet of 100, 24-cent, red and blue stamps showing a Curtiss "Jenny" in flight.

As he turned to leave, the clerk looked at the sheet in his hand and, as he said later, his "heart stood still." Every stamp showed the biplane flying upside down.

Collectors call stamps with a printing abnormality in them freaks, and they all dream of coming across at least one someday. Few do.

The clerk who paid $24 for his sheet with the inverted airplanes sold it for $15,000. The buyer broke up the sheet and sold it piecemeal.

In 1964, four of the stamps were sold to a dealer for $67,000. The newest edition of Scott's Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue prices them at $20,000 for each 24-cent stamp.

This doesn't mean the owner of one of the inverted airmails can rush right out and sell it for $20,000, although that might be the retail price a dealer would charge if he sold it to a collector.

Stamps, like other commodities, swing to the tune played by the tune of supply and demand.

A stamp may be listed in the Scott catalogue as having a value of $100, but to actually get $100 for it depends on the seller's luck in finding someone who wants that particular stamp badly enough to pay $100 for it.

In setting a value on a stamp, says Gordon R. Harmer, editor in chief of the Scott catalogue, "we try to get a cross-section of prices from dealers, auctions, and philatelic publications."

The prices quoted, Harmer says, try to represent the average retail price of a stamp at the time the catalogue is printed—the price an informed dealer would charge an informed buyer for a fine specimen.

The prospect that new U.S. stamp issues will increase dramatically in value is not bright.

Forty years ago, when the government issued a stamp, the odds were the stamps would be used as postage and eventually destroyed when the envelopes on which they were stuck were thrown away.

Today, with most bulk mailings handled by postage meters, new stamp issues are purchased in great part by collectors and speculators, who store them away. Those new stamps that do get used as postage often are torn off the envelope and saved by collectors or people who know collectors. This means that when the new issue is withdrawn from sale the bulk of it still is in existence and a glut on the market.

Attacks Reported on North Viet Dikes

EDITOR'S NOTE — Amando Doronila, correspondent of the Manila Times, is touring North Vietnam. This dispatch was made available to The Associated Press by the Manila Times.

By AMANDO DORONILA
Manila Times Correspondent

NINH BINH, North Vietnam (AP) — Dikes in the fertile Red River delta—North Vietnam's rice basket—have come under increasing air attack lately.

The bombing appears intended not only to demoralize and harass the population in the most densely populated region of the country but also to destroy the rice crops in the vast alluvial plains with its vulnerable open spaces.

The great dikes system near Hanoi and Haiphong, built over a hundred years to shield these cities from floods and divert the floodwaters to irrigate fields, have been reported to have been attacked only lightly and the bombing of dikes in Hanoi was connected with the strikes at the Paul Doumer Bridge, which disrupted the main traffic link between the capital and Haiphong and areas to the north Aug. 11-12.

The destruction of major dikes is regarded here with serious international political complications and Americans have so far withheld their heavy air blows from these targets. But here in the delta region, whose paddy fields provide the bulk of rice supply of 17 million North Vietnamese, there have been almost daily attacks on dikes along the numerous small confluences of the Red River which empties into the Tonkin Gulf.

By Hanoi officials' account there were 50 attacks in this province on dams, sluice gates and dikes from June to December, 1966, alone with the intensity increasing to the daily rate during the past three months. One particular dike we visited last Thursday in Gia Ninh village, district of Gia Vien, was bombed Aug. 27. Eight 500-pound bombs were dropped and three left a 20-foot breach in the dike.

The breaching of the dike flooded a small village and the rice crop 9.8 feet below the water level at a time when rains were heavy.

The pattern of bombing in the delta seems evident—to interdict agricultural production. No military targets are visible in the dikes. The heaviest artillery we saw were antiquated rifles of the peasant militia.

To illustrate the pattern, near the coast are towns, Dong Giao and Binh Minh, which have large state farms. The Dong Giao farm has been bombed and strafed 123 times, during which 298 head of cattle were killed, according to officials. They say Binh Minh has been raided 229 times, during which three workers have been killed and several buildings were destroyed.

These farms train agricultural workers and are showcases for agriculture, visited recently by Romanian agriculturists.

Since the province is near the Tonkin Gulf, it is the route of naval aircraft on bombing missions inland and the coastal villages are often shelled by naval guns, officials said.

Leaders to Attend Ground Breaking

ASBURY, Mo. (AP) — Two governors and three congressmen are expected to attend ceremonies here Sept. 15 marking ground breaking for a $25 million power generating plant.

Planning to take part in the start of construction of the Empire District facility are Gov. Warren Hearnes of Missouri and Robert Docking of Kansas plus Rep. Durward Hall, R-Mo., Rep. John Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., and Rep. Joe Skubitz, R-Kan.

The generating plant to be built in southwestern Missouri between Joplin and Pittsburg, Kan., will burn coal mined nearby from a new Pittsburg & Midway Coal Co. tipple.

J. Edgar Hoover tells this story of a con man who thought he knew all the angles. After laboring ceaselessly to perfect the signature of a society big shot, the swindler successfully passed off a forged check on a local merchant. Inspired by his initial success, he went back to cash a second check, only to be apprehended. The first check had been returned with the notation "Insufficient funds."

More Babies Outliving Infancy

WASHINGTON (AP) - A greater percentage of American babies are surviving infancy than ever before, the Public Health Service reported today.

The agency said the U.S. infant mortality rate—the number of deaths under 1 year of age per 1,000 live births—dropped to an all-time low of 24.9 in the first six months of this year.

The 1966 rate was 23.4, a drop of 13.7 since 1958, the last year when the percentage of infant deaths failed to decline.

LITTERLY SPEAKING

Lives of motorists remind us
We can leave—if we are beeis—
Tin cans and, tossed out behind us,
Bottles and banana peels.
Let us then be up and doing
Everything we can contrive
To deface the land, and strewing
Garbage everywhere we drive.

WASHINGTON — Judging by the mood of the taxwriting house ways and means committee, President Johnson should get his war tax, but it will be trimmed down to less than the 10 per cent he has requested.

This will be followed by a big show over tax reforms to quiet the public clamor over tax loopholes. Once the clamor abates, insiders indicate, the reforms will be sidetracked.

Meanwhile, the taxpayers will be stuck with paying the increased costs of the Vietnam war while the oil millionaires and other privileged people continue to escape paying their fair share of the burden.

The oil industry is now putting out the propaganda that plugging the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance won't save enough revenue to be noticed.

But treasury experts have told this column that $5.5 billion a year drains through the oil depletion loophole. This would go a long way toward paying for more arms and ammunition. The oil millionaires, of course, would rather spend it on air-conditioned Cadillacs and heated swimming pools.

One of the nation's foremost tax experts, whose credentials are respected by liberals and conservatives alike, is executive Paul Douglas. He has contended that the tax rate could be cut in half without reducing federal revenue a single cent, if congress would only plug the tax loopholes.

In one of his last appearances on the senate floor, he declared: "Last year a churchman earning $55 a week paid more in income taxes than an oil company whose income was $26 million."

Additional evidence can be found in the fine print of the New York Times financial columns. Consider this notice which appeared several months ago in the "Capital wants" column: "West Texas ranchman has one-half interest in oil well on his ranch and is selling one-fourth interest to drill additional wells. Income from this oil production is suitable for non-active investor needing 27½ per cent depletion allowance."

For years, oil privileges were protected on Capitol Hill by that powerful pair from Texas, the late Sam Rayburn and his pupil, Lyndon Johnson. The venerable Rayburn, as speaker of the house, controlled appointments to the ways and means committee. No one was admitted to this select circle who couldn't give Rayburn the right answer to one question: "Do you favor the oil depletion allowance?"

Although Rayburn has now been dead six years, his influence still haunts the ways and means committee. A majority of members, in response to inquiries from this column, expressed a willingness to consider tax reforms, but close questioning indicated that they didn't have the oil giveaway in mind.

"I don't consider oil depletion allowances to be tax loopholes," grumbled Rep. James Battin, R-Mont.

"What's one man's loophole is another man's equity," said Rep. Syd Herlong, D-Fla.

"I know how people feel about this oil depletion," said Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., but I think they are inclined to view it more simply than they should. The return on capital investment isn't red hot, not as much as you would think from the 27½ per cent depletion allowance."

Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., echoed the Texas view: "I do not view the depletion or depreciation provision of the tax law as inequitable."

The prevailing sentiment was summed up by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.: "Whether or not we could eliminate the 27½ per cent depletion allowance,? . I am sure that we couldn't go that far."

NEWS NUGGETS

FOOTLOOSE FEIGHAN — Rep. Michael Feighan, who has a distressing habit of making foolish statements overseas, is off on another junket. At a 1965 immigration conference in Geneva, he assailed the memory of the late President Kennedy for "his left-wing attitudes and his softness on Communism." Life Magazine reported that he also called the slain President "A Nigger Lover."

Now Feighan is on his way to Spain, Italy and other vacation spots — at the taxpayers' expense, of course. Our diplomats are holding their breath, hoping Feighan will hold his tongue. Incidentally, the white-haired, 62-year-old house veteran, once an engaging Irishman but now an embittered old man, has hit up the taxpayers for another $19,000 a year as salary for his son William.

BRAINWASH CLUES — Pentagon doctors have been studying Communist films of U.S. prisoners in North Vietnam for clues to brainwashing techniques. There is evidence in some of the films that the prisoners do not react normally. But the doctors have been unable to determine whether the prisoners have been drugged or tortured. The Communist technique is to apply psychological torture, combined with extreme physical discomfort, particularly loss of sleep, until the victim loses control of his emotions.

LBJ'S INVESTIGATORS — President Johnson has sent staff members quietly into the Negro Ghettos to look around and report back their impressions to him. He has concluded from their reports that the Negroes aren't nearly as worried about unemployment as they are simply sick of slum living amid the rats and vermin.

IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, LL.B.D.

INTER-ENTAGLEMENT OF FUNDS

Chief Justice Earl Warren spent 13 days in Bolivia, Peru and Colombia earlier this year, at a cost to the State Department of $948. About a year ago Justice Potter Stewart made a 7½-day trip to 15 nations in the Middle East, Asia and Europe, at a cost to the State Department of $5,351.

The Chief Justice was participating in "informal, seminar-type discussions," and Justice Stewart discussed with lawyers, officials and others, matters "concerned with law and safety."

This would seem to be a mingling of the affairs of two of the main departments of our government—the executive with the judicial. It is very distressing to learn that the executive department is using high officials in the judicial department to promote its objectives. A mingling of funds and personnel in these two main branches of our government is unhealthy and, I believe, unconstitutional.

If the learned Justices were engaged in work pertaining to the judicial department, their expenses ought not to have been paid by the State Department. If they were promoting objectives of the executive department, high judicial personnel should not have been used for that purpose. If they, with their views, were merely enjoying foreign travel at the expense of the taxpayers, that too was wrong. More meticulous attention is needed to avoid inter-entanglement of the three main branches of our government and to avoid wasting the resources of our people. It would be most unfortunate indeed if our people should become suspicious that high officials of the judicial department have placed themselves under obligations to the executive department as a result of having accepted favors. Any needful travel by the Justice of the Supreme Court in the futherance of legitimate functions should be paid for by funds appropriated for the use of the judicial department.

ELECTION WORKERS at Saigon's second district headquarters conduct a dress rehearsal prior to Sunday's South Vietnamese presidential election in which voters chose a president, vice president and a 60-man senate. Lt. Gen. Nguyn Van Thieu, the winner among 11 candidates for president, told newsmen that if he wins under a cloud of fraud charges that "I will give up the office."

Modern Silent Movie in Works

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What's this? Somebody making a SILENT movie again after all these years?

Yes, he's Ralph Andrews, an independent television producer. The film, his first for theaters, is "The Silent Treatment." Judging from two reels he projected for this reporter, it will be as wild as the soundless Charlie Chaplin and Keystone Kops antics of the '20s.

There are the frantic chases, exaggerated guestures and dialogue cards instead of subtitles. Will moderns go to see this first Hollywood silent since Chaplin's 1936 "Modern Times?"

Andrews is so sure they will that he financed the film himself, is directing it, and isn't bothering to seek a distributor until he has a rough cut assembled this fall.

Andrews says he will bring people into the theater and the humor will keep them there and bring them back," claims Andrews, 38.

A onetime NBC studio page and Ralph Edwards TV apprentice, he has produced daytime's "You Don't Say," starring Tom Kennedy, for five years. Fond of visual gags, Andrews clutters his desk with gadgets including a monster phone labeled "We welcome criticism."

Egg-ball— like Yul Brynner, he shaves his head— and colorful in striped shirt and red sweater, Andrews sketched his film's plot.

An advertising agency selects a client— Jimmie Hipple (Marty Ingels) for a promotional stunt. If Ingels can make $10,000 worth of purchases in two weeks with a client's credit card, using no cash, he'll win a prize. His escapades involve one of the biggest casts of bit-playing guest stars ever assembled.

Rowan and Martin are cops, Barry Sullivan a car-rental proprietor, Wally Cox a masseur, Godfrey Cambridge a hotel manager, Phyllis Diller a prostitute working for "Never on Sunday, Inc." Others including George Raft, Rudy Valley, Gene Autry and Jackie Coogan— Chaplin's co-star in the silents' famed "The Kid"— flash by.

President and Mrs. Johnson and California Gov. Ronald Reagan join the action on clips from press-conference newsreels. "First time in history a President has had a part in a movie!" Andrews exulted.

As Ingels' adventures make banner headlines, LBJ tells newsmen on a dialogue card, "Ah watch and wait with the entire nation." Lady Bird queries Ingels, "We're all pullin' for you," and Reagan wonders, "Will he make it?"

None of the dignitaries was consulted about these liberties.

Contrary to the original silents, the film will be in color and have a musical background including a trumpet cackle to simulate Miss Diller's laugh.

"Good comedy should be seen and not heard," Andrews argues. "A lot of people have told me they thought of making a silent, but nobody's had the nerve."

Misprints Can Increase Stamp Value

NEW YORK (AP) — On May 13, 1918, a stock broker's clerk went to the Washington, D.C., post office on his lunch hour to buy a sheet of the first U.S. airmail stamp.

He paid $24 for the sheet of 100, 24-cent, red and blue stamps showing a Curtiss "Jenny" in flight.

As he turned to leave, the clerk looked at the sheet in his hand and, as he said later, his "heart stood still." Every stamp showed the biplane flying upside down.

Collectors call stamps with a printing abnormality in them freaks, and they all dream of coming across at least one someday. Few do.

The clerk who paid $24 for his sheet with the inverted airplanes sold it for $15,000. The buyer broke up the sheet and sold it piecemeal.

In 1964, four of the stamps were sold to a dealer for $67,000. The newest edition of Scott's Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue prices them at $20,000 for each 24-cent stamp.

This doesn't mean the owner of one of the inverted airmails can rush right out and sell it for $20,000, although that might be the retail price a dealer would charge if he sold it to a collector.

Stamps, like other commodities, swing to the tune played by the law of supply and demand.

A stamp may be listed in the Scott catalogue as having a value of $100, but to actually get $100 for it depends on the seller's luck in finding someone who wants that particular stamp badly enough to pay $100 for it.

In setting a value on a stamp, says Gordon R. Harmer, editor in chief of the Scott catalogue, "we try to get a cross-section of opinion from dealers, auctions, and philatelic publications."

The prices quoted, Harmer says, try to represent the average retail price of the stamp at the time the catalogue is printed. The price an informed dealer would charge an informed buyer for a fine specimen.

The prospect that new U.S. stamp issues will increase dramatically in value is not bright.

Forty years ago, when the government issued a stamp, the odds were the stamps would be used as postage and eventually thrown away.

Today, with most bulk mailings hasilled by postage meters, new stamps are purchased in great part by collectors and speculators, who store them away. Those new stamps that do get used as postage often are torn off the envelope and saved by collectors or people who know collectors. This means that when they are withdrawn from sale the bulk of it still is in existence and a glut on the market.

Attacks Reported on North Viet Dikes

EDITORS NOTE — Amando Doronila, correspondent of the Manila Times, is touring North Vietnam. This dispatch was made available to The Associated Press by the Manila Times.

By AMANDO DORONILA
Manila Times Correspondent

NINH BINH, North Vietnam (AP) — Dikes in the fertile Red River delta— North Vietnam's rice basket— have come under increasing air attack lately.

The bombing appears intended not only to demoralize and harass the population in the most densely populated region of the country but also to destroy the rice crops in the vast alluvial plain with its vulnerable open spaces.

The great dikes system near Hanoi and Haiphong, built over a hundred years to shield these cities from floods and divert the floodwaters to irrigate fields, have been reported to have been attacked lightly and the bombing of dikes in Hanoi was connected with the strikes at the Paul Doumer Bridge, which disrupted the main traffic link between the capital and Haiphong and areas to the north Aug. 11-12.

The destruction of major dikes is regarded here with serious political and military complications and Americans have so far withheld their heavy air blows from these targets. But here in the delta region, whose paddy fields provide the bulk of rice supply of 17 million North Vietnamese, there have been almost daily attacks on dikes along the numerous small confluences of the Red River which empties into the Tonkin Gulf.

Hanoi officials' account there were 50 attacks in this province on dams, sluice gates by end of more from June to December, 1966, alone with the intensity increasing to the daily rate during the past three months. One particular dike we visited last Tuesday in Gia Ninh village, district of Gia Vien, was bombed Aug. 27. Eight 500-pound bombs were dropped and three left a 20-foot breach in the dike.

The breaching of the dike flooded a small village and the rice crop 9.8 feet below the water level at a time when rains were heavy.

The pattern of bombing in the delta seems evident— to interdict agricultural production. No military targets are visible in the dikes. The heaviest artillery we saw were antiquated rifles of the peasant militia.

To illustrate the pattern, near the coast are towns, Dong Giao and Binh Minh, which have large state farms. The Dong Giao farm has been bombed and strafed 125 times, during which 298 head of cattle were killed, according to officials. They say Binh Minh has been raided 229 times, during which three workers have been killed and several buildings were destroyed.

These farms train agricultural workers and are showcases for agriculture, visited recently by Romanian agriculturists.

Since the province is near the Tonkin Gulf, it is the route of naval aircraft on bombing missions inland and the coastal villages are often shelled by naval guns, officials said.

Leaders to Attend Ground Breaking

ASBURY, Mo, (AP) — Two governors and three congressmen are expected to attend ceremonies here Sept. 15 marking ground breaking for a $25 million power generating plant.

Planning to take part in the start of construction of the Empire District facility are Govs. Warren Hearnes of Missouri and Robert Docking of Kansas plus Rep. Durward Hall, R-Mo., Rep. John Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., and Rep. Joe Skubitz, R-Kan.

The generating plant to be built in southwestern Missouri between Joplin and Pittsburg, Kan., will burn coal mined nearby from a new Pittsburg & Midway Coal Co. site.

J. Edgar Hoover tells this story of a con man who thought he knew all the angles. After laboring ceaselessly to perfect the signature of a society big shot, the swindler successfully passed off a forged check on a local merchant. Inspired by his initial success, he went back to cash a second check, only to be apprehended. The first check had been returned with the notation "Insufficient funds."

More Babies Outliving Infancy

WASHINGTON (AP) - A greater percentage of American babies are surviving infancy than ever before, the Public Health Service reported today.

The agency said the U.S. infant mortality rate—the number of deaths under 1 year of age per 1,000 live births—dropped to an all-time low of 22.9 in the first six months of this year. The 1966 rate was 23.4, a drop of 15.7 since 1958, the last year when the percentage of infant deaths failed to decline.

LITTERLY SPEAKING

Lives of motorists remind us We can leave—if we are beelse—
Tin cans and, tossed out behind us,
Bottles and banana peels.
Let us then be up and doing
Everything we can contrive
To deface the land, and strewing
Garbage everywhere we drive.
